LIBERTY ALTAR PLAN OPPOSED BY SMITH

He Takes Issue With Wanamaker, Fearing Approval of a Permanent Memorial.

CITES CENSURE OF IDEA

Fails to Express American Spirit, Is Out of Scale and Base Is Unsafe, He Says.

Henry Smith, who as Deputy City Controller frequently represents the Controller's office at the Board of Estimate meetings, has written a letter to the board opposing the suggestion made by Rodman Wanamaker for an Altar of Liberty in Madison Square Park.

Mayor Hylan, at a meeting last week, moved to have the board act immediately on the suggestion, but favorable action was blocked by Deputy Controller Smith and Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, who insisted that the matter was too important for hasty action.

Mr. Smith objects to the altar plan, particularly because it "would practically be an approval on the part of this board of the Victory Arch as the permanent war memorial."

The Liberty Altar is part of the architectural scheme of the Victory Arch, but is not a structural part of the arch, being at some distance from it. Mr. Wanamaker urges that the altar be made permanent.

Mr. Smith's letter said in part:

"Mr. Wanamaker's belief notwithstanding, I doubt whether public sentiment and the best artistic judgment is in favor of the erection of a victory arch.

"I have heard many people, artists and laymen, criticise the arch. Many thought that an arch was selected merely because there are other arches in commemoration of wars even though they were erected under entirely different conditions. They thought that it in no way expressed the American spirit. In other words, they doubted whether an arch was the best way of commemorating America's part in the great war. Others thought that the site was not appropriate, that its only merit lay in its being located on Fifth Avenue.

"Again I was told that it was out of scale, that is, too large for the site. I have heard engineers say that the westerly half of the arch rested on the roof of a shaft of the Catskill Aqueduct, which could never support a stone arch, and it has been pointed out to me that the arch would necessitate the removal of the Worth Monument erected by the City of New York above the grave of General William Jenkins Worth in 1857.

"Last, but not least, many people felt that the arch was an obstruction to traffic in our most congested thoroughfare. With all due respect to the committee and its architect, and while I fully appreciate their labors, which resulted in the completion of the Victory Arch in time for the reception of our home-coming troops, I feel that this board must not at this time finally commit itself."

EWEN BLAMES AUNT IN WILL CONTEST

Accuses Eliza Ewen of Influencing Her Sister to Cut Him off From $300,000 Estate.

John Ewen, the attorney who is contesting the will of his aunt, Miss Maria Louise Ewen, cutting him off from a share in her $300,000 estate after he had opposed the will of his aunt, Caroline Ewen, because she left the bulk of it to societies for the care of animals, testified before Surrogate Foley and a jury yesterday as to his reason for trying to break Caroline Ewen's will, as a result of which he got about $50,000 in settlement.

"When I protested to my aunt, Eliza, she said: 'You speak as though I made the will.' I told her I was protesting because my grandfather, General John Ewen, spent a lifetime gathering his $1,000,000, which went to his three daughters, and I felt it was wrong for Caroline to leave her third of it to cat societies, many of which I felt were worthless. I told Aunt Eliza the will did not look as if it had been made of Caroline's own volition. Aunt Caroline told me that in spite of her fondness for cats she was opposed to making organized charities the objects of her bounty. Aunt Eliza was very angry and very quixotic over my attitude."

BAIL INQUIRY CONCLUDED.

Testimony to be Used in Report for Remedial Measures.

The John Doe inquiry into the bail bond system was concluded yesterday before Magistrate Simpson in the Criminal Courts Building. The testimony taken will form the basis of a report recommending remedial measures.

Witnesses heard yesterday included Michael Simon, agent of the Union Indemnity Company of New Orleans and special agent for the National Surety Company since 1906, when that company began this branch of its business. In the first years, Simon testified, it was customary for the National Surety Company to issue powers of attorney to well-known men—John D. Rockefeller, the late J. P. Morgan, and others—which enabled them to write their own bonds when necessary. This was done, he said, because these clients might have difficulties when driving their autos.

JAPANESE SILK MEN HERE.

Mission Arrives to Attend International Exposition Feb. 7.

With four Japanese girl workers as members of their party, the official Japanese raw silk mission arrived here yesterday in connection with the International Silk Exposition which is to open in the Grand Central Palace on Feb. 7. The mission was led by Saburobei Endo, and included S. Katakura, T. Higo and K. Isome.

"One of the most important objects of our trip," said Mr. Endo, "is to study raw silk consumption and learn what can be done to improve our products in order to meet American standards. It is our intention to show how the raw silk industry of Japan is carried on."

VOTES TO PUT JERSEY ON THE WATER WAGON

Assembly for Ratification of 18th Amendment and Repeal of 3.5% Beer Law.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Jan. 24.—New Jersey tonight started to climb aboard the water wagon, the lower house of the Legislature voting for ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment and to repeal the 3.5 per cent. beer law, initiated by Governor Edwards last Winter.

The ratification resolution, introduced by Assemblyman Roberts of Burlington County, was adopted by a vote of 51 to 4, Tattersall, Evans, Meloney and Roegner, all of Passaic County, casting the negative ballots. The beer bill repealer, presented by Mrs. Margaret B. Laird of Essex County, was passed unanimously.

Both the resolution and the repealer now go to the Senate, where affirmative action is expected next week.

Another piece of anti-liquor legislation sponsored by the Republican majority, a prohibition enforcement bill introduced by Mrs. Jennie C. Vanness of Essex County, will be given a public hearing next Monday by the joint judiciary committee. It is predicted that it will be amended to make it more workable than as now drawn.

CONTEST MOVIE RIGHTS.

Infringement of English Translation Claimed in Spanish Play.

The question of copyright protection of English translations covering motion picture rights is involved in a motion before the Brooklyn Supreme Court brought by John G. Underhill today, who claims the sole rights for English translations of the works of Jacinto Benavente, the Spanish novelist and playwright. He seeks to have producers of a motion picture version of "The Passion Flower" show cause why they should not be restrained on the ground of infringement.

The defendants, Joseph Schenck and Richard G. Herndon, deny infringement, claiming that the motion picture rights were bought in Paris. Justice Kapper reserved decision.

STOPS MICHIGAN RATE CUT.

Court Upholds 3 Cents a Mile—Increase Ordered in Iowa.

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—The Michigan Public Utilities Commission was permanently restrained by the Federal Court here today from reducing railroad passenger rates from 3 to 2½ cents a mile within the State. The order was issued on application of thirteen Michigan roads. The case was regarded as a test of authority between the State and the Federal Government. There is a "twilight zone" between war and peace, said the court's opinion, in which the Federal Congress has the right to fix fares to aid national reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—State passenger fares in Iowa must be raised to the same level as those prevailing in interstate commerce, the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled today. It said present rates discriminated against the interstate rates.

The commission said that the Iowa case was similar in many respects to the New York and Wisconsin cases on which similar rulings were made. The fares involved, which are to be raised on or before March 1, include a 20 per cent. increase in passenger fares and a 50 per cent. increase in Pullman rates.

JAPANESE REFUSE TO QUIT SIBERIA

Premier Hara Declares Troops Must Stay in Vladivostok and Along Railway.

ANSWERS ATTACK IN DIET

Kato, Leader of the Opposition, Urges That Forces Be Withdrawn.

MENACE TO KOREA IS SEEN

Uchida Tells of Insistence on Japanese Rights Under League Mandates.

TOKIO, Jan. 24.—Viscount Takaaki Kato, the Opposition leader, in a speech in the Diet today attacked the Government for keeping troops in Siberia. He declared that there was no justification for maintaining Japanese forces there, and that their presence would never result in a settlement of the Russian problem.

Premier Hara in reply said that he would like to withdraw these troops, but that he believed their maintenance in Siberia was necessary in the interest of Japan's national defense.

The house was packed in anticipation of the speech of Viscount Kato. Prior to the address, Kiyoshi Nakashoji, former Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, continued his interpellation concerning the failure of Japan to obtain benefits from the war which he said her participation merited, and also concerning the situation in China and Siberia. He declared that various questions were causing the country grave anxiety, and that the most important was Siberia.

"The whole province," said Mr. Nakashoji, "is fast being Bolshevized. What will the Government do?"

Premier Hara answered that it was impossible to prevent the Bolshevization of an alien land. He said that the Bolshevization of Siberia was undesirable, but that it could not be effectively checked.

Mr. Nakashoji asked: "Does not the Government intend to take steps against the Bolshevist menace even if the peace of the Far East is seriously jeopardized?"

Premier Hara responded that whatever the result of the Bolshevist predominance there was no likelihood of the powers acting as long as the movement was confined to Russian territory. He explained that the Japanese troops were in Vladivostok and elsewhere not so much as to counteract Bolshevism as to protect Japanese residents.

The Premier also spoke of the necessity of retaining troops between Vladivostok and Harbin for the protection of the railway line. He contended that Japan had a fixed policy in Siberia which had never been altered.

In his long address Viscount Kato asserted that no Government policy had ever been so conspicuous for want of unity and lack of proper efforts for the attainment of justifiable claims as that of the present Ministry.

TELLS DIET OF JAPAN'S WATCHFULNESS IN ASIA

Uchida Defends Troop Movements in Siberia—Firm for Rights Under Mandates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Supplemental official dispatches received in Washington today, giving the complete text of the speeches delivered on Saturday in Tokio by Premier Hara and Foreign Minister Uchida at the reconvening of the Japanese Diet, show that Viscount Uchida went into a more detailed survey of Japan's attitude toward important international problems than was indicated in the previous dispatches.

The text discloses the extent to which Viscount Uchida dealt with such important problems as Japan's attitude toward Russia and Siberia, the mandate under which Japan is willing that the former German colonies in the Pacific should be governed by Great Britain or Japan, Chinese affairs and the international consortium for that country, and the attitude of Japan toward the League of Nations and disarmament.

Viscount Uchida for the first time officially discloses in some detail the attitude of Japan on the important question of the kind of mandates under which the former German possessions in the Pacific should be administered. He said that the Japanese Government was "about to enter upon formal control and administration" of the group of islands north of the equator assigned to Japan, after having reached an agreement with the British Government as to the terms of the mandates. This agreement, it was explained by Viscount Uchida, was not reached until after the Japanese representatives at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva had reserved for Japan "the right to resume negotiations with the British Government concerning the treatment of Japanese subjects in the territories affected."

The United States Government, in the Colby note to the British Government on the question of mandates as involved in the Mesopotamian oil question, and in other communications, has been taking the position that before mandate terms are submitted to the League for consideration and approval they should also be brought to the attention of the United States Government for consideration, regardless of whether this country is a member of the League.

"Fair Premise" for League.

"The League of Nations," Viscount Hara declared, "is as yet at the initial stage of its development and, moreover, the international political situation has not quite regained its permanent equilibrium since the war. It is natural, therefore, that the League still leaves something to be desired, both in its organization and its working, and that some of the member States may not be satisfied with it in one respect or another. It is, indeed, inevitable that an international undertaking of such magnitude should fail to attain perfection in a single day, but all nations of the world should feel it jointly incumbent upon them to see to the steady development, and eventual perfecting of the League."

Viscount Uchida said that at the sessions of the Council and Assembly "the representatives of member States have invariably evinced a willingness to direct their efforts for the cause of the League, instead of confining their attention to the exclusive interests of the individual nations they represented. It is principally due to the spirit of concerted harmony manifested on these occasions that a fair promise of success is now assured to the League.

"In regard to the reduction of armament provided for in the Peace Treaty, the Military Commission of the League since its organization last May has been making investigations into all practical phases of the question. As a matter of principle, disarmament is to be welcomed for the general welfare of the human race and the Japanese Government is paying special attention to the question. The matter, however, has very important and complex bearings upon the interests of each nation and it is to be apprehended that realization of this end may be found impossible unless all nations act in harmony and good faith."

Demands for Rights in Islands.

Speaking of mandates for Pacific islands, Viscount Uchida said:

"When the terms and formulae of mandates came up for determination a difference of views arose between the Japanese and British Governments on the construction of the treaty stipulation relating to the terms and formulae of the mandate over former German colonies lying south of the equator. Agreement could not be reached for a long time.

"A frank exchange of views, however, between the Japanese and the British representatives who attended the first session of the League Assembly happily resulted in composition of differences. While agreeing to the terms of the mandate of Class "C," as proposed by Great Britain, the Japanese Government came to a full understanding with the British Government that Japan should make a declaration to the effect that the acquired rights of Japan in former German colonies south of the equator should be fully respected and that their agreement to the terms of the mandate over these islands should not be taken to signify acquiescence on the part of Japan in any discriminatory and unfavorable treatment of her nationals in said islands.

"Accordingly, when the terms of Class "C" mandates were decided upon the 17th of December at a meeting of the eleventh session of the League Council, the Japanese representatives made a declaration on the lines of the above understanding and reserved for Japan the right to resume negotiations with the British Government concerning the treatment of Japanese subjects in the territories affected. The terms and formulae of the mandates over former German possessions in the South Pacific having been determined, the Japanese Government is about to enter upon formal control and administration in pursuance of the terms of the mandate over the group of islands assigned.

Revising Anglo-Japanese Treaty.

"As to the revision and renewal of the Anglo-Japanese agreement of alliance, the Japanese Government has been giving careful consideration to the question with a view especially to its relation to the covenant of the League of Nations. They entered into conference with the British Government and a frank exchange of views on this matter took place both in London and Tokio.

"In view of Article VI. of the existing agreement of alliance, it was decided to address the League of Nations a joint notification to the effect that the Governments of Japan and Great Britain had come to the conclusion that the Anglo-Japanese agreement of July 13, though in harmony with the spirit of the covenant of the League of Nations, was not entirely consistent with the letter of that covenant and that they accordingly recognized in principle that, if said agreement was to be continued after July, 1921, it must be in form not inconsistent with the covenant. Notification was conveyed in a note dated July 8, 1920.

"A principle to guide the Japanese Government in revising the agreement is at present the subject of serious study, regard being had to articles of the League covenant as declared in the joint notification and to many important changes which have taken place in the aspect of affairs since the conclusion of the present agreement."

As to China, Viscount Uchida recommended the consortium plan, and continued:

"At a time when the powers interested are thus joining their hands to promote the welfare of the Chinese people by avoiding needless competition among themselves and by further strengthening their friendship and concert it is a matter to be openly deplored, especially by Japan, who as her neighbor is peculiarly interested, that complete and peaceful unification of China is not yet in sight.

"Last Summer when the political situation of China began to give signs of further complication and later when things came to such a pass that the northern part of China became involved in armed conflicts the Japanese Government issued timely warning to their officials and nationals in China to refrain from any acts or activities that might be regarded as taking part in political strife, and a declaration was also published defining their policy of scrupulous impartiality and their attitude of strict fairness. The situation in China is now at the turning point and the awakening of the people is indeed worthy of note.

Withdrawal from Parts of Siberia.

"When Czechoslovak troops had withdrawn from Trans-Baikalia the Japanese Government, consistent with their repeated declarations, withdrew their troops from that region. In districts around Vladivostok, whence menace to the peace of Korea was still felt and where the safety of many resident Japanese had to be provided for, and in Khabarovsk, which is the point of strategic importance on the way to the Province of Saghalien, we had to keep sufficient forces until such time as tranquility was restored in these regions. As soon as the situation around Khabarovsk began to show a degree of stability we withdrew our troops from that district in September last.

"The political situation of Eastern Siberia underwent various vicissitudes during the course of the last half year. There were in existence since last Spring four local Governments at Vladivostok and other centres. The time gradually became ripe during last Fall for amalgamation of these local political bodies until in November last what is called the Amalgamation Assembly was held at Chita. This Assembly decided for the independence of the Eastern Republic, Chita was chosen for seat of central government and various political bodies were relegated to a position of local autonomy. It was also decided that the Constitutional Assembly should be held on the 25th of January.

"As a result of this amalgamation, the Provisional Government of Vladivostok turned its authority over to the Central Government about the middle of last December. The Government of the Far Eastern Republic claims to stand for anti-Communistic democracy and has declared itself in favor of friendly relationship with foreign countries, especially with its near neighbors. What the new Government may do in practice is for the future to reveal.

"The political stability of Russia in general is earnestly hoped for by Japan as her good neighbor, while as for Siberia in particular it is the keenest desire of the Japanese Government that this troubled area should be unified on a sound basis and be restored to complete order."

Fleet Brings Million Pounds Of Fresh Fish Into Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—A million pounds of fresh fish were brought to this port today. Hauls were heavier than usual for the Winter season, and the fleet was one of the largest that has docked in many weeks. The steam trawler Tide had the biggest catch—170,000 pounds of haddock and 19,000 pounds of cod.

Prices held high, notwithstanding the big catch, haddock selling at 4 to 5 cents a pound, large cod at 8 to 8½ cents and market cod at 4 cents.

EXPECT SLUMP IN SHIPBUILDING

British See Signs of Decline After Biggest Output Year in Country's History.

2,055,624 TONS LAUNCHED

But Record Was Beaten by Yards of United States, Which Turned Out 2,476,000 Tons.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Great Britain's continued supremacy in the mercantile marine was revealed in Lloyd's summary, issued today, of the world's shipbuilding for 1920.

There were launched in the United Kingdom during the year 618 merchant vessels of 2,055,624 tons—556 steamers of 1,953,014 tons, 25 motor vessels of 86,940 tons and 37 sailing ships and barges of 15,670 tons. This output for 1920 is the highest ever reached in this country. It exceeds the 1919 total by 435,182 tons and is 142,371 tons higher than the previous record figures of 1913.

But it is unlikely that 1921 will produce such a big shipbuilding output. As suggested in the December quarterly shipbuilding returns, says Lloyd's summary, it is quite possible that the small decrease of work in hand then reported may prove to be the beginning of a serious decline in the shipbuilding industry. There is no question that the shipbuilding outlook for the near future is far from being so favorable as the present high figures would at first sight appear to indicate.

Outside the United Kingdom the returns for the year include 236 vessels of between 4,000 and 6,000 tons each, 163 of between 6,000 and 8,000 tons, 25 of between 8,000 and 10,000 tons, and 17 over 10,000 tons each. Seven of the latter are steamers of about 13,500 tons each launched in the United States and one of about 31,000 tons displacement and 25,000 gross launched in Italy. This vessel, originally intended as a warship and now being converted into a merchantman, was the largest ship launched during the year.

The countries where the largest output has taken place during the year under review are the United States, Japan, Holland and Canada. The totals for these countries amount to 3,275,595 tons.

A steady decrease took place in work in hand in countries abroad. At the beginning of the year the tonnage under construction amounted to 4,867,114 tons, and at the end of December the total was 3,470,862, a decrease of 1,396,252 tons. The whole of this reduction is due to the enormous decrease in the ship-building industry in the United States. At the end of December, 1919, there were 2,966,715 tons building in that country, whereas the figures for December, 1920, were 1,210,312—1,656,203 tons less.

The increase in France amounts to about 181,000 tons and in Holland to about 123,000. On the other hand considerable decrease has taken place in Japan and in Canada, amounting to about 61,000 and 52,000 tons respectively.

In the United Kingdom there has been launched 35 per cent. of the world's output for 1920 as compared with 22 1-3 for cent. for 1919 and 58 per cent. for 1913. During the past three years the total addition to the world's merchant navies by new construction amounts to practically 18,500,000 tons.

While Great Britain's output of merchant shipping during 1920 was the largest for any one year in her history, the United States led the world in gross tonnage launched, according to Lloyd's figures made public here yesterday. The total was 2,476,000 tons.

Lloyd's figures show that the United States far outstripped the rest of the world in construction of tanker tonnage, launching 567,000 gross tons, while Great Britain built 63,400 tons, and other countries 8,000 tons.

SEEK MEANS TO HELP ITALIAN TRADE WITH US

Ambassador Johnson and Aids Confer at Milan With Industrial and Financial Leaders.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MILAN, Jan. 24.—An important meeting relating to American trade in Italy has just been held here. Robert Underwood Johnson, Ambassador to Italy, presided over the conference, and among those present were the Prefect of Milan, representing the Government; Senator Salmoiraghi, representing Chambers of Commerce of Italy; Senator Conti, a former Minister; Signor Mylus, President of the Cotton Industries Association; Mr. McLean, American Commercial Attaché at Rome; Mr. Troutman, Vice Consul at Milan; A. B. Hooper, President of the American Chamber of Commerce for Italy, and prominent men in the financial, commercial and industrial world.

In an address Ambassador Johnson said:

"Though nature has denied to Italy raw materials, she has been prodigal with richness in her soil, her population is rapidly increasing and her people are perceiving that the only way out of their troubles is by incessant work.

"As Italy was the right flank against the Central Powers she is today our right flank in the combat against Bolshevism. She has learned through her experience with the new theory of social order that nothing but old-fashioned virtue can save mankind.

"The provincial days of America's bluster and brag have gone by. Our national altruism, our belief that liberty, justice, and opportunity are good, not merely for ourselves but for all men, is illustrated by our policy of an open door in China. Our national integrity of word is shown by our retirements on two occasions from Cuba. Lastly our national disinterestedness is exhibited by our entrance into the war and by our conduct at the Peace Conference. As to the future, I am confident that the American people will not be remiss in their duty to the suffering world."

Signor Mylus said that high exchange was the greatest hindrance to the return to normal conditions and lower prices.

"All nations suffer from the abnormal conditions of the exchange rate," he asserted. "Look at Japan, America and Switzerland, all threatened by a complete stoppage of their export trade and facing as a result increasing unemployment. Meanwhile Italian spinners are compelled to pay cash for their cotton, while American merchants buy Italian silk on three months' credit.

"America should be convinced that commercial and financial Italy deserves more credit than they have been granted. Last year's labor troubles convinced the great majority of our workmen that a 'Garden of Eden life' would not come as a result of Bolshevism. I believe that today's meeting will hasten more confidence in Italy."

Gasoline Blast Kills 10, Injures 20 When Tank Car Blows Up in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Ten negroes were killed, a score were injured, some probably fatally, and property damage estimated at $200,000 was caused today by an explosion of gasoline in a tank car at the plant of the Colyar Reese Company. The blast wrecked a part of the oil plant, leveled a block of frame dwellings and shook the entire north end of the city, shattering windows within a radius of fifteen blocks.

Of the injured two are white persons—L. C. Scott, Superintendent of the plant, and L. C. Wilder, Truck Superintendent. Both were badly burned, but physicians said tonight they would recover.

Colyar Reese, President of the oil company, attributed the explosion to spontaneous combustion by the vapor escaping, when the metallic cap was removed preparatory to unloading the car, coming in contact with the atmosphere. The car, which contained 8,000 gallons of casing head gasoline, produced by the absorption process, was shipped here from Kelleyville, Okla., Mr. Reese stated, and was loaded in a low temperature. When the cap was removed, according to this theory, the vapor came in contact with much higher atmospheric conditions here and the explosion followed.

The force of the explosion wrecked a row of frame tenement houses along an entire block. The occupants were blown to the street or caught under falling timbers. When police and firemen reached the scene, streets and alleys were covered with splintered timbers and torn and twisted household goods, with the dead and injured caught in the tangled mass.

Andrew McKinley, the negro who removed the cap from the tank car, was hurled several hundred feet. He was badly burned and died tonight. He was quoted as saying that when he removed the cap gas rose to a height of twenty feet and formed a pall of black smoke which ignited and exploded. Almost simultaneously pools of oil on the ground caught fire and a second explosion occurred.

BANDITS OVERRUN UPPER SILESIA

Whole Communities in the Mining Districts Terrorized by Large Organized Bands.

PEOPLE ARMED TO TEETH

Plebiscite Police Unable to Handle the Situation, Member of the Allied Commission Says.

OPPELN, Silesia, Jan. 24 (Associated Press)—The entire population of Upper Silesia is armed with rifles, revolvers and machine guns and is well supplied with ammunition, which the Entente military forces and the plebiscite police are hesitating to seize in the fear of a general uprising, said a member of the Interallied Commission here today.

Widespread terrorizing and fighting between the Germans and Poles during and after the forthcoming plebiscite cannot be prevented, this member declared, without serious clashes between the troops of occupation, the police and civilians.

Whole communities in the mining districts now are being terrorized by organized bandits operating in large bodies which is augmenting the hatred between the Germans and Poles, each side believing the other guilty of these outrages. The French troops are making no attempt to suppress the terror except in the large cities, because of the hostile attitude of the miners. The French venture into the Rybnik and Pless districts only in double patrol, the miners there having been French war prisoners who now are particularly antagnostic to the French.

"The terrorism and increase of crime are partly due to the fact that the Inter-allied Commission replaced the German security police with a new force of plebiscite police composed equally of Germans and Poles," the commission member said, "and these men, who are still unaccustomed to the work, are unable to control the situation. They also are numerically insufficient.

"While the population is armed to the teeth and fighting is regarded as certain especially during the second day of the plebiscite when the voting indicates its results and rumors begin to work, there is a feeling that it would be inadvisable to disarm the people and leave them at the mercy of the lawless element. Their arming followed naturally on the killings and depredations of last August and the claim that it was done in self-protection cannot be denied."

It is said the situation is becoming worse daily, with murders and robberies increasing. Since the middle of September fifty-five men have been murdered, a number of small colonies burned and whole settlements of Germans or Poles driven out. Few of the mines are employing mixed workmen, Poles being chiefly engaged. The farmers in some places are sympathizing with the Germans and refusing to sell provisions to Polish miners, who are suffering severly owing to delays in receiving shipments from Oppeln and Kattowitz.

The military officials have advised civilians not to venture out after twilight. An organized band is operating over virtually the entire plebiscite area, robbing men, women and children of their clothing but not molesting them otherwise. A score of members of this band recently forced a man walking with his daughter in the park in the center of Kattowitz to disrobe and left them without clothing in a snowstorm. Thirty members of the band have been arrested and punished but the activity of the robbers has not diminished.

Many houses in the mining centres bear the scars of machine gun bullets fired in recent clashes and the German and Polish settlements are being patrolled by guards and protected by lookouts. The mine owners say they expect outbreaks at any moment, but meanwhile the properties are operating to peace time capacity. The owners declare there is a mimimum of unemployment.

GERMANY TO IMPORT FOOD.

Needs 3,000,000 Tons of Grain and 1,500,000 Tons of Fodder.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Germany will be obliged to import 3,000,000 tons of grain to meet home needs in 1921, according to an official reply today to a question put by the Italian delegation in Brussels concerning the country's immediate requirements of foodstuffs from abroad. The Government admits the appraisal submitted at the Spa conference will prove inadequate owing to the failure of last year's crop, which did not come up to the expected yield.

Fodder amounting to 1,500,000 tons will also be required in addition to the wheat, while 1,000,000 tons of raw products for the manufacture of oleomargarine during the current year constitutes a further item on the Government's list of food commodities to be imported. The requirements of meat and bacon are estimated at 150,000 tons.

The gold mark value of the above commodities, based on their present market prices, is estimated at 3,200,000,000.

SWITZERLAND BARS FOREIGN LABOR

Increasing Unemployment Forces the Government to Keep Competition Out.

STRICT WATCH ON ALIENS

United States Passports Treated With Scant Regard and Americans Are Viewed With Suspicion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Jan. 24.—The Swiss Government has just issued injunctions to all the national authorities insisting upon the necessity of preventing foreign workmen in general, but particularly agricultural laborers, from entering Switzerland now.

The Government states that the reason for this order is increasing unemployment among the Swiss, "which threatens to become still worse and sap the foundations of our national existence." Nothing, this Government order proceeds, "angers our people more than seeing that owing to the indifference of the authorities they either have no work or cannot get any."

Never in the history of Switzerland have foreigners been so strictly watched and guarded as now. In fact, throughout the continent frontiers are defined by lines of frontier guards and it is no longer possible to go from one country to another except through a line of bayonets. The war, indeed, instead of having removed barriers, has established them.

At one time an American citizen's passport was regarded with respect on the Continent, but now is very often treated as a scrap of paper. Many Americans are at present suspects and apt to be considered either Bolshevist agents or political plotters of some kind.

Trade in Europe is undoubtedly hampered by suspicion and mistrust between one country and another.

CHINA'S BANKERS ACT.

Propose an Internal Consortium for Financing the Republic.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—Definite steps have been taken for the formation of an internal consortium by twenty-seven of the leading Chinese banks for the purpose of advancing constructive loans to the Government. Recently a $6,000,000 loan to the Ministry of Communication for the purchase of railway equipment was made by the group as an experiment.

The bankers have made three demands on the Government: First, that it readjust the nation's finances without delay, reducing the army and doing away with military graft; second, that it readjust all internal loans, which are now bringing on the market only 50 per cent. of their face value; third, that it stabilize the monetary issue by building one central Mint at Shanghai and that it limtl the issue of bank notes.

The bankers threaten to withdraw all support from the Government if further internal loans are floated and unless steps are taken immediately to comply with their demands.

ONCE VALET, NOW BISHOP.

Menigizzi Becomes Head of the Italian Diocese of Comacchio.

MILAN, Jan. 24.—An interesting event took place today in the Capuchin Church in Bologna, when Father Menigizzi, who for many years served as valet in the ducal household of Bevilacqua, was consecrated as Bishop.

The new prelate, whom the Pope has promoted to the headship of the Diocese of Comacchio, retired grief-stricken into a Franciscan monastery after his young master, the Marquis Gherardo, Duke of Tornando, had expired in his arms.

Carson to Quit Irish Politics.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Sir Edward Carson is expected to refuse the Premiership of the Province of Ulster and also intimate his withdrawal from Irish affairs when he receives an Ulster delegation tomorrow, says The Daily Mail. He will continue his interest in Ireland, the newspaper declares, "simply as a well-wisher from England."

Sir Edward will go to Ulster next month to publicly announce his withdrawal and attend the opening of the Ulster Parliament, which ceremony, The Daily Mail declares, may be performed by King George.

SEVERAL KILLED IN IRISH CLASHES

Attacks on Police and Military Barracks—Patrol Ambushed and Two Soldiers Killed.

REV. J. A. IRWIN ARRESTED

Carson to Withdraw From Irish Affairs—De Valera Now Reported to Be in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CORK, Jan. 24.—Both the military barracks and police barracks in Bandon, twenty miles from Cork, were attacked early this morning. Bombs were used by the attacking party, but the garrisons of both barracks replied and drove the assailants off. Two of the latter were shot dead and a sentry at the military barracks was wounded. Several bullets passed through the house windows and residents had narrow escapes.

A boy of 12, Richard Morey, died in Cork Infirmary last night from a bullet wound in the chest. He was with a youth at the end of a lane during curfew hours, and when troops approached the lads ran toward their home in the lane. They did not hear a call to halt and the troops fired.

On Sunday troops infested Ballymacelligott, Kerry, and rounded up the entire population. They were marched to a creamery where they were all photographed and searched, women searchers having accompanied the party. Two hundred and forty men were taken prisoners to Tralee where all but twelve were released.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 24.—Another ambush in Tipperary, this time accompanied by eight casualties to the Crown forces, is reported in an official message tonight which reads:

"This afternoon a mixed party of military and police were ambushed near New Birmingham, County Tipperary, in the martial law area. After an exchange of fire the attackers were dispersed. The casualties inflicted on them have not been ascertained. One military Sergeant was killed and one private has died of his wounds. One officer and two privates and one officer and two constables were wounded."

Four police who were in a motor car had seized guns and ammunitions at Salford, County Meath, yesterday when they were attacked by a party estimated to number 100. They lost the car, but for a mile they put up a brisk running fight and then reached the shelter of a house, where they kept their assailants at bay for an hour until military and police reinforcements arrived. One Sinn Feiner is reported to have been killed and another wounded.

DUBLIN, Jan. 24.—In a letter to the parish priest of Headford, Galway, the Archbishop of Tuam laments that the "truce of God" which he called for in July was broken first by the civilians of his diocese in the Kilroe ambuscade last week. The Archbishop says that during the last six months his people had shown magnificent restraint under great provocation, that arrests, floggins, imprisonment, raids and other indignities did not provoke them to violence.

The misguided criminals at Kilroe, continued the Archbishop, are trebly guilty, because they knew they were invoking reprisals on the innocent, which followed in the shape of eleven homesteads being burned and nine families left destitute.

The Archbishop denounces as equally cowardly the folly of the ambushers and the inhuman barbarity of the reprisals. He again appeals to the best elements of "the two sister nations" to call off the State warfare, which is described as a negation of Christianity, and to establish a truce.

BELFAST, Jan. 24.—The military authorities refuse to give any information concerning the arrest of the Rev. J. A. Irwin, a Presbyterian minister who delivered addresses in the United States when Eamonn de Valera was touring that country. Headquarters has warned all the military commands to make no communication to the press concerning the Rev. Mr. Irwin. The minister has been sent to the Ballykinlar internment camp, where he probably is the sole non-Catholic prisoner.

Interest in the case of the minister has been heightened by an interview with "Gipsy" Smith, the evangelist, published in The Belfast Telegraph. Smith ridiculed the reception given de Valera and the Rev. Mr. Irwin in Georgia, to which the Rev. Mr. Irwin wrote a long reply testifying to the enthusiastic nature of the reception accorded de Valera.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—Sean O'Ceallaigh, representative here of the Sinn Fein, today refused to confirm or deny reports received here from London that Eamon de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, is in Paris.

"I have nothing to say about it," said O'Ceallaigh, "but it might not do any harm to have a look around. You never can tell whom you might find."

CORK'S MAYOR GETS SEAMAN'S PAPERS

Will Ship Aboard Foreign-Bound Vessel at His Convenience, It Is Said.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 24.—Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, was surrendered today by his counsel, Judge Joseph T. Lawless, to the immigration authorities here. A "seaman's certificate" was immediately issued to him and it was said that he could ship aboard a foreign bound vessel at his convenience.

The Lord Mayor left for New York tonight, saying that he would attend a meeting of the committee in charge of affairs of Irish relief tomorrow night.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Michael Francis Doyle, counsel for Donal O'Callaghan, said tonight the Lord Mayor planned to remain in this country at least sixty days. He will leave Norfolk tonight for New York, where tomorrow he will address a meeting for the organization of an Irish relief committee. Later, Mr. Doyle said, the Lord Mayor will visit a number of other cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The State Department's action in ordering the deportation of Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, for entering the United States without a passport, set a precedent which may bar Irish agitators from the United States, if followed by the incoming Administration. It is understood the British Government will not issue passports to Sinn Feiners or advocates of the Sinn Fein cause.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 24.—Refusal of this country to admit Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork was declared to be "contrary to American traditions and an insult to the word 'democracy'" in a statement issued tonight by the Right Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, Bishop of the Diocese of Detroit and National President of the Friends of Irish Freedom.

Bishop Gallagher also criticised the passport system, under which, he said, "the world is a vast jail, with King George V, the jailor."

Telegrams protesting against the deportation of O'Callaghan were sent to Secretary of State Colby and William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, yesterday by New York Chapter, Veterans' Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic.

The message was signed by Major Michael A. Kelly of the 165th Infantry, A. E. F., and P. J. Neary, who was a lieutenant with the American Expeditionary Forces. Major Kelly is Secretary of the Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, formed by de Valera shortly before he left this country.

Judge Lets Women on Jury Wear Hats and Powder Noses

Of forty women called for jury service this term, twenty announced their willingness to serve.

Waldemar Powelson Arrested in Berlin Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods.

CLAIM BY HOHENZOLLERNS

Police Commissioner Goetsch Says Pictures Were Genuine—Souvenirs From Palaces.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Waldemar Powelson, a young Danish-American, who about six months ago sold a number of valuable pictures and some jewelry in America which he alleged were the property of Wilhelm II., was arrested at a hotel in Berlin yesterday charged with receiving stolen goods.

Professor Bode, the art expert, told THE TIMES correspondent at the time that the pictures in question—one Rubens, one Van Dyck, one Van Bayern and five Canalettos—could not have been removed from the Berlin or Munich royal palaces or museums without his being informed, and that therefore they must be worthless forgeries. But Dr. Bode was not aware that the pictures had previously been the private property of a wealthy Berlin man living on the fashionable Rauchstrasse whose name the police refuse to give, though they intimate that the seller violated the revenue laws by his transactions with Powelson.

Police Commissioner Gŏtsch, who caused Powelson's arrest, says the pictures were genuine and that they were sold to the firm of art dealers in Hudson, N. Y., whom he would only describe as "Williams."

The articles of jewelry which Powelson sold at the same time had really been removed or stolen from royal palaces in Berlin or Munich. They numbered altogether about sixty pieces. Powelson received these articles, among which were many valuable presents to the Kaiser from European potentates, from a highly reputable Berlin firm by making part payment, the money for which was advanced by a rich Berlin woman who hoped to profit by the transaction. Only today Powelson revealed the name of the firm, which will now have to answer very unpleasant questions as to how it got possession of the stolen jewelry, while the woman mentioned may be charged with aiding in the concealment of stolen goods.

Commissioner Gŏtsch states that the Kaiser's throne was not among the articles sold in America, but he mentioned a solid gold cup weighing two rounds, a gold handle horsewhip; the Czar's present, a gold cigarette case; a Kaiser baton and several miniature gold clocks. At the solicitation of the Hohenzollern family Gŏtsch called at the Foreign Office today to induce the latter to secure an attachment in some United States court, as the Hohenzollerns claim the stolen articles as their private property. THE TIMES correspondent is informed, however, that this is impossible, America being still technically at war with Germany.

The police say that Powelson returned to Germany to arrange more business of the same kind and that he has been quite successful in Munich, whence he came to Berlin.

CUBAN CONGRESS TO SIT IN CONTINUOUS SESSION

Decision to Spur Financial Legislation Before Moratorium Expires Next Monday.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 24.—Following an extended conference at the National Palace late today, it was announced that the Cuban Congress would sit in continuous session to reach a solution of the financial crisis. The main subject will be the terms of the proposed Torriente law and the amendments to it as offered for the regulation and termination of the existing moratorium.

The conference participants, besides President Menocal, were Major General Crowder, Dr. Alfredo Zayas, Dr. Pablo Desvernine, Secretary of State; Dr. Dolz, presiding officer of the Senate; Dr. Santiago Verdeja, Speaker of the House and Senator Torriente, author of the legislation in question.

It was stated tonight that the discussion resulted in the approval of three amendments to the Torriente act. These, it is said, provide that 50 per cent. of outstanding indebtedness shall be immediately liquidated, instead of 15 per cent. as provided in the act when it left the Senate; that the remaining 50 per cent. shall be liquidated within 135 days, and that in the case of suspensions of payments the courts are to take cognizance as provided in the commercial code.

General Crowder, it is said, was advised of the reluctance of Congress to pass legislation of so stringent a nature in view of the acute shortage of money in circulation among the merchants. In turn, the General, it is stated, called attention to the damage suffered by American exporters as based upon the constant claims presented to the Government by those having large accounts due from Cuba.

It is asserted that the continuous session of Congress will be necessary in order to secure the passage of the required legislation before the moratorium expires next Monday. President Menocal has made it plain that he will not issue a further extension by decree.

Following the departure of the conferees mentioned, the President received committees from the Senate and the House for a limited discussion of the situation.

LESSONS FROM K-5'S LOSS.

Viscount Curzon Thinks Inquiry Results Should be Published.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Viscount Curzon, M. P., who is a Commander in the Naval Reserve, was interviewed by The Evening Standard on the disaster to the submarine K-5. He expressed the opinion that the result of the Admiralty inquiry might have an important bearing on the controversy which was taking place regarding the respective merits of the capital ship and the submarine and for that reason, he urged, the Admiralty should deviate from their general procedure and publish the court's findings.

"It is quite possible," he said, "that the court might find the disaster arose from the difficulty of handling a submarine of that size and such a verdict would be one of the most momentous statements yet made regarding the question of capital ships and submarines."

COX IN WASHINGTON, SEES PARTY LEADERS

Desultory Talk Shows There Will Be No Change in Management for a While.

CHEERFUL VIEW IS TAKEN

Party Is Very Much Alive, It Is Stated—Will Not Try to Embarrass Harding.

COX AND WIFE GOING ABROAD

Former Candidate Will Make a Study of Conditions in European Countries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Talk about the reorganization of the Democratic Party started anew today when ex-Governor Cox of Ohio, nominee for President last Fall, arrived from Dayton, and met several party leaders.

Mrs. Cox accompanied the Governor and they are the guests of Judge T. T. Ansberry. Mr. Cox said that his visit was without political significance, as far as he was concerned, and was not planned with a view to political conferences.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox are going abroad in June on a tour which will take them into practically every country of Europe where travel is possible and arrangements will be made for passports during their stay here. Mr. Cox is also planning the establishment of a Washington bureau for his newspaper.

Mr. Cox referred to himself today as a private in the ranks of the party and a newspaper publisher. He said that he had been at work in The Dayton News office every morning since his term as Governor expired and appeared in the best of spirits. He got obvious enjoyment out of his talks with men who led the cause of the party in the campaign.

The gathering of leaders naturally made politics a subject of discussion.

The general conclusion drawn from the discussion was that no change of party management was contemplated at this time and that George White would remain as Chairman of the National Committee for the present.

The general idea, according to the views expressed by some leaders, will be to keep the party an active organization, but not to make anything like an embarrassing attack upon the Republicans who after March 4 will control the Presidency as well as both branches of Congress.

There was nothing to indicate that the leaders were discouraged over the election result. They said that the party was very much alive and certain to be on hand in the Congressional election of 1922. The story of a row in prospect in the party was put aside as untrue.

Mr. Cox had luncheon at the Shoreham with Joseph P. Tumulty and Judge Ansberry. He talked also with Joseph E. Guffey, Committeeman from Pennsylvania; Homer S. Cummings, former Chairman of the National Committee; Senator Harrison, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the National Committee in the last campaign; Angus W. McLean of North Carolina, and Senator Pittman.

Mr. White is expected here tomorrow or Wednesday and will see Mr. Cox, along with other leaders who are on the way, among them Thomas B. Love of Texas. Mr. Cox is anxious to chat with the leaders and hear how things are going, but insists that he is a private citizen, in every sense of the word.

Talking of his European tour, in which he showed most interest, Mr. Cox said that his intense interest in the League of Nations and his own professional work made him desirous of getting first hand knowledge of conditions abroad. He also wishes to discuss affairs with the men in Europe who directed war policies. He may return home by way of the Orient.

GIOLITTI'S REMEDY FOR WORKERS' UNREST

His Bill Provides for Their Sharing in Technical and Financial Factory Management.

ROME, Jan. 23.—The bill soon to be presented to Parliament by Premier Giolitti, under the provisions of which, if it is made law, workers will have a share in the management of industrial plants, provides that the employes in each industry shall elect a National Council composed of nine members. Each political or syndicalist organization of workmen is to be represented in the National Council by one or more members, in proportion to the membership of the organization, the Tempo says today.

Under the bill each National Council will appoint two representatives for participation in the management of each factory, their power to extend to technical, financial and disciplinary arrangements, including the fixing of prices and the purchases of raw materials. Special commissions will be appointed to provide employment for those out of work, according to their precedence on the lists of unemployed.

The employers, in declaring their opposition to the bill, assert that it would deprive them of technical independence, which they say is indispensable to the successful operation of the plants. They maintain that they must be free to dismiss and engage workmen if discipline is to be guaranteed. The employers also strongly oppose interference by the workers in the financial departments of the industries, especially in the buying of raw materials, which they point to as one of the most delicate details of each business, concerning not the workers, but the business rivals, of the various plants.

The communists, led by the millionaire Terracini, oppose both the Government and the employers, asserting that any participation by the men in the management of industries must be purely destructive; that participation by the men must not assist, but hinder, development of the life of the factories.

Divergent views are expressed by the members of the General Confederation of Labor, headed by Signor Daragona, Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies, some holding that participation of the men should be especially aimed at gaining direct control of the factories as a first step toward socialization of the means of production.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Further Advance in European Exchange—Stocks Irregular, but Generally Close Higher.

The full subscription to the $30,000,000 Belgian loan immediately after the formal placing of it on the market was the typical incident of yesterday's finance. There was no reason for expecting any other response to an offer of 8 per cent. long-term bonds in a market where the price of capital is falling, and by a nation which since return of peace has achieved, politically and industrially, what has been achieved by Belgium. The importance of the incident lies, however, in the impression which this initial experiment in the year's European borrowings may make on the average investor's imagination. The two obstacles which have long stood in the way of our country's proper application of its capital to the task of reconstructing Europe have been, first, the fear that our own available resources were so inadequate to absorb such loans that the price of the bonds would decline after the subscription, and, second, that the European Governments would never pay back what they were borrowing.

For the first objection there was much excuse in the actual movement of last year's open market for several foreign bonds. The second objection cannot perhaps be wholly removed except by the action of the bond market itself. Not all investors are experienced investigators of causes, and it was quite impossible during 1920 to convince a good many of them that a 10 to 15 point decline in the price of bonds of a first-class European Government resulted from abnormal American money stringency and not from suspicion of the borrowing Governments. If this illusion is to be dispelled, it will be done partly by developments in Europe itself, but very largely by the course of events in Wall Street.

Yesterday's stock market calls for little comment. Transactions were less than half what they were in the earlier days of the month and prices again reflected the more or less futile experiments of professional traders. An early advance was followed by irregular reaction, leaving the day's net changes varied, but generally advances. The movement of prices had no relation to anything in the news. Not very long ago, for instance, the American Woolen Company's announcement of another reduction in prices for some of its products would have started a robust "bear movement" in the shares. Yesterday the stock was simply neglected; perhaps professional Wall Street has learned that, in the present somewhat unusual situation, the only sure path in many industries to revival of business, reopening of mills and re-employment of labor, has been the meeting of the consuming public on its own terms.

Recovery in foreign exchange continued yesterday at a rapid pace. Sterling advanced 3 cents, the French franc ½ cent, and the Belgian nearly ½, the Italian lira rose sharply and even the German mark went approximately ¼ cent above last week's closing. Most of these rates ended at the day's highest and all of them reached yesterday the highest of the year to date. Sterling sold at the best rate since the third week of July, French exchange at the best since the opening week of August. Exchange on Montreal, advancing 1-3 cent to 88 1-3 cents per Canadian dollar, marked a recovery of more than 4 cents from the low December rate and fixed the best price since November.

At times the buying of exchange, especially Belgian and French, was reported to be unusually large and of an excited character. Probably this means that speculation for the rise is taking a hand, which is not altogether an advantage. Nevertheless, the movement of exchange is important, not only as an effect of our market's attitude toward foreign securities, but as a potential cause for continuance of that attitude. It disregarded the day's Wall Street money market, which was quotably higher, although the advance in rates affected only time loans on industrial collateral.

MONEY.

MONDAY, JAN. 24, 1921.

Call loans ruled at 7 per cent. all day on the Stock Exchange. This was unchanged from the closing rate of last week. In time money no change was reported in rates for mixed collateral, which still obtain 6@6½ per cent, but on all industrials brokers quote the market 6½ per cent bid, with lenders asking 7 per cent. Principal business in this department is confined to renewals, which are going at 6¼@6½ per cent. No changes were reported in rates for commercial paper or prime bankers' acceptances.

A consignment of $7,650,000 gold arrived for account of local bankers. More gold is expected shortly.

Government withdrawals approximating $11,000,000 will be made from local associated banks on Tuesday.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Upward Movement in Rates on Practically All Countries—French and Belgian Strong.

Under the influence of active buying, partly a result of the immediate success of the Belgian loan subscription, exchange on European countries advanced rapidly yesterday, and in nearly all markets the closing was either at or only slightly below the day's highest. Sterling advanced 3 cents, French and Italian exchange around ½ cent, Italian, Spanish and German between ⅛ and ¼. Danish exchange ½ cent per crown. There were smaller but noticeable advances in the rates on Austria, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Switzerland, Norway and Sweden.

Brazilian exchange rose ⅛ cent per milreis; there were slight recoveries in Argentine and Japanese exchange. The rate on Montreal closed at 88.3 cents, against 88 Saturday, 87.4 a week ago and 83.9 at the low level of December.

OUR STEEL AND ENGLAND'S.

Comparison of the Two Countries' Monthly Exports in 1920.

An interesting contrast is afforded by comparison of the trend of American and British steel exports in 1920. Data for the first eleven months of last year for both countries show the November British exports, including pig iron, to have been next to the lowest for the year, while for that month the American outgo was one of the heaviest. Taking the average for the entire period, the British monthly exports have been 282,310 gross tons per month to Dec. 1, while the American have been 405,730 tons per month, the last seven of these months having averaged 428,700 tons per month. Expressed in the form of a table these data are as follows, in tons.

	American Exports.	British Exports.
February	308,185	231,063
March	417,216	295,716
April	396,120	274,337
May	420,359	332,869
June	402,707	287,635
July	455,868	398,016
August	431,484	276,083
September	409,200	256,280
October	452,015	277,183
November	434,297	237,672
Average per mo., 1920	405,730	282,672
Average per mo., 1913	264,000	420,757

These figures show that, compared with 1913, the two countries have changed positions as suppliers of the world's steel demand. Whereas in 1913 Great Britain exported over 420,000 tons per month while the United States in the same year sent out about 264,000 tons per month, last year it was the United States which had exported over 400,000 tons per month, with Great Britain credited with only 282,000 tons. Whether this relation can be maintained this year depends partly on the recuperative power of Great Britain herself, which has never heretofore failed, as well as the rapidly expanding productive power of France, Belgium and Germany, which is already being felt.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Market Barrier.

Wall Street is beginning to wonder whether there is not a definite barrier against any big display on the long side of the market. While the extensive liquidation which took place last year brought brokerage loans to a low point, and gave rise to the belief that the money stringency, so far as the stock market was concerned, was about ended, it is becoming apparent to many that money for speculative purposes is not to be had in anything like the supply necessary for carrying on any forward demonstration of wide proportions. In other words it is held that there is a barrier of real proportions which the market cannot cross without bringing an advance in call rates such as would put an end to any pool operations. On the other hand it is pointed out that, just as was the case during the latter part of last year, there is no visible barrier to the decline, hence the popularity of this position. Of course there is ultimately a point beyond which stocks will not recede, but the limits are not so clearly defined, so Wall Street thinks, as on the advance. It is considered that this disbelief in the ability of the market to surmount the money situation serves to cut short any prolonged rallies and limits the activities of the pools.

Mexican Petroleum Weak.

Mexican Petroleum was under heavy pressure yesterday, selling off more than 4 points. The foundation for the attack apparently lay in the fact that further reductions in crude oil prices were announced. Mid-continent and Caddo crude dropped 50 cents a barrel. When there is any bit of bad news bearing on the oils it seems that Mexican Petroleum is singled out as the target.

Steel Earnings Out Today.

Earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the fourth quarter of last year, which will be made public today, are expected to show something in the neighborhood of $45,000,000. This would be about $5,000,000 higher than the earnings for the third quarter and $2,000,000 higher than the $43,000,000 reported in the second quarter, which up to the present stands as the highest of the year. The reason for Wall Street's confidence in higher earnings in the fourth quarter, even though new business was at low ebb, lies in the fact that the Steel Corporation operated on a higher basis during November and December than at any other period of the year. In December some of the plants were running at 95 per cent. of capacity and the entire organization was operating at better than 90 per cent. While steel prices during the last three months of 1920 were coming down rapidly the steel corporation level was unimpaired, hence there was no loss from this item.

Money Continues Firm.

Money ruled at 7 per cent. all day on the Stock Exchange and there was no "outside" money to be had at any better figure. Time funds were quoted nominally at 6¼ to 6½ per cent., but, according to the money brokers, no business was transacted—or at best, very little. The money brokers maintain that they cannot place time funds just now because stock brokers will not bid current rates for ninety-day loans and the lenders are not willing to offer funds for the thirty-day period which might find takers. Some few thirty-day loans on Liberty bond collateral were reported yesterday at 6 per cent., and it was said that shopping might turn up money at a slightly lower rate. Government withdrawals for today will total $11,300,000.

Belgian Loan Oversubscribed.

The $30,000,000 Belgian loan offering proved to be as great a success as any of the foreign loans of last Fall. The books were opened and shut again almost immediately thereafter, and the gossip was that subscriptions already received had gone above the $60,000,000 mark, with the indications that they would ultimately run close to $80,000,000, if they did not exceed that figure.

South America Next?

It is admitted that a great amount of foreign financing is "pending," but just how soon it is to develop into actuality nobody seems to know. The statement of Mr. Casenave appears to eliminate France for the time being and bond men now incline to the belief that one or two of the South American countries probably will be the next formal applicants in this market. The Argentine is said to be about ready to close negotiations with local bankers and Brazil is fixing up some kind of loan. With respect to the latter, it is not definitely determined whether the Brazilian financing will be of national character or for the State of Sao Paulo, or will be some sort of joint operation.

Loan to Danish Cities.

A loan of $15,000,000 to Danish cities is likely to be announced late today. This is the transaction the National City Company is arranging and complete details are expected to be made public either today or tomorrow.

More Indian Gold Arrives.

In the $7,500,000 total of gold which arrived yesterday there was included some of the metal which recently was shipped from British India. One consignment of slightly more than $100,000 was received by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and it was understood that the Guaranty Trust Company also received some of the Indian gold. The latter company received the first Indian gold to come to this country some weeks ago.

November Earnings Low.

The detailed report of the Interstate Commerce Commission on earnings of Class 1 railroads in November presents a picture even less promising than had been generally expected. Net operating income of only $54,243,793 for the month was far below the amount necessary to yield a 6 per cent. return on the aggregate value of railroad property, as prescribed in the Transportation act, and it explains why the railroads are cutting down every possible item of expense. Total operating revenue of $592,130,728 compared favorably with $438,105,217 in the corresponding month a year before, but the gain in operating expenses was also large, and served to offset the better gross figures, along with an increase in accrued 1920 taxes. The final November figures reflect the decline in railroad traffic, which will be shown even more clearly in December. For a time in the early part of the current month daily reports from terminal points indicated an improvement in traffic, but subsequent reports show that there has not been a marked improvement. This would make it appear that traffic is down at about its minimum point unless there is some severe Winter weather. When $87,000,000 is the amount that has been set for net income sufficient to yield the prescribed 6 per cent. return, the $54,243,793 reported for Class 1 roads is not exactly encouraging.

Car Loadings Decrease.

For the week ended Jan. 8 car loadings totaled 706,412. In the corresponding 1920 period car loadings were 830,673, and in the preceding year they were 723,801. This shows that they were not only less this year than last, but were below the figures reported in the traffic slump which was experienced after the signing of the armistice. The surplus car figures as of Jan. 15 also show that the volume of business being moved is less. On that date the number of idle cars was 280,562, the greatest for a long time.

An Analysis of the Earning Power of the large electric light and power systems immediately demonstrates their stability. About five billion dollars are invested in this business in the United States. Where these companies are conservatively capitalized, properly financed and managed, no better investments are to be had.

GAS CONCERN SHOWS $5,692,000 DEFICIT

Consolidated's 1920 Report Records Shortage After Dividends of Nearly Double Previous Year's.

ELECT STILLMAN DIRECTOR

Cortelyou Blames Heavy Cost of Coal for Offsetting 12.44% Gain in Gas Sales.

The report of the Consolidated Gas Company for last year, issued yesterday, shows net income, after interest, taxes and charges, of $1,308,000. This was the equivalent of $1.30 a share earned on the $100,000,000 capital stock and compares with $4.11 a share earned in 1919. After the payment of dividends for 1920 on the stock the company reported a deficit of $5,692,000, as compared with a deficit in the preceding year of $2,909,356. At the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday James A. Stillman, head of the National City Bank, was elected a Director, to succeed Frank A. Vanderlip. Other retiring Directors were re-elected and the election of officers will occur next week.

From the figures available for 1920 operations the income account of the company for 1920 was shown yesterday as follows:

Operating income	$4,343,000	$1,853,759
Other income	7,876,000	7,449,635
Total income	3,533,000	5,595,876
Interest	2,225,000	1,483,436
Net income	1,308,000	4,112,440
Dividends	7,000,000	7,021,796
Deficit	5,692,000	2,909,356

The company has shown a deficit after dividends for the last three years. In 1917 a surplus of $753,922 was reported. Of operations during the year, George B. Cortelyou, President, said in part:

"The ratio of increase in gas output with which we started early in 1920 did not continue throughout the year. In the Spring and through the Summer months it was believed by some that the companies would be called upon in the Fall for an increased quantity of gas, for heating purposes principally, because of the shortage of coal for domestic and industrial use, but toward the end of the year, the coal shortage was partially relieved, which, combined with the fact that the last two months of the year proved unusually mild, resulted in an increase substantially less than was anticipated.

"The difficulty of obtaining an adequate supply of gas coal and anthracite was attended by a very substantial increase in the cost per ton at the mines and in the cost of transportation to our manufacturing plants. The cost of rail transportation, insurance, lighterage, &c., has become more than the coal itself formerly cost delivered at our plant.

"Anthracite, for which before the war we used to pay $4.67 per long ton free on board our manufacturing plants, was increased during the last half of the year 1920 in excess of $12 per long ton free on board our plants. Likewise bituminous coal, for which before the war we used to pay $3.30 per long ton free on board our manufacturing plants, was increased during the last half of the year 1920 from $11 to $14 per long ton free on board our plants."

Concerning sales of gas the report said:

"The gas sales of the Consolidated Gas Company increased during 1920, as compared with the previous year, 2,176,671,300 cubic feet, or 11.72 per cent. In 1919 there had been an increase in gas sales of 3.04 per cent., as compared with the previous year.

"Its gas sales and those of its allied gas companies in the Borough of Manhattan increased during the year 3,204,485,100 cubic feet, or 12.55 per cent., as compared with an increase of 3.01 per cent. in 1919.

"In the Borough of the Bronx the increase during 1920 in the volume of sales amounted to 423,509,300 cubic feet, or 8.77 per cent., as compared with a loss of 1.20 per cent. in 1919 below the previous year.

"The combined gas sales of the Consolidated Gas Company and its allied companies in the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens and in Westchester County amounted to 4,201,900,000 cubic feet more in 1920 than in 1919, a gain of 12.48 per cent., as compared with a gain of 2.08 per cent. in 1919 over the previous year."

Eastern Lines' Heads Confer at Washington on New Rate Division.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Presidents of eleven large railroads of the East met here today at the request of Chairman Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to settle out of court, as it were, the controversy arising from the request of New England carriers for a larger proportion of the rates on freight interchanged with trunk lines west of the Hudson River.

Eight hours of conferences, continuing into the night, brought no unanimous decision from the Presidents and B. M. Robinson, President of the American Short Line Railroad Association, who met with them, but it was said that the executives with two excepions were agreed that the New England roads must have additional revenue or be forced into bankruptcy. None would name the executives who held out against a compromise with the New England roads, but it was reported that Mr. Loree of the Delaware & Hudson was opposed to concessions to the New England carriers. He is said to have held that his road occupied a position different from that of larger Eastern lines.

The executives are expected to continue their conferences tomorrow, and it was indicated tonight that there were prospects that the large Eastern roads through their executives would reach an agreement that would relieve the Interstate Commerce Commission of the task of settling the controversy, which is now before it and on which hearings were resumed today.

Chairman Clark, in requesting that the executives seek a compromise, is said to have told them that the commission would not be able to satisfy any group of the roads involved and would leave matters in a tangle.

At today's conferences attention is said to have been given to the recent statement of Howard Elliott, former President of the New Haven, that should the New England carriers fail to obtain additional revenues and be forced into bankruptcy, the entire railroad structure of the country might fall.

The decision in the controversy as to the division of freight rates at the Hudson River, it is stated, will affect practically every railroad of any size in the country.

Participating in the conferences besides Mr. Robinson were these railroad Presidents: Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania; E. J. Pearson, New Haven; A. H. Smith, New York Central; J. H. Hustis, Boston & Maine; Daniel Willard, Baltimore & Ohio; L. F. Loree, Delaware & Hudson; W. H. Truesdale, Lackawanna; F. H. Alfred, Pere Marquette; F. D. Underwood, Erie; W. H. Williams, Wabash, and N. H. Maher, Norfolk & Western.

The commission in resuming its hearings today had before it Robert C. Wright, General Traffic Manager of the Pennsylvania system, and D. T. Lawrence, General Freight Agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

Mr. Lawrence told the commission that the average load in New England was 14 per cent. less than carload capacity, while in trunk line territory cars were loaded to capacity, thus producing greater revenue. In his estimation, he said, this and other errors, instead of division of rates, were to blame for the lack of revenue for the New England carriers.

Farrow's Bank Losses £2,800,000.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The losses of Farrow's Bank, which suspended payment Dec. 20 last, were estimated today to aggregate £2,800,000 by an expert accountant who testified in the proceedings against Thomas Farrow, founder of the bank, Vice President Crotch and Director Harthead.

SPECIALISTS SINCE 1830

ON JUNE 28, 1830, when the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company opened its offices for business, its founders announced that they were prepared to "act as trustees under last wills and testaments" and "as guardians of estates of infants."

For more than 90 years this company has devoted its thought and effort primarily to the administration of Personal Trusts. In addition to acting under wills or order of court, the Company now acts under Trusts made by agreement with individuals and as Custodian of property of every kind.

With nearly a century of experience in this work, we are prepared to meet the complex needs of 1921 with the same painstaking care which characterized the trustees of 1830, offering Personal Service for Personal Trusts.

LOOK AT IT THE OTHER WAY

To an Englishman, present exchange quotations mean dollars above par rather than sterling below par.

If dollars have been at an artificial peak their decline toward par in foreign markets is just as certain as was the fall of commodity prices from their artificial peak last year. Furthermore such a decline is essential to the welfare of our own foreign and domestic trade.

Our letter A-47 suggests ways in which the investor may profit by taking advantage of this situation.

Casenave Says $100,000,000 Report Is Untrue—Expects Issue Later in the Year.

TO PAY CITIES LOAN FEB. 1

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to Get $23,800,000 and Treasury $10,000,000 From French Gov't Resources.

The French Government is not to enter the American investment market with a $100,000,000 loan at the present time, according to a statement issued yesterday by Maurice Casenave, Director General of French Services in the United States. It had been reported in the financial district that such a loan was shortly to be offered, and it still is believed that an operation of this kind will be arranged later in the year for the French requirements in the United States in 1921.

The first of these requirements is the payment due on account of the unsold portion of the so-called Three Cities loan, which will call for $23,800,000 on Feb. 1. This money, Mr. Casenave said, will be provided out of French balances and will not necessitate any immediate financing. The statement which the French official issued is as follows:

"In October, 1919, the cities of Marseilles, Lyons and Bordeaux jointly placed on the American market a loan of $45,000,000, maturing in fifteen years from that date and bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. At that time the French Government undertook to purchase from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who formed the syndicate which underwrote the loan, whatever portion of the loan had not been absorbed by Feb. 1, 1921. The French Government has, therefore, made arrangements from its own resources to pay to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. on Feb. 1 next the sum of $23,800,000, being the value of the securities remaining in their hands at that date.

"On the same date the French Government will pay to the United States Treasury $10,000,000, being semi-annual interest payment on the $400,000,000 bonds of the French Government delivered in payment of materials purchased in France by the French Government from the American Army authorities after the signing of the armistice.

"Concerning the rumors current with regard to a $100,000,000 loan to be made in this country by the French Government, there is no necessity for such an operation at the present time."

GAINS ARE RECORDED IN COMMODITY PRICES

Substantial Advance in Grains—Butter and Eggs Are Reactionary.

In the wholesale markets yesterday, the grains particularly showed a better price trend than that prevailing last week. Wheat advanced 6½ cents, corn 1¾ cents and oats ¼ of a cent per bushel, with flour unchanged. In the other departments of the subjoined list, prices were generally steady and unchanged, with a few fractional declines. In the groceries, coffee and sugar were unchanged; in the dairy products, butter receded ½ of a cent per pound, with eggs declining 4 cents per dozen, to the low for the month. There were no changes in the provisions. In the metals, copper dropped ¼ of a cent per pound, and tin $1.50 per ton. Other metals unchanged. In the textiles, spot cotton was up 70 cents per hundred pounds, with printcloths unchanged.

IN CHICAGO PIT

But Traders Fear the Bulges May Be Only Premonitory of Settled Declines.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Covering by shorts in an oversold market was the main factor in making a sharp upturn in wheat. The trade has the impression that Cutten was the biggest buyer of wheat and corn. At no time were prices below Saturday's finish, with the close at net gains of 3¾@4 cents on wheat, 1⅛ cents on corn, ⅝ on oats, 1½ on rye and ¼ on barley.

There was a little buying of wheat early by houses with seaboard connections. But little was heard regarding export demand during the day, and the only business claimed was 50,000 bushels via the Gulf. Minneapolis sold to the Gulf, and Duluth reported an Eastern call for durums, but quantities disposed of were not given. There is some inquiry developing for No. 2 hard Winter here, for milling and for export, with bids of 25 cents over March, track Philadelphia. Bids, track the Gulf, to the country, for thirty-day shipment, were advanced 1 cent to the basis of 20 cents over March for No. 1 hard or red Winter. France asked for cable refusals on 900,000 bushels wheat, good over night, presumably for shipment to North Africa. It is understood that the demand for 220,000 short tons of wheat from Portugal will be in evidence shortly.

Little attention was paid to the reports that Argentina was offering wheat 8 cents lower than the domestic via the Gulf, as quotations from there must be accepted with reserve until the question of the super-tax is settled. It is said that financial conditions in Argentina are critical, and that, sooner or later, grain must be offered freely, although there is a probability of it being a month or six weeks before the tax decision is announced.

The demand for flour in the Southwest is light, but in the Northwest shows improvement. A car of Canadian dark No. 1 Northern Spring was received here today and sold at $1.84½, or 16 cents over March. The reduction in the resale price of wheat in the United Kingdom is a reflection of the decline in the United States of late and brings quotations down in line with prevailing figures. Dry weather talk in the Southwest has subsided as the result of general rain or snow in Kansas and Oklahoma. Sentiment after the close was mixed, with a majority of traders looking for a sharp break after a small bulge.

Receipts of corn today of 1,562 cars were the largest in over two years, and, while country roads are soft and deliveries from farms to interior elevators very slow, there is nothing to suggest that farmers have sold as much grain as they want to. The bulk of the receipts are from Iowa and the Northwest, Illinois shipping lightly. While a scarcity of cars is reported in some sections, it is not general and will be quickly relieved.

Routine news was ignored. The visible supply of wheat decreased 2,276,000 bushels, making the total 35,678,000 bushels, against 38,154,000 bushels the previous week and 63,182,000 last year. Corn increased 1,879,000 bushels, and is 9,788,000 bushels, against 7,909,000 the previous week, and 3,496,000 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,402,000 bushels; week ago, 1,975,000; last year, 1,426,000. Shipments were 1,022,000; week ago, 1,024,000; last year, 604,000.

Corn receipts were 2,593,000 bushels; week ago, 2,125,000; last year, 1,094,000. Shipments were 792,000 bushels; week ago 823,000; last year, 453,000.

REPORTS PERSIST

Vague Rumors Fill Wall Street of Deal of Some Kind Within a Short Time.

DENIALS FROM DETROIT

Unanimity Among Bankers Here That Undertaking Would Meet With Success.

Much mystery surrounds the Ford financing. Bankers supposed to be interested in the operation say that the whole matter is vague and indefinite and reports from Detroit say that Ford interests there deny that they are contemplating any open market financing. Yet the rumors persist that the financing may be expected within a very short time; if not within the next few days, then within a few weeks.

On one point there is unanimity of opinion. That is, that whatever financing may be undertaken by Mr. Ford or his company will be highly successful. Bankers and bond men feel that a public offering of Ford securities will go very well, and it is said that Mr. Ford would have no difficulties in arranging bank loans.

It was reported yesterday that there would be a meeting of bankers today to talk over details of the alleged transaction, but it could not be ascertained definitely that this was so. One banker, supposed to be in close touch with the situation, said that he knew of no such meeting and that he doubted if any would be held.

The first reports that Mr. Ford was to appeal to the investment market for capital appear to have come from Boston. A banker there who, in the past, has handled some of the Ford financial affairs, is said to have been the man who conceived the idea of consolidating all the paper which the Ford Company has in banks throughout the country into a definitive security offering. This idea, according to reports, met with the approval of some of Mr. Ford's assistants, and the Boston banker, on his own initiative, started inquiry among bankers in other cities to find out how they would feel regarding the plan. Many of the answers which he received are said to have been favorable. But that, according to some of the bankers here, is as far as the matter has gone.

STEEL FORGINGS PAY LESS.

Transue & Williams Shares Earn $9.70, Compared to $7.35 in 1919.

The report of the Transue & Williams Steel Forging Corporation for last year shows net profits after Federal taxes amounting to $670,734. This was equivalent to $6.70 a share earned on the 100,000 shares of stock outstanding of no par value. In the preceding year net profits were $735,988, equal to $7.35 a share.

In the balance sheet of Dec. 31, 1920, plant and equipment was shown at $1,121,123, compared with $991,160. Securities owned declined from $1,853,003 to $1,470,107 and there was a decrease in cash to $82,139 from $260,798. Inventory increased to $1,258,429 from $711,518.

$16,000,000 Bonds to Secure B. & O. Note.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue and pledge bonds aggregating $16,000,000 to secure its promissory note, payable to the Director General of Railroads, for $9,600,000.

WITH RISE IN PRICES

Better tone at Liverpool, and Conditions in the South Show Some Improvement.

The cotton market, after its week of steady decline, began the new week in better condition, and before the session was over had gained back 45 to 65 points of what it had lost in the last few days. There was a better tone at Liverpool, where futures were steadier than they had been at any time last week, and in the South, while the spot markets showed some over-Sunday losses, conditions seemed somewhat improved.

Here there was a big short interest which appeared to be rather anxious to cover at least a portion of what recently had been put out, and this buying, on top of some local trade and foreign purchases, and in the face of a very limited supply, sent the market forward well. There was a good bulge at the opening, and, although the market eased off later, to close where it had ended on Saturday, there was a subsequent rally in the afternoon, and in the final hour this movement became quite pronounced, when prices went to the best of the day and stayed there to the end.

In the trade there was a good deal of difference of opinion as to whether yesterday's rally marked a definite ending to the decline or was merely a natural upward reaction in a falling market. Judged by usual standards, the latter might seem to be the case, but, considering that the market has been taking its inspiration from abroad and that the futures market at Liverpool looked much better yesterday, there were those who thought the decline had run its course and that the near future would see a substantial recovery.

The Census Bureau ginning figures, showing 12,016,465 bales to Jan. 16, of which 417,235 were ginned since the first of the month, were interpreted as substantiating the Government's estimate of a crop of nearly 13,000,000 bales without linters. This, in view of the poor consumption figures which have been coming out recently, might be construed as a "bear argument" were it not for the fact that most people in the trade think the relatively big crop has been thoroughly discounted by this time.

Reserves Highest in Year

At the close of business on January 14, reserve ratio for the entire Federal Reserve system stood at 48.1%, the highest for a period of over a year.

Call money has recently been as low as 4½%.

A continuance of easier money should result in a gradual increase in Bond Prices.

Prudent investors, since the first of the year, have taken advantage of these facts.

Opportune purchases still exist, some of which are described in our letter T.

Why we believe that

Cities Service Co.

Common Stock will sell higher

Regularly paying dividends of 6% in cash and 15% in stock. If the stock dividends are sold around present market price, the return is over 17%.

Earnings reported for the last 5 calendar years show an average of over 40% earned on these shares. Net earnings reported for 12 months ending December 31st, 1920, were $23,997,566 or at the rate of over 43% earned on outstanding stock.

Cities Service Company is one of the largest and most important corporations in the public utility field, also one of the largest interests in the production, refining and distribution of petroleum and petroleum products.

We believe this issue affords a desirable business-man's investment. In view of the record earnings reported for 1920, also the outlook for the current year, we are advising its purchase at present low market price, affording the above mentioned income of over 17%—the stock sold close to $500 a share during 1919.

Many people intimately acquainted with the company's affairs look for very much higher prices before the end of this year. We suggest immediate purchase for its large return and possible great advance in market price. Special circular C-S-T will be promptly forwarded on request.

Buy Cities Service Common Stock for income and profit.

FRANC CONTINUES TO RISE IN FRANCE

Business Men Think Change Is Due to Extension of Credit Abroad to French.

PARALYZES IMPORT MARKET

Dealing in Futures Is Small and at Low Prices—Position of Retailers Worse.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—The dollar dropped another 30 points to 14 francs today, and sterling nearly 2 francs to 52 francs 75 centimes, as compared with 17 francs and 61 francs respectively a fortnight ago. Optimism regarding the conference is given as one of the principal reasons for francs' sudden improvement.

A financial writer in the Journal des Débats says that speculators got scared by the changed outlook and switched from the bear side of the market to the bull. He deduces from that that it is speculation which causes exchange fluctuations—a viewpoint economists here refuse to admit. They claim that speculation can intensify a rise or a fall, but that it is caused by fundamentals of greater importance.

It is whispered in some circles that action by the French Government is behind the recovery in francs, with the object of creating a favorable atmosphere for the conference.

One of the most reasonable explanations to business men here is that the United States, Great Britain and wealthy neutrals are giving the French more credit as the sole means to obtain orders which the high rate of their exchange made impossible for cash. Before the buyers' strikes in their own countries began they did not need to do this to such an extent.

One of the first concrete results of the rise in the franc has been to paralyze completely the markets of imported commodities, which were already in a state of stagnation. Tonight's report from Havre states that spot business is absolutely at a standstill and that there is little doing in futures. Prices, of course, are all on the down grade, but since neither buyer nor seller knows how exchange will go, quotations are little more than nominal.

Spot cotton is down to 260 francs per fifty kilos; wool, 850 francs, as against 1,500 six months ago, and coffee, 125 francs. Futures are all lower still, which might indicate the general expectation that the franc will continue to improve, but it is stated that there is so little genuine business that transactions hardly represent more than gambling by those who think exchange will go up or down and are prepared to back their opinion in cash.

Meanwhile the position of retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers is worse than ever as they see a gulf between raw material rates and the price they must get for their goods in stock if they are to avoid a disaster that grows wider every day.

Reappoint Guaranty Trust Managers

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York yesterday the present Managing Committee, which directs the administrative work of the company's operations as an aid to the President, Charles H. Sabin, was reappointed for the ensuing year. This committee comprises Vice Presidents Albert Breton, W. Palen Conway, Eugene W. Stetson, Harold Stanley and Francis H. Sisson. Through rotation, Mr. Stetson was elected Chairman of the committee to succeed Mr. Breton, who held that office last year.

SALE TO ANACONDA ORDERED ANNULLED

Supreme Court Grants Plea of Alice Mining Company's Minority Stockholders.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Minority stockholders of the Alice Gold and Silver Mining Company won their contest today in the Supreme Court to have annulled the sale of the company's properties near Butte, Mont., to the Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

The minority stockholders claimed that the holders of the majority interest were not authorized to dispose of the holdings against the protest of any of the stockholders. The sale was accomplished by the transfer by the Anaconda Company of $1,500,000 of its own stock for the Alice properties.

The court based its decision on the findings in lower courts that the price was inadequate and said that the fact that no bid was received at a public offering was not evidence that a sale could not have been made at a higher price.

Referring to the contention of the minority that the sale should be annulled because it was negotiated between two directorates having a common membership, the opinion said:

"John D. Ryan, at the time of the sale, was President and a Director of the Alice Company; he was also a Director and General Manager of the Anaconda Company. In 1905 he obtained an option on the majority of the Alice Company stock for $600,000 and carried it until purchased by the Butte Coalition Company, an Amalgamated subsidiary, of which he was a Director, and that company voted a majority of the Alice stock in favor of the disputed sale.

"The record shows beyond controversy that Ryan was the representative of the chief investors in the enterprise, that he dominated the conduct of the practical administrative affairs of the Amalgamated and Anaconda Companies and that he very certainly was in control of the Boards of Directors of the companies which were parties to the sale of the Alice properties.

"The relation of a Director to his corporation is of such a fiduciary nature that transactions between boards having common members are regarded as jealousy by the law as are personal deals between a Director and his corporation, and where the fairness of such transactions is challenged the burden is upon those who are maintaining them to show their entire fairness, and where a sale is involved the full adequacy of the consideration."

The opinion then pointed out that the lower courts had in each case agreed that the price offered for the Alice properties was "inadequate" when their value was considered, and had ordered a public sale before confirming the private transactions.

"Sale under a hammer has come to be synonymous with a sale at a sacrifice," the court remarked in refusing to approve this method of establishing adequacy of consideration offered for the property.

John D. Ryan, Chairman of the Board of the Anaconda Copper Company, declared that the Supreme Court decision was of little importance since the Anaconda company owned 95 per cent. of the stock of the Alice Gold and Silver Mining Company.

$12,000,000 OIL SYNDICATE.

Island Oil Stock to Be Taken Over, Two Shares for One.

The Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation, which obtained by litigation Island Oil stock of $5,250,000 par value, $4,000,000 of which was distributed to Metropolitan stockholders, and which also obtained cancellation of $1,000,000 outstanding debentures, will be succeeded by the new Metropolitan Petroleum Syndicate, to be capitalized at $12,000,000. The syndicate will take over and develop Mexican oil properties. The stock will not be listed or offered to the public at this time.

The first opportunity to join this syndicate has been extended exclusively to former Metropolitan stockholders. They can exchange Island Oil on the basis of two shares of new Syndicate for one share of Island Oil. All former stockholders preferring to pay cash may make subscriptions at $2.50 a share. This offer ends March 1.

ADVISE LIQUIDATION OF WELLS FARGO CO.

Directors Tell Stockholders That the Express Business Cannot Possibly Be Resumed.

LIABILITIES ARE $24,362,664

Board Says Stock Value Depends on Shares Held in American Railway Express Company.

In a statement of the condition of the Wells Fargo Express Company as on Dec. 31, 1920, the Directors have advised stockholders that it is the opinion of the board that under no circumstances would it be advisable for the company to resume the express business, and that the interests of the stockholders would eventually best be served by liquidating the company. The Dec. 31, 1920, figures show that the company holds bonds of a market value of $8,358,087, stocks $705,596, notes and the like $976,671, Wells Fargo Nevada Bank stock $3,000,000, cash $72,223, real estate and other property $708,354, interest, rents and dividends receivable $157,697, American Railway Express Company stock, par value $10,466,700. Liabilities were capital stock outstanding $23,697,400, bills and accounts payable $50,294, and $615,000 contingent liabilities.

The statement draws attention to the fact that the valuation of the company's stock depends largely on the value to be placed on the American Railway Express stock held, the latter representing properties and cash turned over to the American Railway Express when it was organized. Continuing, the statement reads:

"Prior to Aug. 31 application was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to continue the unit operation of the express business by the American Railway Express Company and by the railroads for the approval of a proposed standard contract with that company to become effective Sept. 1, 1920. Recently the Interstate Commerce Commission has in substance granted both applications and a contract has been made between the railroads and the American Railway Express Company.

"Adjustment of the company's outstanding accounts from operations prior to June 30, 1918, has been vigorously pressed. Some are, however, of a nature which will require additional time to dispose of, and these are all included in the item of $615,000 contingent liabilities."

Steps will now be taken, as contemplated by said Plan and Agreement, to organize and vest in the new company the title to the properties it is to acquire.

To The Stockholders

MIDDLE STATES OIL Corporation

January 24th, 1921

Your Company is now completing its fourth year, as shown by its annual report just presented to you. Your management may take pride in briefly comparing the conditions at the end of four years' constant care and effort, with the beginning as shown by the first six months' operation.

Your daily earnings are multiplied by two hundred and thirty-four.

Your assets value is multiplied by eighty-six.

Your outstanding stock is only multiplied by seventeen, while nearly one-half of the increased stock has been given in free allotments to the stockholders.

Your cash dividends, payment of which began three years and four months ago at one-half of one per cent. monthly, later increased to one per cent. per month, and later to one and one-third per cent. per month, have never been delayed nor decreased, nor paid otherwise than in spot cash.

Your Company began four years ago with eleven stockholders, nine of whom are still living, and have not diminished their interest in your company. Today there are over eight thousand five hundred stockholders.

Your Company management has been enlarged, but never changed.

Special Congratulations

The Company's assets belong to you stockholders free and clear of encumbrance. No bonds; No notes; No bills; No accounts payable; simply current operating accounts.

No person who bought his stock from the Company, even at the highest price of twenty-five dollars cash for a ten-dollar share, and kept his free stock allotments has ever seen a day on the New York Stock Market when he could not sell his holdings at a good profit, even in this long year of constant money stringency when many valuable stocks have sold at panic prices, regardless of intrinsic values.

AMERICAN SMELTING REPLIES TO EILERS

Directors Praise Influence of Messrs. Guggenheim in Letter to Stockholders.

CHARGES CALLED UNJUST

Simon Guggenheim States That He and Wife Own $3,000,000 of Securities.

The management of the American Smelting and Refining Company, in sending out the notice of the annual meeting of stockholders, which will be held in Jersey City on April 6, accompanies the call for proxies with a reply to the charges of mismanagement leveled against the Guggenheim interests by Karl Eilers. Simon Guggenheim, President of the company, states that his wife and himself own over $3,000,000 par value of the securities of the company of which $2,800,000 represents stock ownership. In addition there is a statement on behalf of the Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company which tells of the prior relationship of Mr. Eilers with the company and which answers various charges of mismanagement which he has made.

The statement of the Directors says:

"The charges which have to do with the marketing of copper (the word 'gambling' is used) are incorrect, misleading and grossly unjust. The essential facts are stated by Mr. Newhouse in the pamphlet mentioned, to which you are again referred for an account of what was actually done. What Mr. Eilers says on the subject is an illustration of the inconsistencies into which he is led in his desire to convict the management of some wrongdoing. In his petition, he complains loudly of alleged losses resulting from a course of action compelled by the existence of certain selling contracts, while in his latest statement he complains, just as loudly, of alleged losses resulting from the termination of those contracts, although such termination will permit the company to follow a selling policy which he advocated in his earlier statement, and which it could not otherwise pursue.

"Any losses in marketing copper were not due to any change of policy, but were the inevitable outcome of the sales agency arrangement under the abnormal and unexpected conditions created by the war. The basic vice of the sales agency as developed by war conditions was the pro rata feature, under which this company could only sell its copper in the same proportion that the mining companies sold their copper. This feature the mining companies, though repeatedly urged by this company, would never consent to forego.

"It is worthy of note that even Mr. Eilers does not question the fundamental soundness of the company's position, the assured permanency of its business, its industrial and commercial stability, its enviable credit, and its assured earning power under normal conditions. This company, like virtually every other company the country over, is going through a period of great industrial and commercial depression, involving lower earnings, large cash absorption and reduced operations. It would be absurd to hold the management of the company responsible for this condition of affairs. Yet this time is chosen to make a wholly unwarranted attack, which has unnecessarily depressed the market value of the company's securities. There is nothing in the present situation differing in principle from similar periods of depression and financial stringency, notably those of 1907 and at the outbreak of the war in 1914. In each of these cases the metal industry was among the first to revive. There is every reason to believe that a similarly early revival will follow from the present depression; such is the confident belief of the management.

"The management of this company has been faithful to the interests of its shareholders; it has served no other interests; its record has been free from any taint of dishonest or selfish exploitation; it has earned the confidence of stockholders, not only because of its clean record, but by reason of results accomplished.

"As to the influence of the Messrs. Guggenheim and the value of their services, the outstanding fact is that their association with the company has been coincident with the great growth and signal success of the corporate enterprise. The signers for themselves and for their fellow directors, desire to record their belief and conviction that the part taken by the Messrs. Guggenheim in the management of the company and its affairs, has been the greatest single factor contributing to the company's growth and prosperity, and that it would be most unfortunate if the company should now be deprived of the benefit of the extraordinary commercial and financial vision and ability they possess."

This statement is signed by all of the Directors of the company.

PROFIT OF 12.42% FOR SEARS-ROEBUCK

New Form of Annual Report Makes Comparison With 1919 Record Difficult.

NET INCOME IS $11,746,670

$11,516,545 "Sales by Factories and Other Income" Not Explained in Statement.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—The annual report of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Chicago mail order concern, for the year ended Dec. 31, 1920, to be made public tomorrow, is compiled in a new form, which makes analysis and comparison with the previous year's record difficult.

In explanation of the new form the following statement was issued:

"This being the first consolidated annual statement, attention is called to a change in the method of itemizing. In previous annual statements only the net worth of the Seattle and Dallas houses and the various factories owned by the company appeared under certain captions. In the present statement the entire assets and liabilities, including the Philadelphia house, opened October, 1920, are allocated under their appropriate classifications."

The current report shows net income of $11,746,670, equivalent after preferred dividends to 12.42 per cent. on the average of $90,000,000 common stock outstanding, this stock having been increased on July 1 from $75,000,000 to $105,000,000 by payment of a 40 per cent. stock dividend. Net income in 1919 was $18,880,125, equivalent after preferred dividends to 24.44 per cent. on the $75,000,000 common stock outstanding during that year.

On the score of earnings the report would seem to indicate that the company incurred little loss from the severe depression in business during the last half of the year, as net earnings for the first half of the year were reported in October, when the company marketed an issue of $50,000,000 notes, as having been $15,447,285 after interest charges, but before Federal taxes had been paid.

The statement of the company's inventory offers something of a surprise in view of the general practice of merchandisers to reduce stocks of goods in the last few months and to mark down inventories. The inventory, which, the report says, is carried at "cost or market, whichever is lower," on Dec. 31 was valued at $105,071,243, compared with $98,264,470 on June 30 and $42,685,776 on Dec. 31, 1919.

One of the unusual items of the report, as it was received in New York, had to do with "sales by factories and other income." This amounts to $11,516,545, and has no counterpart in the report of the preceding year. With this item included, the gross business was $245,273,418, showing a decided increase over the 1919 report. There is no explanation in the financial statement to account for the big increase in "other income." The balance sheet shows current assets of $165,018,951 and current liabilities of $106,680,074.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—7½@7¾ per cent. for the best names.

Saturday—7½@7¾ per cent for the best names.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Offers Novel Millinery Straw.

A novel material for millinery is being used here by one of the best known houses in the trade. It is called tweed straw cloth and is made of visca and wool woven together. It is light in weight and crushable, and specially adaptable for use in sport hats. In addition to being used for hats, the material is also employed in the manufacture of scarfs, hats and bags, which are trimmed with flowers and fruits of worsted. The same manufacturer is showing automobile hats of soft colored kid and rubberized silk.

No Convention for Clothiers.

The convention of the National Association of Clothiers, scheduled for Feb. 16, 17, and 18, will not be held, as a result of the threatened dissolution of the organization. A meeting of the association Directors later in the week, however, will actually settle upon future action. This conference was previously postponed awaiting the arrival of [illegible], a Director and former President. Meanwhile, no action has been taken with respect to the Credit Bureau of the organization, which continues to function awaiting a positive future policy.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

Trading in gray goods was very light in the market yesterday, said to be due to the "fed up" condition of most buyers for the time being. Even the rise in cotton did not stimulate the demand. Printcloths were nominally firm on the basis of 8⅝ cents for 38½-inch 64 60s, although it is understood that some odd lots of this construction were moved at slightly less than that figure. In the sheetings further business was placed in [illegible] goods, for nearby delivery at 7⅞ cents, while 5.50s sold at 6¾ cents for similar shipment. Buyers of sateens paid 14¼ cents for some nearby [illegible] 64-104, 4.20-yard cloths.

Merchandise Show Opens.

The twelfth semi-annual Spring merchandise exhibit of the Interstate Exhibitors Corporation, showing a wide range of popular priced articles, was opened yesterday in the roof garden of the Hotel Pennsylvania. It was explained that the efforts of the exhibitors have been especially directed toward bringing down prices to levels which should prove attractive to buyers. A canvass of the [illegible] by an executive of the exhibition indicated, he said, that prices have been brought down 60 per cent. from peak values. It is planned later in the week to hold a luncheon at which various merchandise men will outline conditions and prospects.

Shoe Trade Picking Up Again.

Since the annual meeting of the shoe retailers at Milwaukee recently there has been a noticeable picking up in the demand for Spring footwear. While the advance orders on the books of the manufacturers and jobbers are by no means up to where they were at this time a year ago, indications are strong now that a better season will be enjoyed than appeared possible a month or so ago. Not only has the call for Spring shoes been [illegible], but buyers have also been operating [illegible] merchandise for immediate delivery [illegible] in special sales. In [illegible] the business booked in that way [illegible] has been so large that factory accumulations have been well cleaned up.

Toy Fair Opens Here Soon.

About 350 manufacturers of American playthings [illegible] display their wares to buyers at the [illegible] fair that will [illegible] the Hotels Imperial, [illegible] Square and continue until March 15. Most of the exhibits will be at the Imperial, where over 250 lines of toys, games and similar holiday merchandise will be shown. About fifty manufacturers will show their goods at the [illegible], and about half that number at the [illegible] Square. The steady growth of the domestic toy trade and the marked improvement in the quality of its products in the last several years have given [illegible] importance to the annual displays, and the attendance at the forthcoming fair promises to be the largest on record.

St. Louis Fur Sale Set Back.

Postponement of the opening of the forthcoming fur sale at St. Louis from Feb. 7 to Feb. 21 was announced yesterday by the International Fur Exchange of that city. Several reasons were said to be responsible for the change, among them the need of more time in which to transfer to the concern's new building, where the sale will be held, the merchandise to be sold, and to prepare the sample lots. It was said to be a physical impossibility to do this in time to put the goods on show at the time originally announced. Principal interest in this market at the moment centres in the position the Exchange will take in regard to selling out the equities of some 300 fur dealers who either shipped to or bought at the April sale. Indications were yesterday that some kind of settlement might be effected.

Why Sales Should Increase.

From the standpoint of one ready-to-wear manufacturer, there is no danger in the public getting oversupplied with clothing. The point he made was that when prices were high both men and women debated with themselves the expenditure of the amount required to replenish their wardrobes. "When $100 or $150 was asked for a garment," he said, "the consumer just balked, and denied himself even what was necessary. Now, when either of these sums will cover the cost of several articles, the individual expenditure will run even higher. Thus, the woman who would not spend $150 for a suit will now pay $90 for it, buy a dress at $50, shoes for $10 and several waists at $10 a piece. That has been the experience of the stores, and argues against reaching any so-called saturation point of purchases."

What Normal Prices Are.

Objection is taken by one wholesale dry goods representative to the common understanding of what constitutes normal prices. The general opinion, he says, is that pre-war prices are normal prices, which is a mistaken notion. Until all expenses, including labor, are back to pre-war rates there is no possibility of normal values being restored if pre-war values are to be considered normal. It would be much better, he thinks, to explain normal prices as those which are made on the basis of cost and the usual profit percentage. The increases being made in certain lines now he explained as advances covering, not larger profits, but a cost and profit return figured on a normal basis. The effort is also being made to recover the overhead expense paid out during the period of idleness.

Government Shared Losses.

As a partial explanation of the quick rebound of values which has recently featured operations in many dry goods lines, a manufacturer yesterday drew attention to the factor of taxes. What was true of the stock market, he said, was likewise true of wholesale markets. "When inventory time came along," he added, "many manufacturers found they had made large profits in the early part of the year, necessitating the payment of heavy taxes. It was seen that the Government could be made to share any loss taken on sales during the closing months of the year, and manufacturers made prices and sold goods on a basis that would greatly reduce their taxes. When the year closed, no further operations of this kind were profitable, and values consequently stiffened, the manufacturers having established their losses for tax purposes."

Retailers' Union Declares Chances for Further Drop Are Slight.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Retail prices generally are not coming down, but are already at that stage, according to members of the Retailers' Commercial Union, which opened today a week's convention here. As evidence they pointed to price lists issued by the association, showing manufacturers' prices of the present, as compared with a year ago.

The retailers said that, in view of these facts, chances for further reductions were slight. Emphasizing the converse, they declared that price advances were not in sight.

Prices taken at random from the comparative list included the following:

Fine dress gingham, yd.	$.55	$.15½
Women's serge suits, good grade, well tailored	40.00	27.50
Serge dresses, all wool	15.00	8.75

Cheaper grade coffee, lb.	.19	.10½
Navy beans, per cwt.	8.75	4.35
Choice rld. oats, 20 lb. bgs.	6.60	2.85

CRUCIBLE STEEL CO. IN $2,000,000 LEASE

Closes Contract With National City Co. for Two Floors on East 42d Street.

BUILDING BEING ALTERED

Old Manhattan Hotel Will Be Reopened April 1 as Bank and Office Structure.

The Crucible Steel Company of America, now located at 2 Rector Street, has closed contracts with the National City Company for the lease of two entire floors in the old Manhattan Hotel, on the northwest corner of Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue, at an aggregate rental of over $2,000,000.

This is one of the largest and most important leasehold transactions in the Grand Central Station zone since the National City Company took the old Hotel Manhattan over from the Bowman interests on a long term lease early last Summer.

The hotel, one of the most famous of the modern structures in the Central zone, closed its doors to the public soon after the lease was consummated, and the National City Company started on Aug. 1, 1920, to remodel the entire fifteen-story structure into a modern high-class banking and office building.

Since that time a large force of men has been working day and night to carry out the extensive alteration plans, and, according to the statement of an official of the National City Company, the remodeled structure will be completed and ready for occupancy on the first of next April.

At the present time the building is over 60 per cent. rented on long term leases, and it is expected that every foot of available space will be taken before the work is completed next April.

The Crucible Steel Company's lease calls for the entire twelfth and thirteenth floors of the building, and it is understood that the company will abandon its Rector Street quarters and centralize in the structure which has been renamed the National City Building.

The fourteenth floor of the building is to be occupied by the Uptown Club, while the National City Company will occupy the ground floor for banking quarters. A large portion of the basement will be occupied by the National City Safe Deposit Company.

Several other big leases in the Grand Central Station zone are pending at the present time, one of which if closed will equal if not surpass in the aggregate rental the one just closed in the National City Building.

The Grand Central Station zone is by far the busiest spot on Manhattan Island today from a construction standpoint. No fewer than half a dozen big buildings are in course of construction at the present time within a radius of a few blocks of Grand Central Station, while a number of equally large and important ones are planned.

Among the most important of the structures now being built is the seventeen-story building being erected directly opposite the National City Building by the Fred T. Ley Company, Inc., the twenty-story Madison office building on Madison Avenue from Forty-third to Forty-fourth Street, the Ambassador Hotel on Park Avenue between Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets and the two seventeen-story co-operative apartment houses occupying the two entire block fronts on Park Avenue between Forty-eighth and Fiftieth Streets.

In addition, a twenty-five story building has been planned for the Pershing Square site opposite Grand Central Station on Forty-second Street. The Bowery Savings Bank will also erect a branch bank on Forty-second Street opposite the Hotel Commodore, and a new office building has been planned for Park Avenue by Robert W. Catts, who recently secured Grand Central Palace on a long term lease and is now remodeling it into a modern banking and office building.

Morgan Shepard purchased from William R. Paters the four-story dwelling at 33 West Forty-ninth Street, on a lot 22 by 100. Douglas L. Elliman negotiated the transaction.

Sale on Cortlandt Street.

The four-story commercial building at 70 Cortlandt Street, adjoining the northeast corner of Washington Street, has been purchased from Max Marx by L. Harris & Son (David E. Cohen proprietor), dealers in plate and window glass, for occupancy. It was held at $70,000. George R. Read & Co. were the brokers.

The four-story building at 193 Bowery, plot 25 by 100, has been sold by Hiram Rinaldo for I. Shulman & Son to Cohen Brothers. It was held at $45,000.

Lease by N. Y. Central Railroad.

The Brown, Wheelock Company has rented a suite of offices on the tenth floor of the Central Square Building, formerly the Grand Central Palace, to the New York Central Railroad, to be used for its accounting department.

Realty Notes.

Senator William M. Calder will speak tonight to the real estate class of the West Side Y. M. C. A. on "The Development of Property for Housing Purposes.

E. Sharum was the buyer of the fourteen-story loft at the northwest corner of Cherry and Pelham Streets from the Central Union Trust Company.

BRICK MAKERS MEETING.

A New Wall That Greatly Reduces Cost to Be Demonstrated.

The third annual convention of the Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America will be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania from Jan. 31 to Feb. 3.

A feature of the convention will be the demonstration of a new idea in brick work which greatly reduces the cost of the completed wall.

According to a member of the association: "No new shapes or sizes of brick are required to produce the 'ideal wall,' consequently no expense or changes are necessary on the part of the manufacturers in their plants. It is simply a new idea applied to an old and long-tested commodity, by which the cost of the completed wall is reduced from 25 to 35 per cent., according to the thickness and the stresses it is required to withstand.

"It also does away with furring on the inside, which has always been a necessary precaution on every type of masonry to guarantee dryness. It further reduces the quantity of brick required, and there is a corresponding reduction of the mortar and labor to produce a certain wall area. In tests actually made this new type of brick wall has been erected at a cost less even than frame and far below every other known type of masonry or permanent construction."

Catholic Club Yonkers Purchase.

The dwelling at 132 Locust Hill Avenue, Yonkers, has been purchased by the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, to be used as a club for Catholic girls and women of Yonkers. The property is assessed at $41,750. The club is to be conducted on the pattern of the Carroll Club of New York.

The building was the gift of the late William F. Cochran to his daughter, Anna C. Ewing, on her marriage to Thomas Ewing Jr. It was recently sold to Joseph Holt. It is beautifully located at the corner of Ashburton and Locust Hill Avenues, having an extensive view of the Hudson River. The frontage is 140 feet on each avenue. The firm of Thomas S. Burke acted as broker in the transaction.

Suburban Trading.

George W. Melick has sold the three-story building at 1 South Street, Morristown, to Edward L. Hearn of Elizabeth, who also bought the stationery business conducted for six years by G. M. Lamberts, on the ground floor. Eugene V. Welsh was the broker.

Warren estate for a long lease on the property at 1,591 to 1,597 Broadway, and 205 and 207 West Forty-eighth Street, forming the northwest corner. Four-story buildings cover the plot, which has a frontage of 95 feet on Broadway and 106 feet on Forty-eighth Street.

The buildings will either make way for a new structure or will be altered. The negotiations were closed through Rice & Hill and Richard Lee as brokers.

Tax Service Essentials

SOMETHING more than ordinary equipment is necessary to render adequate and complete tax service.

To install accounting systems with an eye to tax matters

—to interpret daily transactions in relation to tax liability

—to insure complete consideration of every possible issue

—to give to such issues the correct interpretations

—and finally to prepare and file on time the actual tax return

—all call for a service especially organized and equipped.

We believe we have such a service.

BRINES FACES TRIAL IN DREWES MURDER

Prosecution Alleges He Had Quarrels With Dartmouth Senior Over Money.

THREE WITNESSES HEARD

Jury Is Selected After Philadelphia Judge Bars Women for Lack of Accommodation.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—The prosecution disclosed today at the opening of the trial of William F. Brines, sophomore of the University of Pennsylvania, accused of the murder of his chum, Elmer C. Drewes, Dartmouth senior, that it will contend that the motive of the killing was a grudge of months, resulting from differences over money.

James Gay Gordon Jr., Assistant District Attorney, presenting an outline of the case to the jury, said:

"The Commonwealth will show that the dead boy and this defendant were friends and that they had business relations together last Summer and that there was animosity and quarreling between them in respect to certain moneys.

"The Commonwealth will further show that the defendant, before the killing of Drewes occurred, had told persons of his animosity toward the dead man and of his intention to do him bodily harm, and that at that time he communicated with the dead man in Dartmouth College in order to get Drewes to come here."

When Brines was led into the room his widowed mother rushed up to him, threw her arms around him and kissed him. It was the first time mother and son had seen each other since Oct. 25, when Brines was surrendered by his counsel, following the finding of the body of Drewes in a secluded spot on the outskirts of the city on the morning of Oct. 17.

The day was devoted to the drawing of the jury, the opening address of the attorney for the Commonwealth and the hearing of three witnesses.

It took exactly two hours and a half to select the jury from the forty-two talesmen examined. Judge Ferguson ruled that none of the jurors should be women, after he excused Lizzie Lopez of West Philadelphia, the fifth of the panel to be drawn. The Judge said he would not permit her or any other woman to be selected, because there were no accommodations for women overnight and the law provided that the jury should be kept together.

AIRMEN BREAK POWER OF THE MAD MULLAH

Somaliland Ruler, Long a Menace to the British, Said to Be Utterly Crushed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—"Complete destruction of the power of the 'Mad Mullah,' the native ruler of Somaliland, Africa, and for thirty-four years a problem to the British authorities, was accomplished within three weeks by fewer than 250 airmen and eleven fighting airplanes, according to an official report on the operation just received here. Bombed out of their strongholds the natives were pursued and all the leaders except the Mullah were captured or killed.

HOLD SHIP'S OFFICER AS DRUG PEDDLER

Arrest in Riverside Drive Club After Fight Reveals Smuggling Ring, Says Simon.

After nearly strangling a detective of the Narcotic Division of the Police Department, Charles Mills, 35 years old, a first assistant engineer of the Porto Rico Steamship Company, was arrested in the Merchant Marine Officers' Club, 152 Riverside Drive, at 10 o'clock last evening charged with selling drugs.

Deputy Commissioner Carleton Simon, in charge of the Narcotic Division, who directed the capture in person, said that the arrest confirmed his suspicions of a smuggling campaign by marine officers and their crews, "even down to the cabin boy." It also corroborates information received by him last Sunday, he said, that some $300,000 worth of drugs was hidden on a tanker anchored off Stapleton, S. I.

Detective Irving Higgin, under Commissioner Simon's orders, entered the Merchant Marine Officers' Club just before 10 o'clock and met Mills there. Posing as a drug addict, he negotiated for "dope," and, then revealing his identity, placed Mills under arrest. The man sprung upon him, grasped him by the throat and had nearly strangled him when another detective, Herbert Moog, who was waiting outside, rushed in and struck Mills on the head with his nightstick.

This failed to relax Mills's hold on Higgin's throat, however, and only when Moog drew a revolver did the prisoner give in. Search of the room was then made, and a package of drugs, which Commissioner Simon said was worth about $3,000, was found. Mills was then taken to Police Headquarters.

Last Sunday afternoon Commissioner Simon received information that a large quantity of smuggled drugs were on board a tanker off Staten Island. Rounding up his men and summoning a Government agent from the Dock Commissioner's office, he hurried by taxi and police launch to Stapleton, where he was busy gathering information which led to last night's arrest in the club on Riverside Drive.

At the Merchant Marine Officers' Club, which is on the Drive just north of Eighty-seventh Street, it was said that the captured man was not a member of the club.

SEES BIGGER EUROPEAN DEBT

Prof. Warren Thinks $20,000,000,000 Will Be Owed Us by 1924.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. — Europe's debt to the United States will be increased to $20,000,000,000 by 1924, George F. Warren, Professor of Economics at Cornell University, declared today at tariff revision hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee. This sum, he said, would include the $9,600,000,000 wartime borrowings from the American treasury.

Professor Warren estimated that European business now owed American concerns nearly $4,000,000,000, and he said that Europe must send her products to this country irrespective of import duties. He especially urged tariffs on farm products, which, he said, could be turned out more cheaply overseas than here.

Giving it as his opinion that the rate of exchange would not improve for some time, Professor Warren said that the rate would tend to increase the European debt. The danger in the situation was that the countries deeply in debt might resort to dumping their commodities in the United States regardless of price.

BONUS TO RHODES SCHOLARS

Temporary Increase of £50 a Year Made to Meet Living Costs.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—Temporary increase of the stipend granted to all Rhodes scholars from £300 to £350 a year was announced today by Frank Aydelotte, American Secretary of the Rhodes scholarships.

The statement says that the Trustees regard the additional £50 as a bonus and not as a permanent addition to the scholarship, because they cannot be certain either of the value of money in future years or of their own capacity to continue the payment indefinitely. At the same time they wish it clearly understood that the bonus will not be withdrawn without adequate notice and certainly not in any case where a candidate has been elected in expectation of receiving it. It is proposed to pay the bonus in two half-yearly instalments of £25, beginning in mid-Summer of this year.

It is pointed out that there is no suggestion that even this stipend of £350 is sufficient to meet the increased living costs, and candidates are warned in the Statements that they may well need some small addition to it from their own resources.

Are You Speculating?

It is sometimes great sport, but it is expensive. One ought to risk in the game only what he can afford to lose.

The money one has to keep safe should not be risked in fluctuating securities. Put that into Guaranteed First Mortgages on New York City real estate.

There is nothing safer. The return is good and they are certain to be paid at par.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The relations between the European Allies and the United States will be discussed at the International Conference now being held here. This decision was taken today on the suggestion of Premier Lloyd George who had previously ordered Ambassador Sir Auckland Geddes to come to Paris during his (the Premier's) stay here. Sir Auckland will give the conference all the information with which he is supposed to be very well equipped as to the American attitude and the plans of President-elect Harding with regard to European affairs.

It is stated tonight that the discussion will take place under three heads: First, the attitude of the United States with regard to the League of Nations; second, the attitude of the United States with regard to the debts of the Allies, and third, the general attitude of the United States toward the Allies and toward Germany.

In addition to the report of the British Ambassador at Washington it is expected that there will be available a report which Ambassador Jusserand has been asked to draw up on the same subject.

Information and Guidance Sought.

It is not to be supposed that the discussion will result in anything very definite. What the Allies are really seeking is information and guidance which will help them. Actually they feel themselves very much in the dark concerning future American action, and at the same time they feel the difficulties of negotiating with President Wilson for fear of compromising themselves with the next Administration.

Their present task of trying to strike a balance sheet of Europe they feel will be helped by getting facts which will enable them to see where Europe stands on the world balance sheet. For instance, they hope the Ambassadors will be able to give them some definite indication of Senator Harding's attitude toward the allied debts, and whether he intends, as they believe he does, to substitute long term credits for the present system. Certainly they feel they can not come to any final decision on the reparations matter and the method of payment without knowing what treatment America is likely to mete out to them in turn.

In bringing the matter forward in this way Lloyd George also hopes that he will get the French more into line with his policy by showing them clearly their position with regard to America and the world balance sheet. Further, he is anxious to find out what attitude the other allies are likely to adopt toward the League of Nations proposals of the next President, and all are interested in knowing what Mr. Harding's attitude will be toward peace with Germany and whether or not the rights of the allied countries under the treaty of Versailles are likely to be compromised.

These are all questions on which the Allies are eagerly seeking information, and by the answers which Sir Auckland Geddes gives their policy in many matters may be to some extent regulated.

As already stated, nothing very definite is likely to come of the immediate discussion, but it is assured that the matter will be again taken up at another conference to be held in London next month, when the American attitude toward the Near East question will also be in all financial questions during the next three months there will, too, be the necessity for consulting American opinion, and it is intended as soon as possible to ask the United States Government to designate some one to confer with the Allies.

Britain Against Loan to Austria.

The task of undoing the work of the Paris Peace Conference was continued this morning when the Allied Ministers took up consideration of saving what the Peace Conference left of Austria. The French favored the project of extending a credit of $250,000,000 to Austria, but Lloyd George objected, saying it would not offer a basic remedy for that country's condition. The work of drafting a plan of aid was handed to a commission composed of Sir Robert Horne for Great Britain, M. Loucheur for France, and Signor Giannini for Italy.

According to the official Agenda tonight the Prime Ministers will begin tomorrow discussion of the difficult question of reparations. There is wide divergence among the statesmen on this problem. The allied military experts have finished their report on the omissions of Germany in fulfilling her disarmament promises and the conference may also consider this report tomorrow.

The French press today expresses great disappointment that the question of disarmament was not settled yesterday.

Doctor Would Nationalize Canadian Medical Profession

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Jan. 25.—Urging nationalization of the medical profession, former Mayor Heth of Kitchener, himself a doctor, declared in an address today at Welland that about 50 per cent. of operations now being performed were unnecessary.

He advocated placing doctors under Government salary and educating the public by a system of lectures on hygiene.

MILAN, Jan. 25.—Another tragic epidemic of rioting broke out yesterday in many cities of Northern and Central Italy.

At Modena a public funeral was being accorded to a young Nationalist student named Ruini who was murdered there on Sunday in a Socialist ambush, when Socialist rowdies intervened to upset the procession. Rifles were fired and bombs rained on the cortège from the windows and roofs of the General Post Office, where the Bolshevist faction is particularly strong.

Two Nationalists were killed outright, and twenty-two participants in the procession, mostly young people of both sexes, were wounded by bullets.

Toward evening a savage reaction set in. Infuriated demonstrators smashed their way into the offices and private residences of reputed Bolsheviki, making complete wrecks of the interiors. Tons of furniture, books and documents of every description were thrown into the streets for bonfires. The fine City Chamber of Labor was delivered to the flames, and its utter destruction was hastened by large masses of explosives. The firemen had a difficult task in preventing the flames from ravaging the entire quarter.

Modena is now under military occupation.

At Bologna a Royal Guard was barbarously assassinated.

A long list of dead and injured comes also from Perugia, Piacenza, Ferrara and Novara.

MODENA, Italy, Jan. 25.—The Socialists have declared a general strike.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Owing to the grave situation in the Provinces of Bologna and Modena, in the latter of which three persons were killed in a fight between Socialists and the Fascisti, Premier Giolitti has ordered the revocation of permits to carry arms. The Premier has directed the Prefects to arrest any person found in the possession of arms, which must all be surrendered to the authorities.

Señor Ayulo said he placed his pocketbook on his dressing table and that his wife put her jewels in the drawer of a table in her room. The jewels and money were gone on Monday morning. The police say the thief entered the apartment through Señor Ayulo's bedroom door.

7 Men in Seaplane Marooned 15 Hours By Ice in Raritan Bay; Rescued by Firemen

Special to The New York Times.

KEYPORT, N. J., Jan. 25.—Seven men who went aloft in a seaplane test flight, preparatory to a "hop" to Miami, Fla., had many thrills that began when they started to descend at 11 A. M. yesterday and ended shortly after 2 o'clock this morning—fifteen hours later.

After the flying boat had been up two hours, Pilot Cy Zimmerman discovered that the waters of the Raritan Bay air station had become choked with cakes of ice. He landed in that part of the bay which seemed most clear—about fifteen hundred yards from shore. One wing of the machine tilted into the water and in a few minutes was frozen fast. A thirty-mile wind blew spray over the seaplane and the entire fuselage and the other wing soon were sheathed in ice.

When the predicament of the seven men was discovered on shore, A. C. Cambbell, F. Bailey and A. Johnson tried to rescue them in a motor boat. The boat got a few feet off shore when the rudder broke and the rescuers had to rescue themselves. Two other attempts to send a boat to the frozen seaplane also failed.

Meanwhile Zimmerman and his companions, E. Sanborn, assistant pilot; H. Maurese, J. Vigni, D. Harriman, H. Kaufman and G. Spring, huddled in the fore cabin of the fourteen-passenger seaplane, trying to keep warm in a four-above-zero temperature. At nightfall the Keyport Fire Department was called out. The firemen brought a searchlight, and under its glaring rays strove to rescue the airmen from the elements.

At 1 o'clock this morning a motorboat started out again. Bucking the ice with almost every revolution of its propeller, it approached the plane. When at last it came alongside the seven men jumped aboard. They were taken to Raritan Inn, where hot food and drinks were served to them. They appeared none the worse for their experience.

The plane would be saved, it was said tonight, and repairs made in time for the flight to Florida to be made this week.

ENVOYS COMPLETE JAPAN AGREEMENT FOR GOVERNMENTS

Recommendations Will Now Go to Cabinets for Their Approval.

WOULD END DISCRIMINATION

Alien Land Laws the Same for All—Immigration Stopped by "Gentlemen's Agreement."

ATTACKED IN TOKIO DIET

Opposition Speaker Assails Government For Its Alleged Diplomatic Failure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Negotiations between Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, and Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, in which an effort was made to settle the California alien land question and define the rights of Japanese in the United States have been successfully concluded. The recommendations of the Ambassadors await approval by the respective Governments.

These negotiations began in Tokio early last year, and for the last six months have been in progress in Washington. The conversations between the two Ambassadors had virtually reached the point of informal agreement before the Christmas holidays, and since the first of the year Ambassador Morris has been preparing for consideration by the State Department a report with recommendations which he has now completed. Baron Shidehara also has been at work on his report to his Government, with recommendations. It coincides with the recommendations that Ambassador Morris is making.

The conclusions reached by the two Ambasssdors are only tentative until approved by their Governments. Whenever such approval is given, it is expected the agreement will take the form of treaty amendments, to be submitted for ratification, and of a supplementary "gentleman's agreement" on Japancse immigration.

Secretary Colby, who returns to Washington this week from South America, will carefully consider the Morris report, and, if satisfied with what has been done and the Japanese Foreign Office approves the recommendations of Baron Shidehara, the proposed agreement will be submitted to President Wilson, to decide whether he will submit it to the Senate at the present session or pass over the result of the negotiations to President Harding. In any event, the matter is expected to be held in abeyance by the Senate until after the new Administration is inaugurated.

Japan is especially desirous that there shall be no discrimination against Japanese subjects in the United States. This object is sought to be reached, in the tentative understanding, by amendment of the existing commercial treaty. This amendment proposes that Japanese nationals in the United States shall be accorded civil rights equal to those accorded other nationals in this country.

It is not the idea that the Japanese in the United States shall be admitted to American citizenship, but that their civil rights shall not be subjects of discrimination. To give effect to this part of the proposed treaty amendment it is understood to be contemplated that California and other States embarking on alien land ownership laws shall frame them so as to make them applicable alike to all aliens. If this is done, the present California alien land law aimed at Japanese would be amended or repassed, with broadened scope, so as to make it applicable equally to all aliens. With such an arrangement it is understood Japan would be satisfied, through the removal of what she regards as direct discrimination against Japanese in California.

The present "gentlemen's agreement" between this country and Japan, under which Japan agreed to send no more immigrants to this country, permits dependent relatives of Japanese who are already in the country to come to the United States. The proposed modified "gentlemen's agreement" would exclude all Japanese from immigrating to the United States and also bar them from immigration into the Hawaiian Islands. It would not be intended to bar the temporary admission of travelers, students, tourists and others of like status. The new agreement, however, would not prohibit Japanese immigration to the Philippines.

The Morris-Shidehara recommendations to their respective Governments also deal

Plot to Kill All Dry Agents In North Alabama Charged

FLORENCE, Ala., Jan. 25.—A plot to exterminate the entire force of prohibition enforcement officers operating in northern Alabama has been unearthed, according to State Supervisor N. L. Pierce. Discovery of the plot, he said today, followed the arrest of eleven persons in connection with the killing last Saturday of Don Stephenson, a member of a prohibition squad, and the wounding at the same time of two other officers.

Mr. Pierce declared there was reason to believe that State and county officers, as well as Federal, were marked for annihilation.

THREATS TO STOKES END IN MAN'S ARREST

Letters Demanded $500, Hinting That House Would Be Blown Up by Bomb on Refusal.

CAUGHT TAKING $20 BILL

Prisoner Boasted That He Had Got Money From "Five Millionaires."

Nils Gustav Rehnstrom, a young Swede, was seized in the office of W. E. D. Stokes last night in the act of extorting money by threatening letters.

Mr. Stokes called detectives after he got two letters. The first was signed "All Our Reformed Burglars." It bore rude sketches of a sputtering bomb and a building in ruins, and threatened dire consequences unless Mr. Stokes handed over $500 in $10 bills, which the writer promised to repay. The letter said that the plotters already had wrung money from "five millionaires" and had repaid two.

The second letter was thrust into the mail box yesterday at Mr. Stokes's office, 262 West Seventy-second Street, after he had failed to heed the first, sent by mail. It offered him "another chance."

Rehnstrom battled hard for freedom after detectives of the West Sixty-eighth Street station had grabbed him while he still clutched a $20 bill which Mr. Stokes paid him "on account" when he came to the office just after 6 o'clock. When Detectives Leonard and Golding had subdued him, he said that his act was inspired by two men he recently had met in a restaurant in Times Square. He refused to say whether he had intimidated other rich men, as his letter boasted.

Lost His Job Up-State.

Interrogated in the West Sixty-eighth Street Station before he was locked in Police Headquarters on a charge of extortion, Rehnstrom, who is 17, and said that his father was a Police Chief in Sweden, told the police that he came to New York a few weeks ago after he lost his job when an up-State lamp works closed. He found no job here, he said, and owed a week's board at 230 East Eighty-fourth Street. The police found no money on him and nothing to back up the boast that his extortion scheme had been successful before. He was unarmed and had no weapons or bomb materials in his room.

The first letter, received by Mr. Stokes on Monday and dated Sunday, said beneath the drawings of destruction:

"Bring fifty $10 bills to Central Park and Fifty-ninth Street, behind the big monument, at 9 o'clock, Monday, Jan. 24. Will pay back every cent with 5 per cent. interest. In two months you will have your money back. Don't tell anybody about this note for if you do? If you don't come along to the place? Something will happen to your office or your home or yourself. Remember, will pay you in nine months, so burn envelope and note at once and look upon it as a simple loan. This will be the first and last note to you, so be there in time or (see above). We have already written to five millionaires and repaid two. All will be repaid. This is the last note forever three of us are sending you, so leave your weapons at home.

"All Our Reformed Burglars."

The second letter was dated "Tuesday, 6 P. M. Tonight." It was written on silver-bordered paper, a supply of which was found in Rehnstrom's room. It read:

"One More Chance."

"Didn't meet you last night, but will give you one more chance. Be alone at your office at 262 West Seventy-second Street at 6 o'clock. Send away your secretary and don't tell him anything. Will repay you in seven weeks with $500 and full interest. T. S

"P. S.—Don't ever tell anybody."

Mr. Stokes dismissed his three employes about 4:30 and waited alone in his office on the first floor of the house, with a high stoop, formerly a private dwelling. One detective hid behind the storm doors in the vestibule, the other waited on the street.

Rehnstrom rang the bell and readily admitted to Mr. Stokes, who opened the door, that he was the author of the letters.

"I'm sorry I can't pay it all now, but here is $20 on account," said Mr. Stokes, as he handed over the bill. "I'll pay you the rest tomorrow."

As the Swede's fingers closed on the bill the detectives seized him.

The police believe that Rehnstrom did not have any accomplices, and that he learned Mr. Stokes's name through recent publications of a petition to the Supreme Court asking for permission to file a fourth complaint in his suit for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes. The suit is to be heard next month.

The resolution also called upon miners in every country to suppress overtime.

SCHWAB ON STAND WEEPS AS HE TELLS OF MEETING MORSE

REFUSED TO VISIT MORSE

Voice Chokes When Witness Again Denies Government Paid a Cent of His Expenses.

OTHERS CORROBORATE HIM

Grace to Produce Photostat Copy of Books Showing $100,000 Went to "Profit and Loss."

Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and formerly Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, wept when testifying yesterday before the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations in the Hotel Pennsylvania. He again denied that he ever had received a penny from the Government either in payment of his salary as a "dollar a year" man or in reimbursement of expenses incurred as Director General.

Mr. Schwab gave way to his emotions when describing a meeting between himself and Perley Morse last Friday at the Hotel St. Regis. The meeting, he said, had been arranged by Edwin Wildman, managing editor of The Forum.

Mr. Schwab said he was dining at the Hotel Pennsylvania with Mr. Grace and Mr. Moore. They were approached by Mr. Wildman, whom he had met. Mr. Wildman said he was a friend of Perley Morse, and had read Mr. Schwab's testimony denying charges that $100,000 of a $269,543 voucher for Mr. Schwab's expenses had been charged to the Government as ship construction cost. Mr. Wildman felt that if an injustice had been done Mr. Schwab, Perley Morse would be ready to acknowledge any mistake on his part.

Meeting Arranged by Phone.

Later in the day Mr. Schwab said he received a telephone message from Mr. Wildman, who suggested that Mr. Schwab come to Mr. Morse's office to talk the matter over. Mr. Schwab replied that he would not go to Perley Morse's office under any circumstances. Then Mr. Wildman suggested that Mr. Schwab meet Mr. Morse at the Republican Club. Mr. Morse has rooms there. Mr. Schwab said he refused this, but suggested that Mr. Morse see him at the Schwab residence. Mr. Morse refused. Then Mr. Wildman put Mr. Morse on the wire, and it was agreed that Mr. Morse and Mr. Wildman should meet Mr. Schwab, Mr. Grace and Mr. Moore in the Hotel St. Regis.

"At that interview," continued Mr. Schwab, "I said to Mr. Morse what I had said to Mr. Wildman—that the facts which I had related were true, and that I was now at the end of a long forty years' business career, and that it was a matter so indescribably deep in my heart to be charged with something of that kind that I hoped he would correct it. He would not do it. He said there were explanations and reasons"—

At this point Mr. Schwab was unable to control his emotions. He wept.

"I hope you will excuse me, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee," he said, as the tears rolled from his eyes.

"I can't help making this reflection at this time," broke in Representative Foster. "As a member of this committee I want to express on the record my appreciation of the manner, Mr. Schwab, in which you have introduced evidence concerning this voucher; and aside from my membership on the committee I want to express my appreciation as an American citizen of the service you rendered in the recent war."

Applause Greets Foster.

"There is no jury to affect, or court to be influenced, but I say that out of an appreciation of the situation I feel that I am compelled to give expression to it."

"I thank you very much," said Mr. Schwab.

Before Mr. Schwab was dismissed he was asked by Chairman Walsh whether he had made any effort to stop the Perley Morse audit of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's accounts. He said he had not.

As the witness was leaving the stand, Congressman Foster again thanked Mr. Schwab for his voluntary appearance before the committee, and two other committee members told a reporter for THE TIMES they were convinced that Mr. Schwab had not received from the Government any money for his expenses while Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. They would not discuss the regularity of the so-called "misapplied items" said to have been discovered by Perley Morse & Co., replying substantially as did Chairman Walsh, that their conclusions would be made known when the committee filed its report. The report must be submitted before March 4.

Mr. Schwab's distress took the members of the committee as well as the spectators by surprise. The silence in the room seemed intensified as the witness tried to regain his composure. Chairman Walsh bit his lips, betraying his own feelings by moist eyes and flushed cheeks. Several of Mr. Schwab's close friends were affected similarly.

The reaction was all the more unexpected because Mr. Schwab had appeared at the hearing in the morning

MILLER REBUFFS HYLAN IN TRACTION PLEA; SAYS STATE ONLY HAS REGULATIVE POWER; LAWMAKERS LIMIT LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

Governor's Traction Plan Will Hand Mayoralty To Hylan on a Silver Platter, Says LaGuardia

F. H. LaGuardia, the Republican President of the Board of Aldermen, in an address at the Textile School last night said:

"If the Republican Party stands back of Governor Miller the result will be, you will find, that the Governor will hand the Mayoralty to Mayor Hylan on a silver platter in the coming election. Let's not dodge that.

"We all (the members of the Board of Estimate) received quite a shock when we read Governor Miller's remarks on the transit situation. It's the most daring suggestion as a solution for the transit situation of New York that was ever set forth.

"I told the Governor that I was stunned, that I had not yet caught my breath. I told him that I do not think he realizes what it means. It means this:

"First, it means the taking away from the City of New York the power to pass upon the fare question entirely. Secondly, it takes away from the city all jurisdiction and control or say in any traction matter except to put out money for new subways.

"The Governor said that the 'water' had already been squeezed out of the various companies. That statement is startling, coming from a man as careful as Gove nor Miller. I state positively that none of the water has been squeezed o t.

"The plan is to unite all the companies and let the new Public Service Commission fix the fare. It means that in a few years these companies, then united as one, will be exactly in the same plight and then the Governor suggests that the city can take these companies over and they can be all municipally owned.

"No matter what increased fares you give these surface car companies, they simply can't operate. They are gone now.

"The city does not want to take over this junk. I suggested in my annual message that all the companies should be put under one operating company and must first strike off their books all obsolete equipment and rotten financing, and then they can operate, because then they are not artificial carrying charges.

"When the Governor says there is a lot of 'loose talk' about home rule, that remark is flippant and entirely unbecoming. He is liable to get a rather rude awakening and find that the people of New York are determined not to lose control of their own affairs."

REFUSE FULL POWER TO LOCKWOOD BODY

Legislative Committees Cut Out Investigation of Banks and Insurance Companies.

LOCKWOOD RAPS ACTION

Says the Change in Resolution Blocks Housing Committee's Most Important Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Simultaneous action was taken today by the Senate Finance Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee to chop out of the resolution introduced by Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings in his quest for power for the Legislative Housing Committee to investigate insurance companies and banks, the provision delegating such power.

The amended resolution will be reported in both houses of the Legislature at the session tomorrow. Senator Lockwood in a statement issued tonight declared that the action of the committees would have the effect of crippling the Housing Committee in its future work.

Here is the Senator's statement:

"The amended resolution reported today by the Senate Finance Committee by a vote of 7 to 6 cripples the work of the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing. The committee sought to do three things:

"First—To meet the crisis existing in April and September, 1920, it advocated the so-called rent laws, the passage of which prevented thousands of evictions and curtailed rent profiteering.

"Second—To expose the unlawful combinations which were preying upon capital and labor alike, thus adding from 20 to 100 per cent. to the legitimate cost of building materials. This work is well under way and has resulted in many indictments and some pleas of guilty. It is hoped to complete it within the next few weeks.

"Third—To find a loan market so that mortgage money would be available at reasonable rates. The housing crisis can be solved only by the erection of more houses. They cannot be built without mortgage loans. The Federal and State income tax laws have made real estate mortgages an undesirable investment for individuals and estates. We hope to show that mortgage money could and should be obtained from the corporations who are favored by the State and Federal tax laws and in whose hands interest on mortgage loans is exempt from taxation. The amended resolution in a large measure prevents the committee from pursuing this line of inquiry which, after all, is the most important of the three."

The resolution in its amended form does not contain any provision for the investigation of insurance companies and banks. It grants it this new power, for what it is worth:

"To inquire into the practices and usages with respect to the making and withholding of real estate and building loans, and the cost payments and expenses involved in making and obtaining such loans."

The committee is given the power it seeks to grant witnesses immunity from prosecution that might grow out of testimony given before it. This is regarded as important by both Chairman Lockwood and Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel of the Housing Committee. Many witnesses, according to Senator Lockwood, could not be induced to tell the committee what they knew regarding criminal conspiracies to obstruct

CRAIG OPENS FIGHT ON MILLER PROGRAM

Says Traction Plan Would Mean Return to Days of Jacob Sharp.

FORECASTS COURT ACTION

Delaney Denies Water Is Out of Securities—Democrats Welcome Issue for Campaign.

A legal fight by New York City against the proposed solution of the traction problem made by Governor Nathan L. Miller in his message to the Legislature was forecast yesterday by Controller Charles L. Craig. Mr. Craig condemned Governor Miller's proposal and declared that its adoption would mean a return to the days of "Jacob Sharp, Peter B. Sweeney and others," and "would repeat the last two generations of crooked finance, exploitation of innocent investors and intolerable and indecent service."

Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney also assailed the Governor's proposal and denied the Governor's statement that the water had been squeezed out of the traction company's securities.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said he believed the only hope of solution of the traction problem was along the lines suggested by the Governor. Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, and Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, declined to comment.

Generally, Democratic politicians, while denouncing the Governor's message, welcomed it as framing an issue for the city campaign. It has long been recognized by the Democratic leaders that Mayor Hylan's greatest apparent political asset is his opposition to an increased fare, and the general belief among Democrats is that he can be reelected on this issue.

Leaders Not to Oppose Miller.

Local Republican leaders, although not willing to be quoted for publication, made it clear that they do not intend to oppose the Governor's suggestion, although individual legislators may do so. Although not accepting the increased fare issue as yet, the Republican leaders were said to be willing to face the risk of temporary unpopularity, in the belief that time would show that a just arrangement was possible along lines suggested by the Governor.

Sig Cedarstrom, former real estate expert of the Public Service Commission, and now Chairman of the Transit Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, said the traction problem in New York City would never be solved until there was a physical valuation of the traction properties and the fare based upon this valuation instead of upon securities issued. Mr. Cedarstrom said the fare should be fixed so as to provide for the expenses of operation and a fair return on the physical value. He said the traction situation in Brooklyn was the greatest obstacle to the development of that borough.

In his statement, opposing the Governor's program, Controller Craig said:

"Governor Miller's proposed solution of the fare question is a step backward of fifty years. More than half a century ago the City of New York was ravaged by the Legislature in the grant of perpetual franchises to Charles W. Durant and others over Governor Morgan's veto, and to Jacob Sharp, Peter B. Sweeney and others, to occupy the principal streets of the City of New York. For

WON'T SUPPORT BUS LINE

Miller Deaf to Mayor and Borough Presidents.

OPPOSES PIECEMEAL MOVE

Governor Calls Talk of Invasion of Home Rule Result of "Loose Thinking."

DEFENDS STATE CONTROL

He Declares Present Difficulties Are in Part Due to Divided Responsibility.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Governor Miller this afternoon told Mayor Hylan and other members of the New York Board of Estimate that no violation of the home rule principle was involved in State control of traction in New York City, as proposed by the Governor in his message to the Legislature. Any contrary opinion, he said, was "loose talk," caused by "loose thinking."

The New York City officials, including Mayor Hylan, President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen, Borough Presidents Curran of Manhattan, Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Connolly of Queens and Bowe of Richmond, and Corporation Counsel O'Brien and Mr. Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, came to the Capitol primarily to urge the Governor to ask the Legislature promptly to enact a bill which would permit the Board of Estimate to purchase, own and operate buses.

A similar measure was introduced at the extraordinary session of the Legislature last year and was passed by the Senate but was beaten in the Assembly. The Governor told the New York City officials that he did not approve of their scheme and that, unless his views on the subject underwent a radical change, he would not comply with their request.

All day the Governor's traction message has been the topic of animated discussion among the lawmakers and in official circles at the Capitol. The boldness of his approach to the problem from an angle that is bound to prove unpopular in New York City, even among a host of men and women belonging to the Governor's own party, was the subject of laudatory comment even from those who are opposed to his program and prepared to fight it in the Legislature.

It looks now as if the plan proposed by the Governor, unless substantially modified, will meet with the solid opposition of the New York City delegation in the Senate and Assembly, regardless of party lines. On the other hand, indications point to a united stand behind the Governor on the part of the up-State legislators of whom, with only one exception, all are Republicans. That should enable him to put his program through, for only 23 out of 51 Senators and 62 out of 150 Assemblymen represent constituencies in New York City. There is in addition one Democratic Assemblyman from up-State, representing an Albany district.

Mayor Hylan and the other city officials arrived in Albany this afternoon. The Governor received them in the Executive Chamber, where with great earnestness they presented their plea for legislation to permit city-owned and city-operated buses to relieve congestion and cater to sections in Brooklyn and elsewhere where operations have been suspended by the traction companies. The Governor did not utter a word until all had spoken. What the Chief Executive had to say then was pronounced by one of the officials to whom his remarks were addressed as "more than a mouthful."

Much of what the Governor said undoubtedly was provoked by earlier utterances by Borough President Curran of Manhattan. He strongly backed the demand of Mayor Hylan for the right to run buses, and questioned the justice of an expression embodied in the Governor's message in which he characterised as "loose talk" much that had been said upon the subject of home rule in its relation to the traction problem in New York City. Borough President Curran voiced the opinion that home rule had been "underdone" rather than "overdone" in New York City.

Calls Opponents "Loose Thinkers."

The Governor began by saying that the very visit of the city officials and their request were so much evidence that the traction situation in New York City had drifted beyond their control to a point where it was necessary to apply a potent corrective. He said the city was not suffering on account of a subway problem but as the result of a problem in which all the methods of transportation entered as elements that must be correlated by some single body, equipped with ample powers of regulation.

"The Borough President of Manhattan has challenged my expression of 'loose talking' on this subject of power of regulation of public utilities," the Governor went on. "With all respect, and I recognize the right of every one to differ with me, I think that there is not only loose talking, but loose thinking about it, and that the talk of invading or taking power from the city, which is suggested, is the result of loose thinking, both historically and legally.

"Of course, I have just dealt with this subject in a message to the Legislature. I have suggested that it be dealt with as a single problem, and what I have recommended to the Legislature is not that the State shall assume some power that it now is not exercising, but that a tribunal shall have the complete power to deal with the problem, and my view is that the present difficulties are due, in part at least, to the fact that responsibility is now divided among at least three agencies where I think there should be but one.

"Now, the truth is that it will be impossible to find anywhere, either in any constitutional provision or in any statute, a delegation to any municipality in the State of power over public utilities. The truth is that that power arises, and has created this confusion of thinking leading to what I call loose talking, from an entirely different power. The constitutional provision in the Constitution of 1875, which required the consent of municipalities to the laying of tracks in streets, the "local consents," as they are called, was not a delegation of any power of regulation over public utilities. It imposed a condition precedent to the construction that there should be local consent, and under that the localities imposed conditions because they had a right to refuse the consent.

"Now, from that fact there has grown up what I call the loose talking—that in some way it is proposed to take power away from the municipalities.

Denies Invasion of City's Powers.

"I say the State never had the power because there is no delegation of power that can be found within the statute or in the construction of regulation of public utilities. These special franchises were granted at a time when the State was not exercising its police power over public utilities. It first began to exercise it, in a formal way, with the old Railroad Commission, but it never undertook to exercise it in complete fashion until the Public Service Commission Law of 1907 was passed. For the first time in this State, in 1907, was there any complete case or attempt to exercise the power of regulation of public utilities. Now, it never resided anywhere else. It is no more an invasion of the power of municipalities than it was the State may so with respect to anything else.

"The fact is that what I have proposed in my message is not that any power should be taken away from the cities that was ever in the cities, but that the State shall for the first time completely exercise that function of the police power over public utilities which it has never exercised.

"What I am trying to do is to deal instead of dealing with this problem piecemeal, instead of having two or three agencies, one of the other to look the other, that a competent tribunal shall be created and clothed to investigate the whole subject and determine what is the plan to put into transportation problems in the City of New York on a proper basis, to deal with it without ulterior motives, either political or otherwise, and to deal with it in such fashion that it will not be necessary for the city to come here and ask for weapons of defense; to deal with it in such fashion that no body shall be satisfied that it is dealt with on the level in the interests of the people.

Curran Pleads for Home Rule.

"I think it is unfortunate that it gets into such a state that either one side or the other feels it must have a weapon of defense, and I think the time has come to deal with the proposition on the level, with no ulterior motives whatever, and to deal with it not with the notion that somebody has got to be defended, but that the public interest has got to be defended. I think that can be accomplished by a single tribunal. I do not think it can be accomplished by the continuation of divided authority. If it is to be accomplished by one tribunal, it is perfectly clear to me it must be that tribunal which can exercise that power, the police power of the State, which resides in the Legislature.

"Entertaining that view, I shall have to consider very carefully the question before I should recommend that the Legislature deal with the bus problem alone, because I think it must be dealt with after a complete study has been made of the whole problem, and I believe the buses should be made to serve their purpose, whatever it may be decided to be; the surface lines theirs to the extent they may be utilized, in the ways the same and the elevated the same. So I may as well frankly say that, unless I change my present view, I shall not recommend to the Legislature to deal with this problem piecemeal."

Borough President Curran, in his remarks, pointed to the successful management by the city of its complex water system as proof that it was capable of going one step further and operating traction lines.

"The city," he said, "should have this weapon of defense to enable it to deal successfully and at arm's length with companies looking for franchises. We need the power and properly should have it.

"There should be no body clothed with the superseding powers suggested by Your Excellency in the message. We have invested $300,000,000 approximately in subways and are proud to say that but for the World War the lines would be operating now with satisfactory results, at least from a bookkeeping point of view.

"We have grown considerably in our capacity for self government in New York City, and I do not think it should be assumed for a moment that the power to manage our own affairs should be taken away from us now. Home rule has been underdone rather than overdone in New York City, and should apply in particular to such a partnership as has been established by the city in connection with its traction lines. I have made a study of this subject for many years and I have discovered that the objectionable, perpetual franchises that are troubling us now were granted by State Legislatures. I do not think we need any State interference to settle our partnership affairs. It would be tantamount to turning the clock back seventy-five years to a time when Governors appointed the Mayors of New York City."

Mayor Hylan, in his plea, called attention to the fact that the Board of Estimate had appropriated $1,000,000 for the purchase and maintenance of buses, but had been restrained by the Supreme Court from operating them in some localities in Brooklyn.

"We feel that if the law is made more definite and we are given the right to own and operate buses we can do a great deal toward relieving the traction congestion in the city," said the Mayor. "Reports from the Department of Plants and Structures satisfies us that buses can be operated successfully on a five-cent-fare basis. I am confident, from a first-hand study of the question, that the time is not far distant when buses will take the place of surface cars generally. We have no intention, however, of paralleling existing lines, and the bill we propose will be safeguarded accordingly."

Hylan Refuses Comment.

All the other city officials named briefly indorsed what the Mayor had said. Commissioner Whalen said that existing city buses, operating on forty-six routes established to meet emergencies, had been patronized by 75,000,000 persons.

What the Governor said virtually took the breath from the Mayor and his colleagues on the Board of Estimate. They marched up Capitol Hill jauntily. When they marched down they were a dejected lot. Mayor Hylan declined to comment on the Governor's speech, nor, he said, would he make any comment on the message until he had given it more detailed study. Mr. LaGuardia told the Governor that when he read the message it stunned him and he had not recovered yet.

Borough President Connolly of Queens was the only member of the Mayor's party who would consent to say anything for publication regarding the message.

"The Governor certainly is to be admired for his courage," he said. "He certainly goes all the way. There is no doubt that the message means an invitation to the traction people to help themselves to an eight-cent fare. But I do not think that, even if the Legislature should subscribe to the Governor's plan, the courts will. The city has made contracts which are binding and cannot be abrogated by legislation. Any laws that are passed along the lines suggested by the message, in my opinion, will be held unconstitutional."

"Do you think there is any justification for fare increases?" Mr. Connolly was asked.

"There may be on some lines, but not generally," he replied. "The Governor's suggestion that the city take over the surface lines with the subways certainly is taking the lean with the fat, but Father Knickerbocker, poor old man, is used to kicks and cuffs from Albany."

Earlier in the day the Governor was told that many of the New York City legislators undoubtedly would vote for his plan if they could be assured that the fare rate would be limited to 5 cents.

"That reflects a state of mind bordering on insanity," said the Governor. "In my judgment the paramount question is one of service, not of fares. If the people would view the problem in that light they would find out that before long they would be paying less than 5 cents."

The Governor noted that his recommendation for municipal ownership did not mean that he was in favor of municipal operation of traction lines.

"It would be difficult to evolve a unified system if half of it were owned by private interests and half by the public," he said. "The city has already adopted a plan of municipal ownership, and it owns that which must be the backbone of a future unified transit system, but municipal operation would be absolutely fatal to good service and proper economy alike, so we must have private operation, with strict public regulation. So I expect to get the necessary legislation to put some plan into effect if the Governor was asked.

"I am not prophesying," the Governor added.

MENOCAL NOT RESIGNING.

Cuban President Denies Rumor—Public Optimism Grows.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 25. President Menocal tonight silenced the rumors of impending resignation which had disturbed Cuba since Friday by issuing a statement saying:

"It is so absurd that I do not wish to take up a moment of my time worth I need the time to continue defending the great interests of the country."

It had been prophesied at noon that the Senate would act upon his letter of resignation during the evening. The capital has been seething with rumors and the prolonged conference yesterday in which General Crowder participated was even said to have been concerned largely with the proposed withdrawal of the President.

A Presidential resignation would be a calamity here as a form of intervention. Administration heads and friends have said since the first rumor of the impending resignation of the President that it was a canard circulated by the Liberal Party. The Liberal papers continued tonight to predict that it is coming.

The Government's administrative machinery is moving faster now than for several years, and public opinion is generally coming to the point of putting the credit to the presence of General Crowder, silent, aloof and extremely businesslike.

The fact that the Washington Government gave out encouraging reports about General Crowder's work here was accepted today in many circles as indicating that the situation would be cleared without intervention by the United States and that the financial crisis would be settled by a recommendation at an early date for a substantial loan by American bankers.

building because the committee could not assure them of immunity.

One important, and, according to Senator Lockwood, far reaching excision made by the two committees has eliminated from the grant of power to investigate the construction, ownership, leasing, and renting of stores and office buildings, language that would constitute the committee the sole judge of when such an inquiry is necessary, and left that a question of fact which persons anxious to obstruct the work of the committee may take into court. When Mr. Untermyer appeared before the two committees last week he emphasized the necessity of the original provision for the purpose of shutting off obstructive litigation.

The Senate and Assembly committees also decided to eliminate in its entirety Clause 6, under which the State Superintendents of Banks and Insurance would have been required to co-operate with the Lockwood committee in furnishing data relating to the operations of banks and insurance companies.

Mr. Untermyer told the committees that these officials had voluntarily given their co-operation so far, and that it had proved exceedingly valuable.

The amended resolution was adopted unanimously by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, but it had a bare majority of one in the Senate Finance Committee.

AGAIN ATTACKS MAYER AND GARRISON

Senator Burlingame Decries Payment of $125,000 to B. R. T. Receiver.

ASSAILS THE RECEIVERSHIP

Brooklyn Legislator Asserts That It Was Granted on Unpaid Claims of Only $46,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Rising to a question of personal privilege at the session today, Senator Ivah W. Burlingame Jr. of Brooklyn made another attack on United States Judge Julius M. Mayer and the Federal receivership established over the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines.

Declaring that unpaid claims of only $46,000 led to the receivership, he questioned the propriety of throwing a public utilities corporation into the hands of a receiver on such slender grounds. He asserted that Lindley M. Garrison, named by Judge Mayer as receiver, had personally benefited to the extent of $125,000, which he had received as part payment for his first twelve months' services on orders issued by Judge Mayer, who also had authorized the payment of $131,000 to a firm of certified accountants which, Senator Burlingame said, made a specialty of certifying to losses sustained by large corporations which gave it a retainer.

Ostensibly Senator Burlingame arose to accept the characterization by Receiver Garrison as a joke of the movement begun by a number of legislators from Brooklyn and Queens to put an end to the Federal receivership of the B. R. T. lines.

"Substantially all the Senators and Assemblymen from Brooklyn want to see an early termination of the "friendly receivership" that permits the Brooklyn traction companies to defy all State laws and to treat the public worse than so many cattle," said the Senator.

"When interviewed regarding the discussion in the Senate, Lindley M. Garrison, the Federal receivor, assumed the usual B. R. T. attitude—one of utter contempt. Mr. Garrison seems to think he is so strongly entrenched, backed as he is by the Federal court, that he says the matter is a joke.

"Of course, I am not surprised that he says he does not know me, for he knows scarcely anybody in Brooklyn, and he knows nothing of Brooklyn affairs. You see, until recently I was a Federal officeholder, a resident of another State, and only lately he took up his residence on Park Avenue, Manhattan.

Payments to Garrison.

"But we in Brooklyn are learning very fast about Mr. Receiver Garrison and his friend, the Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, also of Manhattan.

"The Brooklyn traction company and their 'friendly creditors,' it seems, sought out Judge Mayer when they wanted a receiver appointed. They did not go to the two local Federal Judges, but on the theory that the Brooklyn traction companies maintained a little office over in Manhattan, for reasons of their own, they took the matter to Manhattan. These creditors had only $46,000 worth of unpaid claims.

"Maybe the Brooklyn Federal Judges would have laughed them out of court for their audacity in attempting an equitable receivership on such a comparatively small amount; or maybe the public can guess the reason. Also remember that no one, the traction companies, the creditors nor Judge Mayer, considered the company bankrupt.

"The proceedings were not ordinary bankruptcy proceedings; they were what are known as "equitable receivership" proceedings—and every one concedes that there was a reason.

"Within the first year Mr. Receiver Garrison, a lawyer and not a practical railroad man, and his office assistant, received $125,000 as 'partial payment' for services out of the receivership brought on a claim of $46,000. And I am not mentioning the bill for 1920 for the bills for expenses of Mr. Receiver Garrison. That is a matter that deserves future attention.

"Perhaps Mr. Receiver Garrison considers the receipt of $125,000 in twelve months, 'on account' as a joke. Maybe when his full bill is presented it will be by comparison, a joke. But the people of Brooklyn will not consider it a joke. They have paid this, five cents upon five cents, for the privilege of standing in the overstuffed cars of the B. R. T. Two million five hundred thousand passengers paid that standing tribute to Mr. Receiver Garrison.

"Now, let us take just one other item at the expense of the straphangers of Brooklyn. May be this is the joke. Stone & Webster, a concern that claims to be expert in showing how much corporations are losing—particularly traction corporations—have received the modest sum of $131,000 to show how much the Brooklyn traction companies are losing. For this $131,000 for an expert to tell a $125,000 receiver how much the companies are losing under the receivership. But that is only a sample of the way 'equitable receiverships' are conducted.

Demands Investigation.

"It is time that the Senate passed the resolution introduced by my colleague, calling for an investigation into these matters, and prompt action should follow to end these intolerable conditions that are so contemptuously and sneeringly characterized as a 'joke.'"

Senator Gillard T. Dyell of Westchester protested when Senator Burlingame finished speaking.

The legislators from Manhattan and the Bronx, who were invited to join their colleagues from Brooklyn and Queens, but organized separately to take action regarding the New York Railways receivership which affects those boroughs, were to have met today, but postponed their meeting until next week.

COAL FIRM INDICTED; PROFITEERING CHARGED

Douglas Barnes Corporation and Two Officers Named in Sale to Foreign Buyers.

The indictment yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury of the Douglas Barnes Corporation, dealers in coal, and of Douglas Barnes and Joseph Weinhandler, President and Treasurer, was described by Government officials as the first of several proceedings against coal firms on charges of having swindled foreign buyers. The indictment against the Barnes corporation was prepared by William McMurtrie Speer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, on information furnished by the Tidewater Coal Exchange and several coal dealers. It was charged that the defendants, on June 12 last, sold 3,600 tons of coal to Jensen & Cox for delivery in Copenhagen at $32.75 a ton, which the Government alleged represented a profit of $6.29 a ton. It was set forth that a fair profit would have been not more than $1 a ton. It also was alleged that the defendants misrepresented the grade of coal sold, delivering a product little better than dust. It was pointed out that the export coal business runs into hundreds of millions of dollars a year, and that because of strikes the bulk of England's foreign coal trade was coming here, which we would be unable to retain unless our coal merchants dealt fairly.

It was said that one small and practically unknown firm had made a profit of $300,000 in two months by profiteering and misrepresentations.

RADICALS DOOMED 1 TO DIE.

18 Awaiting Deportation Declared Repentant Member a Spy.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The action of some of the eighteen alien radicals now at Deer Island awaiting deportation in passing a sentence of death on one of their number caused their confinement to cells today.

Demetrio Ivankiw, the man marked for death, was separated from the others. He had apparently undergone a change in his views, voiced his opinions among his fellows, and as a consequence, according to the master of the house of correction, a committee tried him as a spy. The death sentence was declared and the committee bound itself to see that it was carried out as soon as the party reached Russia.

COX AT WHITE HOUSE TODAY

Former Democratic Candidate to Have an Interview With President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio will be received by President Wilson tomorrow at 11 o'clock, it was announced today at the White House. This will be the second visit of the former Democratic Presidential candidate to the White House, the first having been made soon after Mr. Cox was nominated at San Francisco last July.

Mr. Cox continued today to receive calls from Democratic leaders and other friends in Washington. He and Mrs. Cox plan to remain here several days.

HUNTS POLICE GRAFT IN GARMENT STRIKE

Whitman Questions Employers Regarding Payments for Protection and Hire of Agencies.

EX-CAPTAIN UNDER FIRE

Prosecutor Says Trail in Automobile Graft Leads Further Than He Had Supposed.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, as special prosecutor in the inquiry into city departments, presented to the additional Grand Jury yesterday evidence bearing on police activities during the garment workers' strike, and involving particularly a retired police captain, who, it is alleged, accepted unlawful fees for protection. No indictments were returned. Mr. Whitman said that the taking of testimony might occupy the entire week.

Difficulty in getting witnesses was said to have been one of the reasons for the failure to return indictments yesterday. The witnesses are chiefly employers in the clothing industry, who, it is understood, were questioned regarding payments to the police for protection during the strike, and also concerning the alleged connivance of the police with private detective agencies whom the manufacturers were induced to hire.

The police officials involved are said to have been in a precinct on the lower west side. Big fees are alleged to have been paid in this particular precinct for strike prevention. The methods of the manufacturers during the strike were complained of recently to District Attorney Swann by Sidney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, but the present inquiry is said to be based on other information than that given by Mr. Hillman to Mr. Swann.

Mr. Whitman said last night that the charges of widespread graft in the Police Department as a result of the recovery of stolen automobiles had led much further than he had supposed. Adjusters of several insurance companies were examined yesterday regarding this phase of the inquiry. Several produced records, including account books and canceled checks.

"Where the cars are taken out of the State," Mr. Whitman said, "the Federal authorities can take charge of the matter to much better advantage than we can. It is hard to point to cases of strikes the bulk of England's foreign coal trade was coming here, which we would be unable to retain unless our coal merchants dealt fairly.

It was said that one small and practically unknown firm had made a profit of $300,000 in two months by profiteering and misrepresentations.

the Legislature now to attempt such retrogressive action would be to turn back and repeat the last two generations of crooked finance, exploitation of innocent investors, intolerable and indecent service and prostitution of home rule and municipal ownership and operation.

"Governor Miller's suggestion that the foundation should now be laid for municipal operation some time in the remote future means that for another half century the people of New York City will be fair game for stock jobbery and manipulation. It is as though, he said, this gold mine should be municipally owned but privately mined.

"The remedy for existing conditions is not to perpetuate the control of Belmont, Berwind and Brady with an increased fare, but to terminate each and every contract that the rapid transit companies now hold to operate lines that are the property of the City of New York. Upon the termination of such contracts every innocent investor whose money has gone into the property and enured to the benefit of the City of New York may receive full recompense therefor. Out of the revenues that may thereafter be derived by the city from its municipally owned and operated lines all the extensions that may be required can be provided.

"It must not be overlooked that a 10-cent fare would take from the people of New York City a tribute of approximately $125,000,000 per year in excess of the fares now paid. Within four years this would provide more than enough money to pay off all of the city's obligations issued for rapid transit purposes and every dollar of private capital invested in such lines.

"The people of the City of New York will never tolerate the administration and control of an investment of approximately $400,000,000 of their own money in the subways by any public body or commission that is not directly responsible to the people of the City of New York.

"Any legislative attempt to strip the City of New York of its rights under the present rapid transit contracts is sure to meet with disappointment. The courts may be relied upon to protect the city in its contract rights with the Interborough and the B. R. T., upon the faith of which $400,000,000 of public moneys have been supplied for their benefit.

"The Governor in his message on traction," said Commissioner Delaney, "discusses the advisability of the abrogation of contracts an1 apparently advises it when the terms become repugnant to one of the parties involved. This is a most pernicious idea. It would be a triumph of might over right. In case force should be used to cancel the contracts between the city and the two big operating companies it would be impossible ever again for any company to obtain sufficient money to carry out any contract in which the city is a partner."

Referring to the transfer of the control of all public utilities from the municipalities to the State, Mr. Delaney said that if some of Governor Miller's recommendations were carried out they would violate the principle of home rule and nullify the provisions of the Rapid Transit act, built up by successive Legislatures, which specify that the city's investments shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate. The suggestions, he said, tend toward the subjugation of the city to the rest of the State via the Legislature.

Mr. Delaney said there was no lack of rapid transit facilities, only a lack of service; that there was no clash of authority, and that only the outworn, over-capitalized surface lines were drifting toward disaster.

"If the public will not patronize these lines," he said, "after public money has been invested to provide better service, there is no public obligation to provide dividends or speculative profits on the uncontrolled securities of these lines."

"So far as records show," Mr. Delaney continued, "no water has been squeezed out of the privately owned transit lines. The water is all there but dividends and interest are not being paid on so much of it. Suggestions made in this city by the Transit Construction Commissioner to representatives of local transit corporations that capitalization should be brought to measurable resemblance to property value have brought no response."

Mr. Delaney declared that stagnation of progress would ensue and that no more subways would be built for many years if the Governor's plan went through.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said: "It seems to me that the only hope of a proper solution of the traction problem lies along the lines of the Governor's message. Unless, as he suggests, a competent body of men, vested with full authority, and charged with full responsibility, take this matter up, and give it the study that it requires, and reach a conclusion just to all concerned, I do not see how it can ever be properly settled. The only opponents of this sound and sensible method of treating this business proposition (for that is what it is) will come from those who seek personal and partisan advantage in preventing a just and proper solution."

CALL GARMENT STRIKE AGAINST NON-SIGNERS

25,000 Workers Will Seek to Force Remaining Manufacturers to Accept Union's Terms.

A strike against the dress and waist manufacturers who have not signed the new agreement with seven locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was voted by the locals at two meetings last night. The union's effort will be directed chiefly against reluctant members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association. Persons familiar with the recent negotiations between the union and the two associations of dress manufacturers said that the latest clothing controversy probably would not last long.

About 2,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers met at Beethoven and Webster Halls last night. Those who gathered at Webster Hall declined to ratify the clause in the agreement calling for a five-day week. The entire agreement was ratified by the Beethoven Hall contingent and the strike was voted in both places. The strike, it was said, would affect about 25,000 workers.

apparently in high spirits. He listened attentively to the testimony of Mr. Grace and of F. A. Shick, Controller of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and W. A. Hauck, Assistant Controller.

Poses for Motion Pictures.

While Mr. Hauck was on the stand Mr. Schwab arose from his chair next to those of Paul D. Cravath, general counsel for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and the latter's associate, H. A. Moore. He walked to the south side of the room and stood by a window for the sun. A motion picture man asked him to pose, and he laughingly consented. As the camera was leveled Mr. Schwab beckoned to Lieutenant P. J. Etherton, sergeant at arms, to stand with him for the picture. Congressman Henry P. Steel of Pennsylvania, who had started to leave the room, similarly was corraled by Mr. Schwab.

Introduces Letter to President.

When Mr. Schwab was called to the stand he again explained that he was reluctant to take the post of Director General at the request of President Wilson and the Shipping Board because he feaerd that his dual position might lead to criticism. His position, he said, was set forth in a letter to the President and the trustees of the Shipping Board. Mr. Schwab asked permission to read this letter into the record. It follows:

April 30, 1918.

To the President and Trustees of the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation:

Dear Sirs: The United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, of which I have been appointed Director General, has, or may in the future have, contracts or other business relations not only with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, of which I am an officer, Director and stockholder, but also with certain of its subsidiary companies in which I am directly or indirectly interested.

I am of the opinion that it would be inadvisable for me to participate, as such Director General, in the transaction of any business between the Emergency Fleet Corporation and any of the said companies, with especial reference to the making of contracts with, or the giving of orders to, such companies, and, therefore, request that all business between the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation and the companies named below may be handled entirely by such other officers or agents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation as you may designate:

Bethlehem Steel Corporation.
Bethlehem Steel Company.
Bethlehem Steel Bridge Corporation.
Bethlehem Loading Company.
Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation.
The Detrick & Harvey Machine Company.
Bethlehem Steel Products Company.
Ore Steamship Corporation.
Saucon Land and Improvement Company.
Bethlehem Securities Company.
Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Limited.
Union Iron Works Company.
Union Iron Works Dry Dock Company.

Yours very truly,

C. M. SCHWAB.

Anything in Way of Ships Needed.

Mr. Schwab said he was induced to accept the post because of the insistence of the President and the members of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation. In answer to Chairman Walsh, he said that up to that time he had been devoting practically all his time to his corporations, but he had not devoted his attention to contracts, a phase of executive work that fell to Mr. Grace six or seven years ago.

Chairman Walsh asked if the witness had made a survey of the program embarked upon at the time he was made Director General. He had. He concurred in the belief of General George W. Goethals that it was the wisest policy of the country to supply anything in the way of ships that could be built quickly, regardless of the post-war value of these vessels. The first and most important task was to meet a war emergency. He was opposed to the building of wooden ships as part of a merchant marine program, to follow after the war, but the urgent need of bottoms changed his attitude.

Mr. Schwab said he was opposed to the erection of new shipbuilding plants to be operated by new shipbuilders. He thought it would have been a wiser policy to enlarge existing plants.

"In the second place," he continued, "I did not regard the shipbuilding policy at that time as one of engineering. I regarded the essential feature in producing ships to be to arouse the working people of the United States on whom the results depended. I did not consider it a matter of mechanical engineering."

"Did you supervise or participate in any way in the operation of ships while you were Director General?" asked Chairman Walsh.

"None whatever. I was concerned solely with construction."

Made Plez His "Right Hand."

Q.—Did you cause any changes to be made in the accounting statement of the Fleet Corporation relating to shipping construction? A.—When I went to Washington to take charge I found the Chief General Manager, Charles Plez, a man whom I had not known well, but in a very short time realized he was one of the ablest, brightest executive organizing men I have ever known, and I said to Mr. Plez, "Mr. Plez, I desire above all else that you be my Chief Lieutenant and right hand in carrying out this program," which he gladly consented to do, and all matters pertaining to contracts and of similar character were referred to Mr. Plez for his action, and I devoted myself largely to the general question of supervising construction. I have devoted a great deal of time to visiting shipyards, among the men, and Mr. Plez devoted his entire time to the contracts and supervising accounts and all the other multifarious questions concerning the construction of ships by the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Q.—Did you consult with the Shipping Board and the Fleet Corporation officers also about work that was being carried on? A.—Yes, of course. We had frequent meetings of the Shipping Board. I think we had a meeting every day or most every day with the Chiefs of Divisions of the various departments of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, so that all questions that were uppermost in our minds were discussed.

Q.—Did you go to the Pacific Coast with Mr. Plez in July, 1918? A.—I did.

Q.—Was there or not at that time a decision reached with reference to the purchase of the site at Alameda? A.—My recollection is that that decision was reached before we went to Alameda.

Q.—Did you participate in any way in connection with the acquisition of that site? A.—Not to the slightest extent.

Q.—Now, was it not at that time you in any way negotiated with the Fleet Corporation for the acquisition of the site originally agreed upon? A.—I have never even heard of it.

Grace Repeats His Denial.

When Mr. Grace resumed his testimony in the morning he went over much of the ground he had covered the preceding evening. He repeated that no part of the $269,543 voucher, representing the expenses of Mr. Schwab and his staff, had been charged to or paid by the Government. He further said the item of $100,000 was not solely for the personal expenses of Mr. Schwab, but covered expenses of his staff in connection with the corporation's business. Mr. Grace promised to furnish the committee with photostat copies of the company's profit and loss account wherein, he said, the item of $100,000 was finally charged.

Controller F. A. Shick corroborated the testimony of Mr. Grace that Perley Morse & Co. auditors were not wanted because it was feared they sought sensational information. He said the Morse accountants were asking questions that had nothing to do with Government ship construction, and were taking information out of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's books that had nothing to do with work for the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"Mr. Hauck told me," said the witness, "that the Perley Morse accountants were asking questions about vouchers and we feared they were going to use this information in some other way against us, as they did in the Fore River audit for the Luckenbachs."

Mr. Shick further corroborated the testimony of Mr. Grace that none of the $269,543 was charged against the Government.

"It went into profit and loss," said Mr. Shick.

The witness was asked if there was any definite policy with regard to the expenses of Mr. Schwab and other Bethlehem officials. He said there was a definite agreement with the General Auditor of the Emergency Fleet Corporation that no personal expenses of Mr. Schwab or other officials should be charged to the cost of ship construction. This understanding was reached before Mr. Schwab became Director General.

Asks Question for Record.

"For the purpose of the record," said Chairman Walsh, "I desire to ask you this question, Mr. Shick. Although there may be vouchers in the files of the Bethlehem Company and there may be entries on the books showing expenses of Mr. Schwab at various times and for various amounts, you state here definitely and positively that none of those vouchers, none of those entries on the books for those particular items, were at that time or at any time subsequently charged or allocated to ship construction costs?"

"I do," replied the witness.

Mr. Hauck said there were no items on the Bethlehem books which there was any desire to conceal. He said he had learned of the discovery of the alleged irregular items from Mr. Adamson of the Shipping Board a week after the Perley Morse audit was begun.

The last witness was Wallace Downey, who flatly denied that he ever had paid $40,000 to influence Shipping Board officials, including R. Wilmer Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson, now Treasurer of the Shipping Board, in awarding contracts to his shipbuilding concern. Mr. Downey was connected with such an alleged bribe by Tucker K. Sands, former Vice President and cashier of the Commercial National Bank of Washington, D. C., who alleged that the $40,000 was to have been divided among himself, Lester Sisler, former Secretary of the Shipping Board; Mr. Bolling and John Cranor, a former representative of Mr. Downey.

Mr. Downey said he had agreed to pay Mr. Sands $40,000, and eventually did pay him $25,000 for negotiating $125,000 credit at the Commercial National Bank, intended to bolster up the financial condition of the Providence Engineering Corporation, which was seeking a contract from the Shipping Board.

The committee adjourned to meet in Washington at a date to be announced.

CONFIDENCE IN SCHWAB TOLD BY MARINE HEAD

P. H. W. Ross Praises His Work for the Nation and Pays Tribute to P. A. S. Franklin.

Speaking at a dinner of the National Marine League in the Hotel Commodore last night, P. H. W. Ross, its President, praised Charles M. Schwab and P. A. S. Franklin, both of whom, he said, had been unjustly attacked. Senator William M. Calder digressed from a prepared speech to characterize Mr. Schwab and Mr. Franklin, the latter of whom sat at the speakers' table, as among "the best citizens of the Republic."

"The winds of public opinion are shifting and the big man in shipping must know that sooner or later, in a Republic where laws are molded on public opinion, he will encounter apparent ingratitude enough to break his heart," said Mr. Ross. "He must remember that it is a shifting wind that carries the disagreeable blast and that such winds are not steady. They veer, and very quickly the pleasant breezes of public approval and public appreciation will dissolve the killing frost of the same public's 'Winter of discontent.'"

"Last week a distinguished Senator of the United States had occasion to discuss the provisions of a certain agreement. In the course of his remarks, the loyalty of an American citizen was involved. This gentleman happened to be the foremost shipping operator in the United States. Last week, also, the integrity of the foremost shipbuilder in the United States was impugned. Both of these great men were wounded to the heart. After all they had done for their country and the services they had performed, to be arraigned as public malefactors!

"One was Franklin, the other Schwab. When our country was in the hour of her deadliest peril three great services were imperatively demanded. Our national existence in that hour was believed to depend upon a trinity of service—that ships be built by the hour, that troops be transported therein, that men be trained to operate the ships.

"Charles M. Schwab as an individual American citizen stands head and shoulders above all others in the matter of building ships.

"As for Mr. Franklin, American citizen, born in the State of Maryland: The Congress of the United States has publicly honored Mr. Franklin by conferring upon him the Congressional Medal for Distinguished Service because he, more than any other individual American citizen, directed the transport of 2,000,000 American soldiers across the seas to win war for civilization and the peace of the world."

PALMER RETORTS TO UNTERMYER

Quotes Boy-Ed Report Calling Him Judicial and Legal-Political Adviser to Germans.

NAMED IN ALBERT'S DIARY

'LYING,' REPLIES UNTERMYER

He Declares That the Charges Were Disproved Before the Overman Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Attorney General Palmer countercharged Samuel Untermyer of New York today in connection with the latter's charges against Mr. Palmer's record in his former post of Alien Property Custodian. He accused Mr. Untermyer of voluntarily assisting the German Embassy when it was active in disseminating pro-German propaganda, and quotes an official report made to the German Government by an agent in this country telling of Mr. Untermyer's assistance.

Captain Boy-Ed, "the notorious naval attaché of the German embassy," as the Attorney General calls him, is quoted as telling the chief of the Admiralty staff that Mr. Untermyer, at the time of Boy-Ed's stay in New York, was "the unpaid juridical and legal-political adviser to the Imperial embassy." Dr. Heinrich Albert is quoted as saying that he was summoned to Mr. Untermyer's estate on the Hudson and discussed "the prevention of the export of ammunition and other political questions." Albert added:

"Viereck was also present."

"Thus it appears," says the Attorney General, "that although Hays, Kaufman and Lindheim were the publicly admitted attorneys of the German Embassy, Untermyer was, in the opinion of the embassy at least, its controlling and chief counsel."

The Attorney General says that his office recently prosecuted Kaufman and Lindheim on charges of violation of the law growing out of their activities as counsel for German interests, and that Lindheim is Untermyer's relative, according to his own sworn statement before the Overman committee.

Mr. Untermyer, according to the Attorney General, "is simply serving his old clients by attempting to discredit the wartime work of capturing enemy property in the United States."

Statement of Mr. Palmer.

Attorney General Palmer's statement reads in part:

"The motives and purposes of personal attacks upon public officials in their Governmental conduct are the concern of the public when such attacks are made on behalf of secret and sinister interests.

"The malicious reiteration by Samuel Untermyer of the baseless rumors and false charges which the friends of Germany insistently circulate about the work of the Alien Property Custodian would not call for any reply if his recent activities had not somewhat obscured in the public mind his earlier connections which make his motives plain. He desires to undo a significant part of the war's achievement. He was vigorously opposed to the Government's policy—as laid down by the Congress and carried out by the Executive—in regard to enemy-owned property. He refers to enemy-owned concerns in this country as the 'properties of those unfortunate people,' whose plight he always sought to alleviate.

"His exact status, despite his equivocations and denials with respect to those 'unfortunate people'—the Germans—is best shown by an official report of Captain Boy-Ed, the notorious Naval Attaché of the German Embassy, who was sent out of the country by our Government. It is addressed to the chief of the German Admiralty Staff, was captured on Boy-Ed's person in Nazareth and was transmitted to this country by the general headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Boy-Ed Report Is Quoted.

"In explaining a statement abusing the American people which he issued on being expelled from this country, Boy-Ed said:

Every statement was drawn up in its original form by Counsel Samuel Untermyer. He was at the time of my stay in New York the unpaid juridical and legal-political adviser to the Imperial Embassy. He is one of the most important, if not the greatest counsel of the United States, the presumptive successor of Mr. Gerard, if he should leave his ambassadorial post, a former very influential member of the Democratic Party of New York State, a personal friend of Warburg, Federal Reserve Bank; of the Secretary of Justice, the chief State counsel of New York, &c.

Untermyer's statement was inordinately long and was a sharp, in my opinion, very cleverly written and well-grounded attack on the American Anglophile press for the protection of the German official personalities in the United States, and particularly in defense of the logic of my proceedings. Mr. Untermyer insisted particularly on such a statement on unselfish grounds, as the foregoing shows, because my departure had to be utilized in any circumstances to the advantage of the officials remaining behind, especially the German Ambassador.

At the last minute I decided, in collaboration with Chief Privy Government Councillor Albert, to make merely a short and less sharp statement, which was an extract of Untermyer's long one, in the personal interest of my own greater peace, and conformably to my very self-sacrificing time in New York.

Named in Albert's Diary.

"His true status is again shown in the handwritten diary of Chief Privy Councilor Albert, representing the Zentral Einkaus Gesselschaft in this country, and today Under-Secretary of State of the German Republic:

In other respects this Easter festival passed off somewhat anxiously, since at noon I was summoned to Plainfield and Hagedorn's, and in the evening to Untermyer at his estate at Greystone. I drove there, and had no reason to repent this meeting brought about for business reasons. Untermyer is personally a by no means unpleasant individual, shrewd, very familiar with political affairs and in a business sense extraordinarily well up to date. He has a wonderful estate in the neighborhood of Yonkers, on the heights of the Hudson. Opposite are the Palisades on the other bank, over which the sun went down in wonderful clearness. Conversation on the prevention of the export of ammunition and other political questions. Viereck was also present.

"Thus it appears that although Hays, Kaufman and Lindheim were the publicly admitted attorneys of the German Embassy, Untermyer was, in the opinion of the embassy at least, its controlling and chief counsel. When we realize that my office has recently prosecuted to conviction and sentence both Kaufman and Lindheim for violations of the law growing out of their activities as counsel for German interests, and that Mr. Lindheim is Mr. Untermyer's relative according to his own sworn statement before the Overman committee, it is plain that conscienceless resentment now moves him, although before this prosecution, on July 28, 1919, more than four months after I had severed all connection with the Alien Property Custodian's office, he wired me:

I have freely, openly, consistently admired your fair judicial attitude in every transaction where I was concerned and will be glad in common justice to repeat that assertion at any time and place. Your office was conducted with exceptional ability. You selected best talent regardless of other considerations. No abler, more devoted officials than Garvan and Bradley Palmer could anywhere be found. Money could not buy such service.

"He also fails to tell the public that his partner, Louis Marshall, has been and is the counsel for the Stockholders in the Botany Worsted cases and Richard Wagner in the Stinnes Steamship cases, both involving over $30,000,000 and both opposed by the Alien Property Custodian to be attempted fraudulent evasions of the Trading With the Enemy Act. These two cases are the most important cases now pending before our courts in the whole field of the activities of the Alien Property Custodian.

Charges "Serving His Old Clients."

"Mr. Untermyer is simply serving his old clients by attempting to discredit the wartime work of capturing enemy property in the United States. With naive confidence in the public forgetfulness he professes to be doing it in the public interest. It is really in the German interest.

"He called upon me to furnish the names of the people and the amount they received in connection with my appointments while Alien Property Custodian. This has long since been done, and is a matter of public record, which has been printed and published the country over. It is a record which, though subjected to the most critical examination by a hostile Congress for over a year, has never developed a single fact to justify a repetition of the enemy-inspired charges of favoritism or politics in the work.

"In response to a request made in the hearings on the Third Deficiency Appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1919 by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of the Representatives of the First Session of the present Congress, there was filed and printed a statement showing all directors representing the Alien Property Custodian in the 307 corporations in which an enemy interest had been taken over, all the attorneys appointed or employed by either those directors or the Alien Property Custodian, together with the fees or salaries paid to each. This was a complete and accurate list up to a date several months subsequent to my leaving the Alien Property Custodian's office, and showed a total expenditure for such fees of $325,845.16. This was the expense for legal services incurred by 307 corporations with aggregate assets of at least $200,000,000.

"These men are largely bankers, manufacturers and lawyers of splendid standing in their communities whose very names constitute an answer to Mr. Untermyer's charge that they were 'favorites.' They were all busy men of affairs who sacrificed time and money to do what they considered a patriotic work in the war. I think it safe to say that nine-tenths were personally unknown to me, but were recommended by men in whose business judgment and patriotism I had confidence.

"To call them 'favorites shoved into the properties of these unfortunate people' is an outrageous slander upon as loyal and patriotic a set of men as ever served the Government in any capacity. Their service was in striking contrast with the efforts of a small body of lawyers, interested for German clients, who obstructed our path at every turn and fought us through all the courts.

Expects to Be "Hounded Forever."

"He talks of the 'millions of dollars' appropriated by Congress to me for enforcement of anti-trust laws. Here, again, the record convicts him of falsehood. Appropriation acts are public documents. They show that during my terms of office of nearly two years I have had available for this purpose only $400,000. Every dollar of this has been accounted for in the manner required by law. Untermyer's insinuation that this money went to 'political favorites' is easily answered by the official record of persons employed, filed with the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives.

"I have not been surprised by the attacks recently made upon me from different sources. I expect to be hounded forever by the enemies I have made by my work as Alien Property Custodian and Attorney General. I have incurred the undying animosity of the enemies of our country and the violators of her laws, their friends and counsel. I have been officially denounced in Germany in language very much like that which Mr. Untermyer now employs by the friends of Lenin and Trotzky. Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman charge my department with violations of the Constitution which they despise and call me a 'menace' to the institutions which they frankly seek to destroy.

"I am proud of these enemies. I point to them as conclusive evidence of the character of a work which merits and receives their disapproval."

UNTERMYER DECLARES PALMER FALSIFIES

Says He Repeats 'Exploded Lies' —Renews Charge of Failing to Aid Lockwood Committee.

Samuel Untermyer, at his home, 2 East Fifty-fourth Street, wrote out last night his reply when a copy of Attorney General Palmer's attack was shown to him. It reads in part:

"I have just been shown at 10 o'clock tonight Mr. Palmer's lying and oft-refuted statements concerning my alleged activities before our country entered the war. They have again and again been publicly exploded, and no one knows it better than he does. I insisted on appearing before the Overman Committee and disproving them at that time. I then demonstrated:

"1. That I had never at any time acted as counsel for the German Embassy or for any one connected with it, and had never received a dollar of their money, and that I had repeatedly refused to accept retainers from them when the most eminent lawyers in the country were accepting them, as they and I had a right to do.

"2. That I never met Boy-Ed but once in my life, never had any business, social or professional relations with him and never wrote him or received a letter from him in my life.

"3. That after diplomatic relations were severed and before we entered the war I opened recruiting stations on the lower east side for voluntary enlistments at a time when it was uncertain whether the Conscription act would be passed.

"4. During the war I spent a large part of my time in Government service in Washington, paying by own expenses, besides subscribing for $3,000,000 of Government bonds of the various loans and traveling the country for months, also at my own expense, making speeches on the various Liberty Loans.

"While Mr. Marshall does not happen to be my partner and has not been for over seven years and I did not know and have no interest in the cases he is said to be conducting for his clients, we are close friends and associates. I have no doubt that she is engaged in the legitimate protection of the rights of his clients.

"I knew members of the German Embassy when we were at peace with Germany, as did many men in public and private life in Washington and elsewhere, but I never had anything to do with their affairs and at no time discussed questions of the export of ammunition or political questions, although I would have had the absolute right to do so if I had so chosen, as did members of the United States Senate and public officials.

"The references to Mr. Lindheim, first as 'a former associate' (which he knew to be false) and now as a relative (which he is not), are intended only to mislead and are on a par with his other assertions.

"But I thought the war was over, and pray what on earth has this job lot of old exploded lies to do with my categorical charges against this recreant and incompetent public officer who now adds to his other offenses the still more heinous one of using the archives of his office to attack men who have the courage to criticise his maladministration?

"The certificate of character I gave him in July, 1919, when his confirmation was being opposed, which he now quotes, was written before I knew of his performances and before they were generally known.

"I charge him:

"1. With using the patronage of his office to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars and more in exorbitant fees in support of his grotesque ambition to be nominated for the Presidency.

"2. With gross incompetency, amounting almost to nonfeasance, in the non-enforcement of the anti-trust laws, to which the present housing crisis is, at least to a considerable extent, due.

"3. With refusal to honestly and promptly co-operate with the Lockwood Committee when urged to do so and with being finally driven by me into sullen and half-hearted action.

"4. His assertions as to the amount expended in non-enforcement of the law are grossly misleading. He should and would be removed from office if his dereliction in that respect were known, as they will be, if an investigation is ordered.

"5. His statements as to fees paid and collected by his political favorites out of alien enemy properties are so evasive and insincere that they amount to prevarication.

CHARGE PALMER BAR ON ALIENS' COUNSEL

Prof. Chafee Declares Rule Was Changed—Dean Williams Tells of St. Louis Warning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Signers of the accusations against Attorney General Palmer and the Department of Justice of cruelty in the nation-wide raids on Reds appeared today before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee and reiterated charges that aliens taken in the raids did not receive the right of counsel. Five of the signers were scheduled to present testimony, but only two, Professor Zachariah Chafee Jr. of the Harvard University Law School and Dean Tyrrell Williams of Washington University Law School, St. Louis, took the stand.

Three chief points were made by Professor Chafee, first, that the right of having an attorney was denied to aliens; second, that searches and seizures were made without warrants, and, third, that arrests were made without warrants.

At the beginning of his testimony he alleged that at the deportation hearings aliens were not allowed to have counsel until the hearings were practically concluded. In March, 1919, Secretary of Labor Wilson had established a rule that lawyers should be present at these hearings from the beginning. Professor Chafee said:

"Just before the raids during the absence of Secretary Wilson, Mr. Palmer had this rule changed to deny counsel. This was done after the warrants of arrest had been signed. One month later, after the hearings were over, Secretary Wilson discovered this change and had the former rule re-established."

English-speaking prisoners taken in the raids had better treatment than the foreigners, said Professor Chafee. He said that a case had occurred where search warrants were asked for, and an officer stuck out his fists and said, "That's enough search warrant."

Pressed by Senator Sterling, Chairman of the sub-committee, Professor Chafee said that he knew of only one specific instance where the warrants were asked for and not produced.

Dean Williams arraigned Department of Justice agents in St. Louis for reporting to a hotel manager that the American Legion intended to break up a meeting of the Committee of Forty-eight in December, 1919. The report by the department detectives to the hotel resulted in depriving himself and his wife of their "property rights" in the hotel ballroom, where the meeting was to have been held, he said.

505 ANARCHISTS DEPORTED.

Labor Department Gives Two Years' Record—Orders Against 1,119.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Five hundred and five aliens classed as anarchists were deported from the United States from Feb. 1, 1919, to Jan. 1, 1921, the Department of Labor announced today.

In the same period 1,119 alien anarchists were ordered to be deported, the difference between "orders" and "shipments" being represented by those who were permitted to remain temporarily because of lack of transportation, appeals and other similar reasons.

During the last month 88 Russian aliens were deported by way of Latvia, the announcement said.

BARNARD COLLEGE GIRL MISSING FROM HOME

Miss Blanch Spellman Disappeared Monday Morning—Was Worried Over Examinations.

Miss Blanch Spellman, 18 years old, daughter of Benjamin F. Spellman, a lawyer of 115 Broadway, has been missing from her home at 1 West Ninety-second Street since 11 o'clock Monday morning, when she left the house apparently for only a short time. The girl's parents are ill, frustrated as the result of her disappearance, and her brother, Howard Spellman, has visited all of his sister's friends in a vain effort to find her.

The only reason advanced for Miss Spellman's disappearance was one advanced by some of her friends in Barnard College, Columbia, where she has been a student, that she was worried over the approach of examinations. A general alarm has been sent out by the police.

"We are hoping my daughter has not met with foul play," said Mr. Spellman last night. "She was very happy, and only a little nervous over her approaching examinations, which she was to have taken Monday afternoon. Our family life has been ideal and there is no reason we can possibly assign for her disappearance except those that we fear to think of.

"When she left home she had about $30 and was wearing a diamond horseshoe pin of her mother's. She intended to do a little shopping before going to the university for her examinations, and about 2 o'clock in the afternoon she called me up at my office and said she was in a millinery store and had just bought a hat. I am not able to recall now what store she said it was, as it did not impress itself on my mind. That is the last any of us heard of her. None of her friends or our friends have seen her since."

Miss Spellman, who was athletic and took part in sports at Barnard, was about 5 feet 6 inches high, had dark brown eyes and hair and dark complexion. She wore a blue tailored suit, low shoes and black stockings and a white shirtwaist.

The Marquis arrived here a week ago, and they were married last Saturday.

ROAD URGES BOARD TO ALLOW WAGE CUT

Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Asks Reduction That It May Break Even.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW SOON

One Executive Says Readjustment Will Be Necessary If Depression Continues.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—With representatives of the railroad unions arguing before the Railway Labor Wage Board to retain the concessions obtained during the war under Federal administration, the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railway, through its President, B. L. Bugg, petitioned the board for authority to reduce wages "to a level that would enable the property to keep out of a receiver's hands."

Mr. Bugg declared the road was losing $100,000 a month and added that this loss was "rock bottom," as the working force already had been trimmed to the bone. Mr. Bugg said that the road had granted wage increases amounting to $2,400,000 annually since 1914, and that the property was failin to "break even" by exactly one-half of that amount.

"We propose to reduce wages the amount necessary to enable us to break even," he said, "and we are compelled to ask the board to give us an early decision."

Chairman Barton of the railway board said that the case was pressing and intimated an early decision would be made. From sources closely in touch with the board it was said that the request of the railroad will be granted.

In Chicago railroad circles no official statement as to whether other railroads would follow the example of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic was forthcoming. Informally, however, it was stated that a readjustment of wages would be asked by practically all of the railroads if present business conditions continue.

"We do not want to ask for a wage readjustment," a high official of one of the largest trunk lines said, "because a wage cut always brings a certain amount of dissatisfaction. But the falling off in business has cut out revenues so that they are less than they were before the freight increases were granted. The increases granted barely produced revenue to meet the increases in wages granted. We cannot continue to pay the present wages out of the gross income now received by the property. A readjustment that will at least enable us to make ends meet is absolutely necessary."

E. P. Curtis, Vice President of the Order of Railway Conductors, told the board that his organization would insist that the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic withdraw a reduction notice which had posted until a decision was handed down by the board. He gave no indication of what the attitude of his organization would be in the event of a wage cut being authorized.

Earlier in the day representatives of the shop crafts had charged that the railroads were "farming out" work in order to lay men off. This is denied by the roads and it was intimated that a former official of the Federal Administration may be called to support the contention of the roads.

College to Study Tunnel Air Supply.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 25.—The engineering experimental station of the University of Illinois has been requested by the Federal Bureau of Mines to conduct experiments in an effort to solve the ventilation problem of the huge vehicular tunnel to be constructed under the Hudson River by the States of New York and New Jersey. It was announced today. A miniature tunnel will be constructed on the university campus. The expense of the project will be borne by the Bureau of Mines.

TWO CITIES SUFFER $3,000,000 FIRE LOSS

New Haven and Athens, Ga., Business Buildings Destroyed in Wide-Spreading Flames.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 25.—Fire, which destroyed the building of Mendel & Freedman, a department store in Chapel Street, and spread to adjoining structures early today did damage estimated at $1,000,000.

The fire wrecked a five-story storehouse of the H. M. Bullard Company in the rear and damaged the buildings of the Chatfield Paper Company, C. S. Mersick, Besserichey, the Charles S. Monson Company, the Western Union and the Bullard Company store.

The calling out of every piece of fire apparatus for the one fire was the first of its kind in seventeen years. The low temperature made the handling of hose difficult.

The fire's origin is undetermined. It is thought to have started, however, near an elevator in the Mendel & Freedman building. A watchman gave the alarm, but almost before the firemen had arrived the flames were spreading rapidly.

This afternoon the Bohan-Landorf Building caught fire. One fireman was overcome by smoke and another was cut by glass.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 25.—A large part of Athens's downtown business district was a mass of smoldering ruins today, and it was estimated that the fire which early this morning swept clean three entire city blocks and damaged adjoining buildings had destroyed property valued at at least $2,000,000. No loss of life was reported.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started just before midnight, and it was five hours before the combined efforts of firemen from this and nearby cities got it under control.

Rapid spread of the blaze was said to have been due to the explosion of gasoline drums in the Max Joseph Building, on Wall Street. This scattered the flames beyond control, and the fire spread down the east side of Wall Street, south to Broad, virtually destroying every building in its path.

Patents to Mexicans for American Owned Tracts Objected To.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The State Department has made a protest to the Mexican Government against the issuing of a number of denouncement titles to Mexican citizens covering subsoil rights on parcels of land in Mexico owned by American oil interests. The protest, it is learned, was sent under date of Jan. 12 to the American Embassy at Mexico City, which was instructed by Norman Davis, Acting Secretary of State, to bring to the attention of the Obregon Government the fact that a number of such patents were issued during the closing days of the recent de la Huerta régime.

TAFT SAILS FROM BERMUDA.

Official Farewell Accorded Him on His Departure for Home.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 25.—William H. Taft, former President of the United States, and Mrs. Taft sailed for home today after a visit here of almost a month. Governor Willcocks and Vice Admiral Sir William C. Pakenham, Commander of the British North Atlantic and West Indian Station, with their staffs, said farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Taft on the dock, while members of the American colony cheered them.

Mr. Taft was called home to resume work on arbitrating the value of the shares of the Grand Trunk Railway, which is being taken over by the Canadian Government.

BRITISH MAY RETIRE FROM MESOPOTAMIA

Holding of Persian Gulf and Basra by Small Force the Policy Proposed for Churchill.

HEAVY COST IS ATTACKED

Doubts Expressed as to Value of Oil Deposits—Churchill Considering a Flying Visit There.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent understands that the Government is likely to adopt the policy of withdrawing the British forces in Mesopotamia to Basra, which will make the contemplated reduction of troops easy. This withdrawal to the coast, says the correspondent, was not possible last year because of the disturbed state of the country and the threatened and eventual risings. Additional troops that were required are now returning to India and by the end of March the number will be down to 70,000.

"If we hold the Persian Gulf and Basra," he adds, "we have the key of the Middle East."

When Winston Churchill takes up his new duties at the Colonial Office the Government will transfer the mandated territories of Mesopotamia and Palestine from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office. Mr. Churchill, who would then be responsible for Mesopotamia, has with other Ministers advocated withdrawal from Mesopotamia. He is not convinced that it is a land of boundless oil treasure.

"So far as this Mesopotamian oil project is concerned," he said in the House of Commons a few weeks ago, "it does not appear to me to have anything like the guarantee of success that the Anglo-Persian oil fields have. If there be oil fields there," he was proceeding when some one cried, "Oh!" "Yes," retorted Churchill, "I lay emphasis on the 'if.'"

The Daily Express has been urging that Churchill take a courageous course when he goes to the Colonial office and cuts British commitments. In the Middle East its slogan is "We must get out of Mesopotamia and Palestine." Such a step, it declares, would save the British taxpayers nearly £60,000,000 a year. Up to last August it was estimated £100,000,000 had been spent on Mesopotamia since the armistice.

"All the return the British taxpayers have secured for their hundred millions," declares The Express, "has been revolt. Before the revolt the army in Mesopotamia numbered 47,000 men, and cost £20,000,000 a year. There are now about 100,000 men and the annual cost must have risen to nearly £50,000,000 a year. Shiploads of stores and munitions are still being sent out. The British taxpayers driven to exasperation by the crushing demands of the Exchequer, are called on to foot the Mesopotamian bill.

"On top of this comes £7,000,000 a year that is being ladled out in Palestine. Why should the British taxpayer pay for an army for Palestine? If Palestine wants an army let Palestine pay. The only British interests to be defended are in the neighborhood of Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf. That needs only a small force. British interests will not suffer if the 2,000,000 Arabs of Mesopotamia are left to themselves and British troops are withdrawn. Only a small region around Basra need be held."

The Chronicle's political correspondent says Churchill is considering the possibility of making a lightning visit to Mesopotamia to discuss the position directly with Sir Percy Cox, who is now engaged in setting up the Arab Government which will be primarily responsible for the administration of Mesopotamia.

COUNCIL TO STUDY RELATIONS WITH US

terday. As I cabled last night, it was referred to experts to draft an exact statement of Germany's failure to fulfill her engagements. It has been tentatively decided to give Germany until May 1 to complete her engagements, but there are grave differences between the English and French as to just what remains to be done and as to what penalties should be laid down.

Lloyd George Cold to Ruhr Occupation.

Naturally, as Foch said yesterday, the French want the right to occupy the Ruhr if Germany fails short. This brought forth ironic comment from Lloyd George yesterday who, to the extreme annoyance of the French statesmen, appeared to be tired of hearing about occupation of the Ruhr. In the afternoon session he declared he did not believe the disarmament question was one to get excited about, that Germany was not now in a position to attack any one for many years to come, that she had accomplished much since Spa, and that she should have time to complete the job inasmuch as she faced difficulties.

Referring to the refusal of Bavaria to disarm on orders from Berlin he did not see the justice of making the inhabitants of the Ruhr suffer for the actions of Munich. He wanted to call German experts to Paris and make a sort of second Spa arrangement.

Premier Briand flatly refused to adopt this method, saying the Allies should lay down the law to unwilling Germany.

M. Jasper of Belgium then proposed that the Allies agree on what should be done and then call in the Germans to decide how to do it.

Neither Lloyd George nor Briand would accept this proposal, and finally the whole matter was referred to Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, with a request that they try to agree on what Germany had failed to do, and later the Prime Ministers would reconsider the matter.

Believing beforehand that the British were all ready to follow them on disarmament, this disagreement had the effect on French opinion of causing dread of Lloyd George's stand on reparations. Above all, the French do not want the Germans called in. But Lloyd George does.

Greeks and Turks to Be Consulted.

The conference announced tonight that at the London conference the chiefs of the allied Governments would meet Greek and Turkish representatives to deal with the Near East problem. In British circles it is said that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists, will be represented. It might be an exaggeration to say that this action means rewriting the Treaty of Sevres, but it certainly means making radical changes in it.

This decision is a victory for the French diplomats, who have been working for months, and especially since the return of Constantine to the Greek throne, for changing the terms of the Turkish settlement. The French have all along held to the theme of a settlement with the Nationalists rather than trying to crush Kemal, as Lloyd George sought to do by the use of the Greek Army. The Italians have also supported revision of the Sèvres Treaty, and Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Ministers, brought to this conference important suggestions for changes, including making Smyrna a zone of allied influence rather than turning it over directly to the Greeks.

The Turkish problem as it stands today is as involved as it well could be. Any discussion must take into consideration not only the conflicting interests of the Allies but the contesting Turk factions and the question of Bolshevist influence in the Caucasus. It is chock full of disagreeable possibilities.

One important factor will be the failure of the Greeks recently in their attacks against Mustapha Kemal and the growing dissatisfaction of the Greek troops over their task in Anatolia. As the French argue, no one else wishes to go to fight Kemal, and if the Greeks can not or will not dispose of him, nothing is left but to deal with him.

The decision of today recalls the speech made by Arthur Balfour, representing the British Government at the Geneva Assembly of the League of Nations, when he called Kemal a brigand chief. How affairs move in Europe today may be shown by mentioning that in the next month or so Balfour may find himself facing this brigand chief's ambassador across a green top table.

INDEMNITY ISSUE WORRIES THE FRENCH

Expectation That Lloyd George's Stand for Fixing Amount Will Prevail.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Behind the veil made up of official communiqués about disarmament, Austria, Greece, and so on, a major debate is going on in Paris on the subject of writing the balance sheet of Europe. Two of the chief participants are Premier Lloyd George of England and Premier Briand of France. They are far from agreement—seriously far from agreement. They will probably not agree between themselves. But when the question is brought into the full conference the British Prime Minister will in all likelihood win out.

There is one big question before this Paris conference which overshadows all others, and that is whether or not Germany shall be notified by May 1 of the total she owes on reparation account. It is on this question that the British and French Prime Ministers have not so far been able to agree.

In as few words as possible, here is the French proposition:

Because of the war Germany forced upon the Allies France faces a financial crash, unless Germany pays heavily for the damage she did. Germany cannot pay all the damage. She should therefore be made to pay as much as she possibly can. No one can say today how much Germany can pay twenty years from now or twenty-five years from now. Therefore, some arrangement should be reached under which Germany would be made to pay in accord with her ability.

The figure for the first years must be low; for other years the Allies shall fix what Germany can pay until she shall have paid to her utmost for the thirty years laid down in the treaty. As for the treaty provision naming May 1 as the time the total reparations figure shall be fixed, the French say that means that by that date Germany shall be notified of the total damage she did, leaving it to be settled later what part the Allies will exact and her ultimate ability to repay.

Here is the British proposition:

The world economic situation, with full regard to the chances of getting America to help Europe financially, demands that the balance sheet of Europe be written. This can be done only if it is definitely settled what Germany must pay. It is fair to Germany and useful to the rest of the world to know just what Germany's liabilities are. It can be calculated now near enough what Germany can fairly pay, because, while Germany is at low ebb now, her production figures of before the war can be used for calculation.

The treaty really means that by May 1 Germany shall be notified what she must pay, and it is only fair to Germany to tell her.

It can be seen that France's case is strong sentimentally. Yet in its economic and political effect it is a case which is not so practical as England's proposition. England's theme is that supported by the American peace delegation. The French negotiators naturally have in mind the attitude of the French Chamber, which demands the utmost possible from Germany. Briand naturally balks at any settlement he regards as less than might be had.

One must be sympathetic toward the French point of view. France actually faces the danger of having to cease her reconstruction work unless she gets aid from outside—more aid than she stands to get from Germany under any reparation settlement. Faced with the prospect of having to borrow money, France naturally wants Germany's indemnity bill to be as large as possible.

Yet she undoubtedly has the world against her in postponing the reckoning. Belgium, France's closest friend and ally, will back the British proposition. And so will Italy. It is, however, possible that for the adoption of the British theme France will receive prompt help in realizing on Germany's promise to pay. France needs that, because what she will get from Germany in the next five years will not pay what she has already expended for reconstruction deficit, against which she has provided to tax receipts.

I was talking this afternoon with a prominent American banker who is in Paris in connection with international loans.

"It is quite true that the balance sheet of Europe must be written," he said. "We in America cannot really commit ourselves to extensive undertakings in Europe until that is done. The great economic crime of the Peace Conference was that Germany's indemnity was not fixed. It should be done now by all means."

MOVES FOR STUDY OF FUTURE WARSHIP

Senate Accepts Borah Resolution for Views on Six Months' Suspension of Building.

DANIELS TO GET A REPORT

Has Ordered General Board to Investigate Value of Aircraft and Submarine vs. Battleships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A resolution that may have an important bearing on naval legislation in this and the succeeding Congress was unanimously passed by the Senate this afternoon. The resolution, which was introduced by Senator Borah, directs the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs to inform the Senate whether or not it is feasible at this time to suspend the present American naval program for a period of six months, so that an investigation may be had to determine what, under present conditions, constitutes "a modern fighting navy."

The resolution is in line with the Borah naval disarmament resolution, which would authorize the President to open negotiations looking to the signing of a treaty by Great Britain, Japan and the United States for the limiting during the ensuing five years of the naval construction of these countries. That resolution has also been voted out by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and is expected to come up for debate within the next few days.

The new Borah resolution also directs a report as to the present value of surface warships, in order to determine whether the great dreadnought and battle-cruiser program of the United States Navy is, in view of submarine possibilities, justifiable at this time.

The Borah resolution adopted today by the Senate reads:

"Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be, and is hereby, directed to report to the Senate whether, in its opinion, it is practical and also a sound policy to suspend our naval building program, now in progress, for the period of six months, to the end that a full investigation and free discussion may be had as to what constitutes a modern fighting navy—a navy with the types of ships and with the air and submarine weapons that would be most effective in the strategy and tactics of future war on the sea; and also to the end that we may avail ourselves in the matter, both as to economy and efficiency, of any possible agreement between naval powers providing for the reduction of armaments.

"That the said committee report to the Senate such data and information (not already printed and made public) as the said committee has had before it for consideration relative to the possible value of surface ships in future naval warfare."

Senator Borah asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the above resolution, whereupon Senator Underwood, the Democratic floor leader, asked him to enlighten the Senate as to the exact object he had in mind.

"The resolution," Senator Borah replied, "simply calls for information as to the feasibility and wisdom of suspending for six months our present building program for the purpose of ascertaining what constitutes a modern navy. I intend to follow that with a resolution directing an investigation of the whole situation."

"Has the Committee on Naval Affairs, to which the resolution is directed," asked Senator Underwood, "made such proper study of this question that it is in a position to answer?"

Senator Underwood then explained that he had no objection to the resolution, but simply desired information as to the ability of the committee to give the information desired.

"I hope the resolution will pass," said Senator King, a Democratic member of the committee, "and that the committee may have this information during its consideration of the naval appropriation bill in order to determine whether it may not be able further to reduce the huge tax burden now resting on the American people."

The resolution was then adopted without division.

Daniels Has Ordered Navy Board Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (Associated Press).—The Navy General Board has been instructed by Secretary Daniels to institute an investigation into the probable design of "the type of ship that will form the main strength of the navies of the future," and particularly into the possibility of aircraft and improved submarines displacing capital surface vessels, it was learned tonight. The board's orders are to conclude the investigation in time to report early in February.

In his letter directing study of the subject, Mr. Daniels said:

"It seems to be evident that this Congress is not disposed to authorize the construction of any capital ships, and, due to the amount of construction work in hand, the department has not urged the authorization for any battleships other than those which are now under construction.

"The department feels, however, that the question of design in construction of battleships is an important one and demands continued study and investigation. It is noted that this is extensively discussed in the public press, both in America and England, and particularly in England, in regard to the type of ship which will form the main strength of the navies of the world in the future. Some well-known writers are expressing their opinion that the battleship will, at an early date, no longer form the backbone of the fleet, but that ships of the air and ships of the submarine type will be the powerful ships of the future.

"The department desires that this matter be taken under consideration by the General Board and analyzed from the different points of view, and a report on this general subject be submitted early in February."

SEES A "WILL TO PEACE."

London Chronicle's Comment on the Proposed Naval Suspension.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Daily Chronicle, commenting on the United States Senate's resolution for a report on a possible six months' suspension of the naval shipbuilding program, says:

"The resolution may be inspired partly by caution arising out of doubts which have been thrown upon the utility of the big ship in war. It may also be in part the response to the cry for economy which has been raised in America as in England. But we have no doubt it represents the true will to peace of the American people, which has been obscured in the heat of the recent political controversy."

UCHIDA IS DOUBTFUL OF DISARMAMENT NOW

Japan, Says the Foreign Minister, Would Consider Proposals Made by Another Power.

TOKIO, Jan. 24 (Associated Press).—Restriction of armaments will be considered by the Japanese Government, should it be proposed by another nation, but little hope is held out by Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, that there will be any immediate movement toward disarmament. The Foreign Minister was interpellated in the lower house of Parliament by members of the Opposition, and admitted that the limiting of armaments was being discussed by the powers.

"Some practical men abroad, however," he declared, "do not approve of immediate disarmament, although they agree in principle. The existing German situation is one factor which prevents a complete agreement on the subject. Some people believe Japan has no intention to restrict armaments, because Viscount Ishii, Japanese Ambassador to France, favored the opinion of practical men who object to reduction. Japan's naval policy is not one of expansion, but is one that cannot be avoided in the interests of self-protection. Japan, however, is ready to consider the subject of curtailment in order to assure world peace, in case any power should make such a proposal."

Hope for an early beginning of direct negotiations with China relative to the restoration of Shantung was expressed by the Foreign Minister. He declared the inauguration of trade in Russia might be considered after a stable Government had been established by the Far Eastern republic at Chita.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Central News says that it is authorized to deny rumors that Japan has placed contracts for three battleships in England. It is unlikely, the Central News adds that any contracts will be placed outside of Japan, considering that unemployment is rife there.

Thermometer Down to 3.6 Above Zero, With High Wind From North Atlantic.

COLDEST DAY OF WINTER

Transportation Lines Affected, and Free Lodging Houses Have Slight Rush.

Although the thermometer went down yesterday to only 3.6 degrees above zero—almost 20 degrees above the low mark here—Tuesday, Jan. 25, will go on the record as the coldest day of the Winter was a fraction above Wednesday, Jan. 19, when the mercury went as low as 4 degrees above zero.

The Weather Man assured his inquirers last night that today would not be so cold. He said that there might be snow before the day was ended, and almost certainly before Thursday morning.

The high wind yesterday gave the impression that the temperature was much lower than recorded on the official thermometers. This reached a velocity of about fifty-six miles between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was from the northwest. It calmed down to about thirty miles an hour in the evening, with indications that there would be little wind today.

The following is a table of the temperatures up to the hour the Weather Bureau closed last night:

1 A. M.	15	1 P. M.	18
2 A. M.	14	2 P. M.	18
3 A. M.	10	3 P. M.	20
4 A. M.	7	4 P. M.	18
5 A. M.	5	5 P. M.	18
6 A. M.	4	6 P. M.	16

10 A. M.	7	10 P. M.	12
11 A. M.	10	11 P. M.	12
12 noon	14

The low mark of 3.6 degrees above zero was reached between 6 and 7 wind blowing at about thirty-five miles an hour.

Although yesterday was a colder day, the number of persons seeking refuge in the free lodging houses was not so large as on Jan. 19. About 150 applied to the Salvation Army refuge on the Bowery on Monday night, compared to 600 last week. The Municipal Lodging House on Monday night had about 180 persons, including several women and children; and the Women's Shelter of the Salvation Army had about seventy women. Early last night officials at the lodging houses said that they did not expect unusual numbers of guests unless the temperature took a sudden drop.

The cold wave touched only the Atlantic seaboard cities. The lowest recorded temperature was 12 below zero at Greenville, Me., and Boston had zero weather.

Lange Plays Good Billiards.

with the question of dual nationality. The exact nature of their recommendations on this particular subject has not been ascertained.

Negotiations Attacked in Tokio Diet.

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—In The Diet today Representative Kotaro Merchizuki, a member of the Kensei-kai Party, for two hours arraigned the Government for its alleged failure in diplomatic negotiations with the United States, Great Britain, China and Siberia.

(A Washington dispatch said that the settlement of the California question and of the rights of Japanese in the United States had been successfully concluded in negotiations between Roland S. Morris, the American Ambassador to Japan, and Mr. Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States).

Mr. Kotaro Merchizuki quoted extracts from a Foreign Office pamphlet on the California question. He then said that Foreign Minister Uchida had been waiting and trusting to Mr. Morris, "a respectable gentleman, doubtless, but who may not be invested with full powers to negotiate the questions at issue."

Viscount Uchida, disregarding the personalities indulged in by the speaker, explained that Japan should not expect to have everything her own way in the negotiations with the United States, and that respect should be shown the other side.

Here there were cries from members of the Kensei-kai Party of "you had better become a naturalized American."

Continuing Viscount Uchida said Mr. Morris and Mr. Shidehara were trying their best to settle pending questions in the negotiations which were in progress in Washington. He declared he was confident a suitable arrangement eventually would be concluded.

General Gichi Tanaka, the Minister of War, said it was not the intention of the Government to carry out the projected extension of the army to twenty-five divisions in the next decade, but to strengthen the existing twenty-one divisions to a point necessary for the country's defense.

Several newspapers today commend the address of Viscount Kato, in the Diet on Monday. They assert that it inaugurates the party spirit for the first time since the establishment of representative government in Japan. This political development, which is hailed as constitutional progress, attracts the attention of the editorial writers more than does the merit of the debate, although the Nichi Nichi expresses the conviction that Premier Hara's reply to Viscount Kato failed to throw light on the reasons for the maintenance of an army in Siberia.

In his address yesterday Viscount Kato said that when America proposed joint action in Siberia he had hoped that Japan would determine the strength of her force after taking the Powers into her confidence, but instead of living up to the international agreements she had dispatched the disproportionately large number of 45,000 men, creating a misapprehension abroad as to Japan's aims. Then, contrary to general expectations, Japan had withdrawn only partially when the repatriation of the Czechoslovaks in Siberia had been effected.

Premier Hara in his reply declared that Japan wanted to evacuate completely when the Czechoslovaks had been repatriated, but that Japan's topographical situation had prevented this, while many of the Russians were anxious for the Japanese to remain.

"The troops will be withdrawn," said the Premier, "as soon as a proper Russian Government is established. Bolshevism is spreading overwhelmingly and may reach Japanese territory. The Government is aware of the futility of trying to check Bolshevism with bayonets and realizes it cannot prevent discontented Koreans from becoming tainted with such doctrines."

BRITISH WELCOME UCHIDA PLAN

Revised Alliance Will Be Made to Conform to League Covenant.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The desire of both Great Britain and Japan to bring the Anglo-Japanese agreement of alliance of 1911 into closer harmony with the covenant of the League of Nations is now a matter of public record as a result of the statements of Viscount Uchida, the Japanese Foreign Minister, in his address in the Diet. Official circles in London today expressed pleasure that the Japanese Foreign Minister outlines an alliance policy which they said fully corresponded with Great Britain's.

The parties to the treaty are now engaged in the work of revising it in order to bring the treaty into full harmony with the spirit as well as the letter of the covenant, and the results of their work are to be incorporated into the document before the expiration date of the present agreement, which is July 13, 1921.

The elimination of Germany from the Far East and closer participation by Canada and Australia in the British imperial counsels are given as the principal changes affecting the compact. The imperial conference to be held in London in the Spring, it is considered, will prove a most important session for the discussion of the future alliance.

"Courtesy Days" February Furniture Sale

on the weaknesses of others seems to be more common than ever. It is the acknowledged chief duty of some men, whereby they glorify themselves and allow self to climb over every obstacle, and they run away with all they can lay their hands on and take the chances of consequences.

Its methods are the signboard and the full page of pictures; and curiosity brings the customers, who are overcome by volubility and turn over Liberty Bonds and hard-earned savings as if a spell had been wrought upon them, to let go what they have long kept for old age and a rainy day.

We have been working for better business an entire lifetime and paying our own way.

(Signed) John Wanamaker

January 26, 1921.

From today to the end of January all furniture transactions will date from February 1st and purchases will be charged on the account payable in March.

This permits our warehouse to catch up with the sale, getting the furniture in good order for shipment as February opens and the distribution into homes proceeds during the month.

It enables those needing furniture to make selections NOW and still obtain the privilege of later payment.

"The public doesn't realize"— said a furniture man after going over our stocks and prices, "the tremendous opportunity you are offering in this sale. Nowhere have I seen prices so low for your grade of furniture, and I am in touch with the market, both retail and wholesale, from Chicago to Boston, especially in New York City."

Thank you, sir! We will print your statement and let it speak for itself. "We are advertised by our loving friends," you know. We would rather have those who see and buy write our advertisements than write them ourselves.

But, speaking of values—

perhaps we have been a little too reticent, so here is a list of some representative examples of the sale:

Furniture Makers Don't Cut Much.

Men who have returned from the annual Winter furniture fair at Grand Rapids assert that the manufacturers throughout the country are not helping to lower the cost of living by reducing prices on their products to any extent. Reductions of around 15 per cent. were made in a number of cases, but these were said to have been discounted largely by the offers that had been made by some manufacturers to move their wares late in the past year. Unless retailers can force the manufacturers to capitulate by holding off indefinitely, substantially lower prices on general lines of furniture to the public will not be seen for some time. Manufacturers defend their position on the ground of high production costs, particularly for labor.

Some Exquisite French Antiques
AU QUATRIEME

A little fine antique French table of mahogany and rosewood is kidney shaped and of most exquisite proportions. The top is inlaid in a lattice pattern with rosewood and mahogany in tiny pieces fitted together to form one lovely surface, with a patina like some priceless enamel. Astonishingly, the little table has three drawers, one in the middle and one in each end, so that it makes a most convenient little writing table. Price $600.

A fine French walnut chair of the Louis XV. period is a little coiffeuse made with a revolving seat and very low back, so that it is most convenient for use at the dressing table. The seat and back are covered with old needlepoint of the period. Price $500.

Typical of their period are two very fine chairs, one Louis XV. the other Louis XVI. The Louis XV. chair is of the earlier type, very simple and beautiful in its graceful curve of arm and back. It is of walnut, covered with needlepoint of a cream ground strewn with deep rose and green flowers. Price $350. The Louis XVI. chair is walnut, a covering of needlepoint of pale blue ground with rose and cream flowers. Price $400.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 26, 1921.

THE DEMOCRATIC ESTATE.

The Democratic party might well wonder why, if it is not dead office are made to administer its estate. Mr. McADOO not long ago indicated his willingness to take charge of the property. That good old family lawyer, Mr. BRYAN, who conveniently has an undertaker's business connected with his practice, has naturally proposed himself as the ideal administrator. And now Governor COX has turned up in Washington to serve notice as it were that the goods and chattels of the party cannot be disposed of without consulting him.

The chief asset in, of course, the Democratic National Committee and the party machinery in general. It is for the control of this that these aspirants. They must know, however, that the organization is not worth contending for unless there be restored hope and vigor in the party itself. For that is a work for the future. It cannot be forced. And the shrewder Democrats can be in no doubt who will make their party powerful and sanguine again. It will be President HARDING and the Republicans. After they have gone on for a time and drawn upon themselves violent popular discontent, it would be necessary to invent an aggressive Democratic Party, if one did not exist.

A BARREN CONGRESS.

The Republican leaders in Congress now admit that there will be no legislation of any consequence before March 4 except the passage of the appropriation bills. Even to pass all of them will require more girding up of the loins than has been visible. The emergency tariff, restriction of immigration, the soldiers' bonus, bills affecting the banks and farmers' loans—all are to be jettisoned. This Congress will end with an extraordinary record for doing nothing.

It is an unusually painful contrast between promise and performance. With the Presidential election out of the way, and with Republicans unrivaled for efficiency in full control of Congress, great things were expected. Mr. HARDING plainly expected them when he made his little address to the Senate, six weeks ago. All hands were to get down to work. Waste of time was to be regarded by all as a crime. Every pending measure of importance was to be got clean out of the way before the new Administration came in. Today this seems like a vision of the night when it is fled.

The Republican leaders in the Senate have been not alone unable to make their followers work; they have not been able to maintain discipline among them. Take Monday's vote on the bill to put the Government into the meat-packing business. All the recognized Republican leaders were against it—LODGE, KNOX, SMOOT, WARREN and the rest. But there was open revolt in the party, and eighteen Republican Senators voted for the bill. This, of course, was but one sign of that combination of the West and South against the East which boasts that it is going to sweep everything before it in the next Congress. But if it does, one of the things which will be swept away is the unity of the Republican Party.

THE ALTAR OF LIBERTY.

On Jan. 14 President CURRAN of the Borough of Manhattan and Deputy Controller HENRY SMITH choked off, for the moment, Mayor HYLAN'S hasty attempt to get the Board of Estimate to authorize the erection in Madison Square of an Altar of Liberty. A temporary structure of that name on the same site produced various impressions on various beholders. To some of the ungodly it looked more like a billboard than a worthy permanent artistic memorial; but, whatever its merits or defects, it was an accessory and part of the plan for a memorial arch. Private citizens have subscribed the estimated cost of the altar which they admit to be "a preliminary step to the great war memorial." That is, the permanent war memorial is to be an arch with this sacrificial structure on the side.

Without questioning the sincere conviction and good intention of the proponents of the arch, the course to which they are seeking to commit the city is unconsidered and premature. Even if there were a general agreement of artists and laymen upon an arch; even if no more appropriate and original form of commemoration than this ancient wander-er from Babylonia, Greece and way stations can be devised, the question of a site would still require long and grave deliberation. New York is one of the worst cities in the world in which to display to advantage even a splendid monument of architecture. Perspective, distance, the far-seen effective position, wide places and harmonizing surroundings are hard to come by; and even if such a fortunate situation is found, a work sited on it would be remote from present hand.

Neither on form nor site is the public mind made up. If a city of art like Paris needs to wait ten years before deciding upon its war memorial, New York, so much feebler in the tradition and inheritance of art, certainly can't afford to make an impromptu choice. We are to build for as long as time will spare the building. It won't do crudely to put up something that our riper judgment, without waiting for the sneers of posterity, may find to be unsatisfactory, ineffective, feeble, perhaps an eyesore. Moreover, economic as well as artistic reasons forbid haste. Let us wait till the wounds of war are nearer healing, till the burden of debt has been lessened, before beginning this secular monument. Give to the planning of it years of study and thought and criticism. Wait till there is a substantial consensus of competent opinion. Otherwise we may get a memorial that, like so many others in the United States, will be a thing of ugliness and annoy forever.

OUR LADY OF THE BLOWS.

Mr. FORDNEY'S farmer-decoy Emergency Tariff bill stirred some of our Canadian friends into natural threats of commercial retaliation. If we won't let their stuff come in, they'll keep ours out, snap their fingers at geography and buy of the British manufacturer. Now Canadian enterprise seeks to snatch from us a great national and international industry. The commercial exchange of thumps between Mr. JOHN DEMPSEY, the American hero, and Mr. GEORGES CARPENTIER, the paladin of Gaul, is to be transferred to Dominion soil if the Northern graspers of American trade have their way. The exportation of these heavyweights means heavyweight finance. The romantic sum of $700,000 is said to be the consideration. If the two egregious strikers ever do collide in Canada, what an amount of American money will go from here to there!

Thousands of citizens are saving, no doubt some will even go so far as to steal, money for the purpose of witnessing the most expensive transaction in the history of slugging. There have been plenty of greater fighters. To none has so lofty a financial program been offered. The price of a seat is a week's wages or more to the salariat. Who can calculate the amount of the hotel bills, the hire of taxis, the wild American plunge into the sea of Scotch? Who can reckon the mighty aggregate of American assets that will be lost to the United States? The exportation of this memorable "mill" may have a notable effect upon the course of Canadian exchange. Yet nobody raises a finger to protect our home industry, DEMPSEY the huge. Nobody thinks of grabbing Mr. CARPENTIER, an imported industry to be fostered here, and of detaining the fat profits that might be made from his labors in the home market. With an edifying altruism Americans will watch the removal, if it takes place, of these two great sources of wealth, play joyfully at the new game of enrich instead of beggar your neighbor and await with satisfaction and relief the interplay of battering "dukes" when

Their hollow sides; the battered chests ring back.
As here and there the whistling strokes pelt round
Their ears and temples, and the jaw-bones crack.

NEW JERSEY BANDITS.

Bandits, as applied to marauders who prey upon travelers in the suburban districts, may be a much overused term, but it seems to fit the raiders of the trolley cars of the Morris County traction line in New Jersey. This road connects Elizabeth with Springfield, Summit, Chatham, Madison, Morristown, Dover and Lake Hopatcong, running through much open and sparsely settled country that has little police protection at night. On Monday these "knights of industry" plundered the passengers on two cars between Springfield and Summit. The night was still young when the first car was stopped at a switch about midway between the old village of Springfield, where the British and Hessians once fought a battle with the Colonials, and Summit, which has a respectable police force. But the spot selected for the "hold-up" was outside the city limits of Summit.

The risk of the performance was so slight and the profits so satisfactory that the robbers waited for the next car that was due. Interference from the Springfield constables or from Summit policemen was not to be expected or feared. A few weeks earlier a trolley car load on this line was rifled in true Mexican style at a solitary crossing in Union, where the motorman alights to insert a key in a box to report electrically that he is on the job. This affair made a great sensation in Elizabeth, two miles away, and, although the hour was midnight, police automobiles were rushed out to scour the countryside, with the usual result. The authorities of the district were therefore put upon notice that the "bandits" might repeat their foray along the unprotected Morris County traction line.

There is now an indignant call for a State constabulary of mounted, well-armed men to make an end of free-booting and restore the security of the country roads in New Jersey. Automobile "hold-ups," by the way, have become a common experience for travelers in Union and Morris Counties. A referendum to ascertain the pleasure of the people is being conducted by the Manufacturers' Council of the State of New Jersey. Much can be said in favor of a State rural police force in New Jersey, where most of the population lives in cities and the country is badly policed or not policed at all; but it should be understood that if enabling legislation can be obtained the process may be long drawn out. Meanwhile, it would become the local authorities to show more initiative and energy in hunting down the impudent banditti and affording protection to travelers.

SERVICE, NOT FARES.

Governor MILLER'S message will be searched in vain for mention of what fares would be fair, and therefore should be charged, under present or future conditions. Even readers of the Subway Sun know that eight-cent fares are neither asked nor wanted by the operators of the dual subway, except temporarily. A permanent eight-cent fare would react against those who collected it so that it would be more a liability than an asset, increasing the debit as the years rolled on. Yet some organs of opinion speak of the Governor's message as an eight-cent fare document. The Governor proposes nothing until the subject has been inquired into. Any step taken beyond that must rest on other authority than the Governor's. There can be no reasonable ground for opposing investigation, without power of action. Opposition implies refusal to concede that the present situation, the "drift to disaster," needs some remedial action. Only those who find profit or merit in prolonging present conditions can in the same breath admit that action should be taken, and contend that inquiry should not be made before action.

There is a similar inconsistency in their argument that a contract is too sacred to be reformed. In the case of the dual subway they demand the contract and nothing but the contract because the contract establishes a nickel fare. But in the case of the surface lines they object to the contracts because they allow the substitution of several fares for the one fare and transfer system. To them a contract is sacred only when it is popular in their opinion. That contracts can be reformed by agreement so as to be more popular than those objected to lies outside of their perception, or standard, of public morals. The transfer system, the abuse of which was the cause of its wreck and abandonment, may also be the salvation of the nickel fare. The idea that the transfers cost nothing no longer exists. Passengers who have lost them perceive that they are worth something.

Possibly the practicability of the unification of the entire traction system may turn on the transfer solution. It is surely worth a cent or two to transfer from one subway system to the other or from either subway to a surface line. The transfer system greatly stimulated travel. Its amendment and restoration would not encourage joy riding on the subways, would add nothing to the nickel fare for those who did not transfer.

That, however, is pure conjecture in advance of the finding of the Governor's inquiry. As the Governor says, service is a question superior to the fare question. If a service is offered worth more than a nickel, with the option of paying a nickel and getting less, opponents of the plan will be even more uncomfortable than they now show signs of being. The Governor has shown up the unreasonable obstruction to anything and everything except the "drift to disaster."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Discrimination Without One Excuse.

From bad through worse to worst is evidently the course which is to be taken by the case of the man O'CALLAGHAN. That it yet has arrived at the very limit of impropriety, of illegality, of shameless and insolent disregard of constituted authority, is made probable only because it is so difficult to imagine anything more that can be done for him and his friends by the Department of Labor in furtherance of his and their effort to start a war between the United States and Great Britain. One cannot be sure, however, for Sinn Fein has at its command both intelligence and ingenuity, and if its leaders succeed in thinking up something else for which they can use O'CALLAGHAN here, there is no reason for doubting that they will be allowed to do it unless the Department of State shows more of energy and determination than hitherto in the legitimate—the obligatory—exercise of its forces to protect the national interests.

As the matter stands now this man, whose presence in the country from the moment of his arrival has been an open defiance of our laws, can remain here as long as he pleases, go where he pleases and do and say what he pleases. His nominal status is that of a foreign seaman, waiting for a chance that suits him to sign articles as such on a new ship and go home! The only excuse for calling him a seaman is that he may have done a little work of some kind not specified on the ship that brought him over, nominally as a stowaway. He is not a seaman, as everybody knows—never was and never will be, unless his whole plan and course of life suffer a most unexpected change.

That he is wasting his time here—and the money of deluded contributors to his hopeless campaign—that has nothing to do with the gravity of the malfeasance and nonfeasance of the officials who have allowed him to remain.

They Must Reject or Accept.

Now that the House of Representatives has before it the offer of the Morgan mansion in London for use as an American Embassy, the necessity for settling, one way or the other, the question of acceptance has become well-nigh imperative. But in both chambers the delicacy of the problem has been recognized, and its embarrassments, too.

In the first place, there is in both houses timidity about the effects in the home districts of going on record as favoring, on behalf of the nation, the taking of a valuable gift from a man whose name, to rustic and radical imaginations, personifies "Wall Street," and all its influences. Curiously enough, however, the fears thus aroused have not yet become articulate in either house.

In the second place, not only would there be something of real humiliation in accepting a gift of this kind from anybody by the richest of nations, but it would be a confession that, though there is, and long has been, a real and recognized need for embassies not rented privately, but owned publicly, in all foreign capitals, Congress persistently has ignored that need and apparently is not willing to meet it even now.

Mr. MORGAN certainly has a right to an answer, and as he has waited for one almost two years he cannot be charged with showing impatience when he says that unless he gets a reply before March 1 next he will feel obliged to withdraw his offer. The reason he gives—that it is not right any longer, in a city where housing is scarce to allow this building to remain vacant—is a perfectly good reason, but one may feel sure that it is not his only reason.

Will Congress wait till other countries besides little Chile take pity on our sad case and offer to give us homes for our Ambassadors and Ministers in their capitals?

Prohibitionists Could Answer Him.

One of THE TIMES readers, in a letter printed yesterday, found fault with the people who have been unable to see in the violations of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act any better reason for abrogating the one and repealing or mitigating the other than there is for similar action with respect to the laws against murder and theft, which also are frequently disregarded.

To make his point the writer of the letter recalled the old distinction of the lawyers between things that are evil in themselves and those that are made evil by statute—"mala in se" and "mala prohibita." The difference is real, of course, but it is not, as the correspondent seems to think, an absolute difference, and it cannot be used safely in an argument against prohibition.

The prohibitionists can answer, if they will, that murder and robbery have not been regarded always and everywhere as evils in themselves—that no small part of the world's inhabitants have held them virtuous when those killed or robbed were members of another tribe, and even within the tribe the Spartans honored the thief who wasn't caught. Again, the prohibitionist—who wouldn't go to the cider press for his typical intoxicant, as did his critic—could make out a case at least fair to middling good against alcohol, when used as a beverage, for inclusion among the things evil in themselves.

After all, the class in which an evil belongs is determined not by an essential difference, but by a preponderance of opinion at any given time and place. That a large majority of the people in this country have come to believe in prohibition is as unquestionable as are their approval of the law about as it stands and their determination to keep it on the statute books.

His Logic Led Him Far Astray.

Despairing, apparently, as to the effectiveness of arguments based on the alleged proprieties, a professor in a Pennsylvania theological seminary appeals to the fears of women in the hope that thus they can be made or persuaded to dress as he thinks they should.

"Women's waists," he declares, "should cover their necks unless they want to get pneumonia."

The dear old gentleman is a victim of deductive logic—from the assumption that exposure of the neck is an invitation to pneumonia he concludes that the invitation is accepted. As a matter of fact, this sort of exposure is a protection from pneumonia and the kindred maladies, rather than a condition favoring their development, and if the professor had studied the statistics he would have learned that men, not women, are the most frequent sufferers—in part, at least, because they bundle up their necks so much more than women do.

Admiral Scheer's Claims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When is a victory a defeat, and vice versa? When described by a German Admiral.

The fine Prussian sophistry of Admiral Scheer might almost win the fair mind to the conviction that the German fleet triumphed in the fight off Jutland were it not for the stark, historical fact that the close of the battle found Jellicoe undisputed master of the situation and the seas, which status was maintained until the surrender and subsequent scuttling of the German fleet nearly three years later.

Nor is Admiral Scheer more convincing when he relates the tale of his second effort to bring the Grand Fleet to battle. The world knows that the August sortie of which he boasts was little more than a grimace through a sally post.

The German Admiral's tactical comments on the Jutland fight are enormously interesting and illuminating, but he reveals a peculiar cast of mentality when he points out how, at a certain phase of the conflict, Jellicoe might have annihilated him, and then proceeds blandly to the conclusion that the British sailor's failure to grasp this opportunity constituted a victory for the German fleet. A SYSTEM OF BARTER.

How to Get Around the Exchange Barriers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has become plain to many thinking men that the exchange of commodities between the various commercial nations must, in order to avert universal bankruptcy, be changed back for a time to the original method before exchange, founded upon its gold value, was made an instrument, and a convenient one, for international transactions.

Our merchants will be obliged, for a time, to submit to a less convenient method, possibly involving less certain profit than heretofore. I refer to the ancient method of barter.

Notwithstanding that we hold approximately two-thirds of the world's supply of gold, viz.: $2,781,831,427, we shall be involved in the catastrophe, as all our surplus products will remain here useless and depress prices.

For instance, in the matter of our surplus production of cotton, we find that the surplus beyond our present needs will be left on our hands, to be augmented by the surplus of 1921. The same thing will happen to our European neighbors, who will be left with an overneed of their products. The gold with which they purchase raw materials is rapidly declining in amount. Both will suffer severely from the lack of the other's products.

The plan proposed is as follows: A merchant here, preferably one who has an agent in any of the markets, purchases and ships a cargo of, say, cotton, which he sells in Europe at the highest price obtainable, payable in the currency of the country, which he expends in purchasing a cargo of that country's products needed by us at the lowest market price. When it reaches this country he, of course, will sell for our currency.

A safer and quicker way would be to charter a vessel for a round trip. If care were used, profits would certainly result from the transactions. Matters could be expedited and made sure by use of the cables.

Banks could be found to assist in the transactions.

Gold was never meant to be a standard of value for commodities further than it came in time to be a standard of exchange. It has ceased that function on account of its temporary unequal distribution. When that is changed by the operation of trade to its normal condition, we shall return to the use of exchange automatically.

Public Library Invasions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can nothing be done to prevent the invasion of the New York Public Library by the hordes of high school boys and girls who, on Saturdays and Sundays especially, take possession of the entire place, research as well as main reading rooms, to do the work on their lessons that pupils are supposed to do at home or in school? They create an atmosphere intolerable to all but themselves, and crowd out the regular users of the library—readers researchers and literary workers—for whom the library was intended in its gift to the city. These young people coming in hundreds, bring with them their satchels of school books—a thing not allowed some years ago—and most of them do not even make pretense of consulting the library books, having in fact no need for them. Many do make such pretense in order to deceive the attendants, and it is open camouflage. They are difficult to keep in order and swarm over the whole building with the utmost license.

The authorities tell us that the building being a public one, it is open to all who come; but it surely is a building for library use only, and free to those who would use it as such. It is not a free study room for the schools, nor free for social assembly use by these girls and boys, who, even when they handle the books, mistreat them, and lower the whole tone of the place by their ill manners and open flouting of the attendants, who are too few and too indulgent. Can nothing be done to restore the library to the purpose from which it is being diverted, so that scholars may again find there a congenial atmosphere in which to work? Many are staying away altogether; or when the boys and girls come pouring in, they pack up their work and leave.

A READER AND WORKER.

The Albany Argus.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with your editorial today on The Albany Argus, in which you said, "Its partisan orthodoxy could always be depended upon," permit me to quote the following sentence from the final editorial of The Argus in explanation of the policy of the paper during the last year:

"Toward the end of its career The Argus attempted to divorce itself from too restrained a partisanship. It was fettered by no alliance with any political organization. It printed the news as news without conscious bias in favor of any man or group of men. Its opinions were based upon an impartial judgment, and it took sides with Mr. Wilson, Mr. Corning (the new Democratic leader in Albany County) and Mr. Cox not because they were Democrats, but because it believed them to be right."

Mr. Coolidge in the Cabinet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading the views of a correspondent on Mr. Coolidge and the Cabinet, I feel tempted to add the following query. With this new liaison between the White House and the Senate, which will it be most apt to accomplish, preventing the President from going against the will of the Senate or the Senate from doing anything the President may not like? In view of the stout objection offered to the suggestion for a Cabinet post of one of our most respected and prominent statesmen who through never having been a member of the Senate, might not hold that body in the proper respect in the pending millennium, I feel I know the reply.

GUESTS.

My bread is bitter and my cup unblest;
Unbidden children crowd about my board
With piteous appeal; a hungry horde,
I see them stand outside, with faces pressed
Against the pane; and, still beyond, I see
The millions more. Why do they come to me?

I am not rich, that they should haunt me thus!
My utmost gift were but a little thing
Lost in the chasm of their suffering.
(Oh! that pale girl, whose face was tremulous
With transitory hope—and now so bleak,
So like the dying! Did she hear me speak?)

Now, unrelieved, the millions turn away
To ask for life at other hands, but still
Are waxen fingers on my window sill.
Oh, weak and small! More weak for my delay!
And now the pleader falls; his day is done.
Why did I wait? I might have saved that one!

What night may bring my weariness repose
When these have come, and turned away unfed?
Master of Life, oh, multiply the bread
I cast abroad, where little fingers close
Upon the crumbs! (One child has ceased to weep!)
Have mercy, Lord! Help me to give—and sleep!

FORCES THAT MAKE THE LEAGUE INEVITABLE

Attempts to Bind the Nations to Future Economic and Military Action Broke Down on the First Test at Geneva.

By A PRO-LEAGUE REPUBLICAN.

THIRD ARTICLE.

INDETERMINATE PLEDGES.

In the major portion of the Covenant, as we have seen, the sovereign independence of nations is safeguarded with a strictness and a scrupulous care the value of which the League itself is only beginning to appreciate. The source of authority and the ultimate responsibility rest not with the representatives at Geneva but with the several members of the League. And no pledge is called for which commits the member nations beyond a decision as to matters actually in hand.

There are, however, two articles under which nations ratifying the Covenant give serious pledges as to their future action—action with regard to crises the precise nature of which is necessarily indeterminable. By Article X. the members of the League undertake, for all future time, to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. By Article XVI., if any member of the League wages war in defiance of its agreement under the Covenant, all other members undertake to subject it to an economic boycott and blockade and to consult as to military measures. In both cases action by the members is "automatic." One of these articles prevented ratification of the treaty by the United States. Both of them were repudiated at the first session of the League at Geneva—or that, at least, is the view of Republicans, even of those who are in general warm supporters of the Covenant.

When a nation undertakes, by the formal negotiation and deliberate ratification of a written Covenant, to preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of other nations, is it possible that it is under no obligation to do so? President Wilson himself, who is said to have drafted Article X., declared and reiterated that the nation would be under a moral obligation "absolutely compelling." He recognized, it is true, that in our own case the right to declare war must rest with Congress, and that it could only be exercised at the time of the crisis. From this it resulted that, by ratifying the Covenant, the United States would commit itself in advance to an absolutely compelling moral obligation which Congress, when the crisis arrived, might or might not fulfill. But we are no longer concerned with the question whether such a situation is consistent with national integrity. A legal commission of the League, consisting of delegates from each of the forty-one nations, has declared that all Article X. does is "to condemn external aggression on the territorial integrity and political independence of any member of the League and call on the Council to consider what means," &c. Thus an undertaking to "preserve" a nation against aggression simmers down to an undertaking merely to condemn that aggression. It so happened that, on the same day, Denmark, whose procedure in going to war is similar to our own, reported itself constitutionally unable to contribute its quota of troops to the League forces destined for Vilna. Its excuse, though embarrassing, was accepted.

Article X. might as well have read: "The members of the League undertake to condemn external aggression against the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members." In that case the United States would probably have entered the League, though many of its citizens might have smiled as it did so. But could President Wilson have ever said that the article imposed an absolutely compelling moral obligation? The effort to invest the cause of peace with the sanction of arms is obvious and, abstractly considered, commands sympathy and respect; but it must now be manifest that there are difficulties in the way of making independent nations move automatically to effective action at indefinite future times and in situations that are quite beyond the range of conjecture. One result of this decision was a widespread and apparently growing demand at Geneva for the elimination of Article X.

If the spirit of the men who drafted other articles of the Covenant had prevailed, Article X. would have declared at most that external aggression against any member of the League would be regarded as an aggression against the peace of the world, and that the members, moving through their representatives in the League, would take such action as the crisis seemed at the time to require. But when reduced to these dimensions the article is hardly distinguishable from Article XVI., which in fact covers similar ground in a manner much clearer and more comprehensive. This article declares that a nation waging war in defiance of the Covenant "shall, ipso facto, be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League," that the other members "undertake" to enforce an economic blockade "immediately," and that meantime the Council is to "recommend" "effective military" measures.

To most Americans the economic blockade seemed a hopeful expedient, admirably calculated to forestall the resort to arms, though many had misgivings as to backing it ultimately with military force in far countries. The recent action at Geneva came distinctly as a surprise, and indeed a shock. Several nations that had accepted the Covenant without reservations flatly refused to hold themselves bound as to future action.

The crucial question was by what authority the blockade should be declared. No means is specified for determining when a nation's covenants have been violated. Questions of fact are involved which are likely to be of the utmost delicacy. The presumption was that the decisions would be made by the representatives in the Council. But this was to vest them with powers primarily judicial and furthermore to give them the authority of a superstate over the member nations as a whole. The Scandinavian representatives insisted upon the right to reject any such decision of the Council. "My country," said Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, "will never yield to the Council the right to decide when a blockade shall be instituted!" Norway and Denmark made similar declarations. Switzerland joined with them and had the best possible reason for doing so. Swiss neutrality is a doctrine of even longer standing than our Monroe Doctrine, and is even more vital to the republic. President Motta declared that Switzerland would never abandon it. To American observers it may seem that under such circumstances the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland should not have entered the League, at least without making clear reservations. There is force in that view; yet much may be said for nations that waived legal scruple in order to unite in the task of rescuing a war-shattered world from destruction.

In these discussions it was repeatedly declared that the Covenant was very ill drafted. The charge is an old one. In Paris in 1919 it was reported, notably in The New York Herald of Feb. 23, that the entire time consumed in conference was only thirty hours. The drafting of the Constitution of the United States occupied something over a year. The statement in The Herald is probably an exaggeration; but during a discussion at Geneva on Dec. 2 Mr. Balfour admitted that the Covenant had been framed with "remarkable rapidity" and that in consequence many amendments would be necessary. Again, on Dec. 7, he spoke of "vagueness and confusion" in the Covenant. Lord Robert Cecil, who is said to have had a hand in the drafting, admitted on Dec. 10 that the provisions as to the economic blockade were "very unsatisfactory." Yet it is noteworthy that the charges of vagueness and confusion relate almost exclusively to Articles X. and XVI., and to only those portions of those articles which involve undertakings of a serious nature as to quite indeterminable crises in an utterly indefinite future.

The objection to these articles, as commonly stated, is that they call for "a surrender of the independence," "an abatement of the sovereignty" of the member nations. It may be doubted whether the phrases, or rather the idea behind the phrases, is exact. Few modern nations or none have preserved their sovereignty intact, yet they are so far from lamenting the fact that they are not really aware of it. Many treaties involve a distinct abatement of sovereignty. In 1817 the United States and Great Britain bound themselves to limit their armaments on the Great Lakes. In the treaty of 1846 with Colombia the United States guaranteed "positively and efficaciously * * * the perfect neutrality" of the Isthmus of Panama. In 1839 the United States agreed by treaty with Germany and Great Britain to recognize the neutrality of the Samoan Islands and to grant one another equal rights within the islands. By treaties with over twenty nations we have agreed to submit disputes for investigation and report to an international commission, and not to resort to war while the investigation is proceeding. The Covenant itself, as we have seen, imposes a similar suspension of the right to make war and the nations have freely accepted it.

Provided only the cause is good, no nation, and few statesmen in any nation, have ever hesitated before even a very distinct abatement of national sovereignty. Theodore Roosevelt was one of the most comprehensive and vigorous advocates of what is now called a superstate—a superstate compelling the resort to law and to arms. In October, 1914, he said:

"The only prominent move for obtaining peace which has yet been suggested with any reasonable chance of obtaining its object is by an agreement among the great powers by which each should pledge itself not only to abide by the decision of a common tribunal but to back with force the decision of that common tribunal. The great civilized nations of the world which do not possess force actually or immediately, potentially, should combine by solemn agreement in a great world league for peace and righteousness."

On several occasions Senator Lodge has expressed himself to similar effect. He recognized, as did Roosevelt, certain difficulties in the organization of world force; yet his ultimate conviction has always been as clear. In May, 1918, at the very height of the war, speaking of Mr. Taft's League to Enforce Peace, he said:

"No one, I think, can feel more deeply than I do the difficulties which confront us in the work which this League undertakes. But the difficulties cannot be overcome unless we try to overcome them. I believe it can be done.

"Probably it will be impossible to stop all wars, but it certainly will be possible to stop some wars, and thus to diminish their number. The way in which this problem is to be worked out must be left to this League. * * * I know the obstacles, I know how squarely we will be met with the statement: 'No nation can submit to the judgment of other nations.' We must be careful at the beginning not to attempt too much.

"I know the difficulties which arise when we speak of anything which seems to involve an alliance; but I do not believe, when Washington warned us against entangling alliances, that he meant for one moment we should not join with the other civilized nations of the world, if a method could be found to diminish war and encourage peace.

"This League has certainly the highest of all ambitions for the benefit of humanity, and because the pathway is sown with difficulties is no reason that we should turn from it."

For the difficulties which Senator Lodge foresaw Elihu Root found a solution in the steady upbuilding of international law—a law which eventually would enable "peaceable nations" to "constrain other nations." Early in the war, in December, 1915, speaking before the American Society for International Law, he said:

"We are all familiar with the distinction in the municipal law of all civilized countries between private and public rights, and the remedies for the protection or enforcement of them. Ordinary injuries and breaches of contract are redressed only at the instance of the injured person, and other persons are not deemed entitled to interfere. It is no concern of theirs. On the other hand, certain flagrant wrongs, the prevalence of which would threaten the order and security of the community, are deemed to be everybody's business.

"If, for example, a man be robbed or assaulted, the injury is deemed not to be done to him alone, but to every member of the State, by the breaking of the law against robbery or against violence. Every citizen is deemed to be injured by the breach of the law because the law is his protection, and if the law be violated with impunity his protection will disappear. Accordingly, the Government, which represents all its citizens, undertakes to punish such action, even though the particular person against whom the injury was done may be content to go without redress.

"Up to this time breaches of international law have been treated as we treat wrongs under civil procedure, as if they concerned nobody except the particular nation upon which the injury was inflicted and the nation inflicting it. There has been no general recognition of the right of other nations to object. * * * If the law of nations is to be binding, if the decisions of tribunals charged with the application of that law to international controversies are to be respected, there must be a change in theory, and violations of the law of such a character as to threaten the peace and order of the community of nations must be deemed to be a violation of the right of every civilized nation to have the law maintained, and a legal injury to every nation. When a controversy arises between two nations other nations are indeed strangers to the dispute as to what the law requires in that controversy, but they cannot really be strangers to a dispute as to whether the law which is applicable to the circumstances shall be observed or violated.

"Next to the preservation of national character, the most valuable possession of all peaceable nations, great and small, is the protection of those laws which constrain other nations to conduct based upon principles of justice and humanity. Without that protection there is no safety for the small State, except in the shifting currents of policy among its great neighbors, and none for a great State, however peaceable and just may be its disposition, except in readiness for war."

That men who have framed so many honorable and advantageous treaties, who, before the great war as during it, stated so clearly the problems of a league to secure peace—that such men oppose the Covenant merely because it detracts from national sovereignty, does not seem credible. Nor do I think that that was the real motive of those nations which at Geneva repudiated their obligation under Article XVI. and called for the elimination of Article X. It is not so much the obligation to which they object as its indefiniteness. In any contract the prime requisite is that the terms shall be specific, determinable. Lacking that, it is, in the words of the Republican platform, "certain to produce the injustice, hostility and controversy among nations which it proposes to prevent." In the present state of world opinion and organization, an attempt to bind the nations to wage war at any future time and in indeterminable crises is not only unwise but impossible. However one may regret the fact, it is now evident to the world, as it was to the men who framed the Republican platform.

That in its other articles the Paris Covenant is ill-conceived or essentially ill-drafted has nowhere been asserted. To have survived its first stormy session would in itself have been a triumph. And in the face of an upheaval which encouraged its enemies to cry shipwreck it accomplished results momentous to the peace of the world, and in a manner not only absolutely novel but capable of almost limitless extension.

Like most Republicans, I believe that in order to fulfill its highest mission the League should encourage, and eventually enjoin, the collective use of the forces of peaceable nations, and I believe that in the slow course of time it will do so. To that end, however, something more is needful than indeterminate pledges relying for their fulfillment upon political action. It is with regard to the new International Court that the late conference at Geneva was most illuminating.

LICENSES FOR DYES.

Why the American Manufacturers Want the Longworth Bill.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I reply to the letter in THE TIMES from E. S. Graves regarding the Longworth bill which has for its object the licensing of the imports of dyes into this country? Evidently Mr. Graves has never read the text of the bill itself, as he not only makes misstatements concerning it, but also displays such an erroneous knowledge of the whole subject that to allow his letter to go unanswered would constitute a breach of faith to the entire dye industry, as it would leave in the minds of those who read his letter an incorrect idea of the whole question.

The Longworth bill, which has already passed the House of Representatives and which, with certain modifications, was reported favorably by the Finance Committee to the Senate, specifically states that such dyes as are not manufactured in this country may be imported. Even those dyes which are made in this country, but which are not made here in sufficient quantities or on reasonable terms as to price, quality or delivery, may also be brought in, according to its provisions. Where, then, would be the plight of the textile manufacturer as Mr. Graves sees it, and how would the textile mills be prevented from obtaining any of the dyes which their foreign competitors use?

Space does not permit me here to go into the merits of the licensing plan, as opposed to the high tariff on dyestuffs, which latter idea Mr. Graves says would be "entirely in order." If, he will but wade through the voluminous testimony taken by the House and Senate committees on this subject he can come to no other conclusion, as the House of Representatives and the Senate Finance Committee themselves have done, than to be certain that a licensing plan is the only feasible scheme which will foster a dye industry in this country.

Rather than stultify the ingenuity and desires of the American dye manufacturers, the Longworth bill will, quite to the contrary, have the effect of stimulating their efforts in developing the manufacture of dyestuffs which are not made here, and of necessity compel them to deliver the dyes they do make in sufficient quantity and on reasonable terms as to quality, price and delivery, on pain of having foreign dyestuffs come into the country, which they would do automatically, according to the provisions of the bill.

I fully agree with Mr. Graves when he says that competition is the life of trade, but if the American dye industry is not fostered by a licensing plan, as England, France and Japan have seen fit to do, then our own dye industry will succumb and the German Dye Trust, not amenable to the trust laws of this country, will reign supreme and the life of trade in dyestuffs shall be an empty phrase indeed. SOCIETY AMATEURS EXCEL IN OLD PLAY

AID ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL

1,000 in Costume at Mozart Society's Masked Ball at the Astor in Aid of East Side Clinic.

A large and brilliant assembly of society witnessed the amateur performance staged last night at the Plaza by the Junior Auxiliary of the Society Service Department of St. Luke's Hospital. Anatole France's "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," with dances and songs of other days interpolated, was the principal attraction, with young men and women of society appearing in the cast and dances. The performance will be repeated tonight.

The production was put on with careful detail in costuming and lighting effects, and the performance ran smoothly and sparkled with novelties. Miss Grace R. Henry, who produced it, has the magic of raising an amateur affair to the plane of the professional. Many were present who recalled Granville Barker's production of the quaint play some years ago, at old Wallack's Theatre.

Miss Henry outdid Mr. Barker, with the material she had in hand, with the innovation of interpolated songs and dances, all in keeping with the spirit of the play. Society audiences are critical, but they approved the production by rounds of applause and frequent encores. Miss Henry showed her dramatic ability even by the selection of the cast. Emerson MacMillan 3d, as the blind fiddler, and Miss Helen Hoadley, as the singing girl, stepped into immediate favor by the artistic rendering of two old French songs, "Plaisir d'Amour" and "Chanson de Colin." When the lines of the play became a little drawn out, in the first act, she introduced a strolling magician. Fairfax Burger is hardly in Keller's class yet, but he did some of the clever tricks one sees in big time vaudeville with grace and ease, and when he produced a bottle and brought forth every sort of booten that has passed into history, the house, in the vernacular, roared.

Leonard Cox, son of the late Kenyon Cox, the artist, appeared to advantage in the leading male rôle, that of Judge Botal. Mrs. Herbert Groesbeck Jr., as Catherine, his wife, was fair to look upon, and wore her quaint costume with charm. Mrs. Leonard Cox, as Mme. de la Bruine, and Miss Dorothy Post as Mlle. de la Garandiere, wore fetching costumes and were well in ... as also Miss Edyth McCoon, who ... at.

Others of the cast who helped carry the production to success were John Raven Stone, as the Chickweed Man; Valentine E. Macy Jr., an apprentice; Van Henry Cartmell Jr., who was Adam Fumee, and Alfred L. Manierre, who took the part of the candle man. Cyril ... Robertson ... as the surgeon, and Jacob ... Dubonnet were well cast. Miss Janet Brown was ... of charm, and the Misses Ethel Potter and Emily Hammond, two attendants ...

The spotlight ... of Miss Margery ... and Miss Elizabeth ... as Pierrot was most ... Misses Dorothy Leary and Julia Stoner, with John H. Stone, appeared in a delightful interpolation, "Before Dawn," ... "Ave Maria" of 1500 was sung by Kenneth ... George W. B. Hartwell, Harry ... Ferdinand D. Sanford and Harold Williamson.

Gerald Reynolds, known to all Y. M. C. A. workers overseas, directed the music and arranged the overture. In the dance of the children in the first act were the Misses Florence Clendenin, Eleanor Coward, Katherine Knapp, Genevieve Mangan, Dorothy and Elsie Merrill and Betty Merchant. In "Les Petits Tambours" appeared the Misses Virginia de Haven, Emily Hammond, Edyth McCoon, Geraldine McAlpin, Martha Ottley, Ethel Potter and Helen Frasee.

The gypsy dance and the dance of the court ladies, a gavotte, wound up the first act. In the former were the Misses Alice Goddard, Mary Hurd, Elizabeth T. B. Hyde, Katherine Knapp, Eleanor Lippitt, Helen Lee, Hope Lincoln, Mary Lincoln, Marie Lamarche, Marquita Penfield and Elizabeth Thompson, with young men as partners.

Carnival at the Astor.

More than a thousand guests in picturesque costumes attended the bal masque and carnival which was held last evening in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor under the auspices of the Mozart Society, of which Mrs. Noble McConnell is President. The proceeds from the ball will be used toward the maintenance of the East Side Clinic for children in the interest of which the affair is held annually.

The border of the ballroom was made over into a miniature representation of the Rue de la Paix and the Boulevard des Italiens with attractively decorated shops facing the promenade, from which cigarettes, candy, toys and chinaware were sold, and in addition there were beauty shops and sweetheart shops which attracted a large patronage.

At midnight the carnival began with a parade of the maskers and prizes were awarded for the most original, most picturesque and most humorous costumes worn. A prize was also presented to the designer of the best decorated shop.

GIVES WOMEN SPECIAL CARS.

Albany Bill Provides Exclusive Rush-Hour Trolleys for Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Trolley cars for the exclusive use of women during rush hours are provided in a bill introduced today by Senator George M. Reischmann and Assemblyman John O. Gempler of New York. The measure authorizes the Public Service Commission to designate a minimum number of cars for such use.

The drive for legislation designed to curb careless automobile drivers began with the introduction of two bills. One introduced by Assemblyman Mitchell Trahan of Westchester would require every motor vehicle owner to file with his application for registration an indemnity bond or insurance policy for not less than $10,000. The other, offered by Assemblyman Griswold Webb of Dutchess, would permit the Secretary of State to suspend or revoke a certificate of registration or a chauffeur's license on the conviction of the holder of petit larceny. The law now applies only to those convicted of a felony.

No person will hereafter be permitted to hunt or fish on private grounds used for agricultural purposes unless the written consent of the owner or agent has been obtained, if a bill, backed by sportsmen's organizations, the Republican Party and the farmers of the State, is enacted.

Assemblyman Mario G. Di Pirro, New York City, Republican, introduced a bill which would permit football games where an admission is charged on Sunday after 2 P. M., where local ordinances are passed approving the game.

The Assembly Agricultural Committee sponsored a bill to repeal the Daylight Saving Law. There are already five such measures before the Legislature, but the committee bill is expected to be passed with the aid of most upstate Republicans.

Mrs. Kathleen H. Bibb in Songs.

With Frank Bibb at the piano, Mrs. Kathleen Hart Bibb gave a first recital at the Princess yesterday. An artificial style marred her natural gifts of a light, bright voice, but she interested her hearers in many rare songs. Among these were arrangements by Mr. Bibb from Handel and James Hook, four "Seasons," by Fevrier, composer of "Monna Vanna"; airs from "old" operas, including Flotow's "l'Ombre," and a group in memory of a New York composer, the late Edward Horsman.

Toscanini Gives Last Concert Here.

Mr. Toscanini conducted his third and last Metropolitan concert last evening with his orchestra of the Milan Scala, again playing to a sold-out house. It was the Italian organization's fifth appearance in Manhattan alone, and its seventh, counting those recently in Brooklyn and Newark, near by. Toscanini's program, which included additions to those of the previous performances, comprised Mozart's E flat symphony, Wagner's prelude to "The Master Singers," Elgar's "Symphonic Variations" and Sinigaglia's "Piemonte" suite, this last a novelty based on songs of the peasants of Piedmont. There were rising recalls after three of the numbers, even an encore after one; and at the close of the concert the leader was cheered.

Eleanor Reynolds Reappears.

Eleanor Reynolds, contralto, appeared in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon after seven years abroad, where she sang lately in the Mahler festivals at Vienna. She displayed a voice of fairly thrilling power for the small hall, its rich timbre well controlled if not colorfully varied, and her diction was admirable in Italian airs, songs in English and groups in French and German. Coenrad Bos was at the piano, and two American composers in the list were Lambert and Rogers.

NEW BISHOP LIKELY TO BE CITY RECTOR

Churchmen Expect Convention to Choose One of Three Leading Candidates.

READY FOR VOTING TODAY

Prelate, for the First Time in Ninety-one Years, Will Immediately Head the See.

When the clerical and lay delegates from the Diocese of New York meet today in Synod Hall to elect an Episcopal Bishop for New York it will be the first time in ninety-one years that a Bishop has been chosen to immediately become the head of the see. The Bishops chosen since then always have been elected to assist a Bishop still living. The See of New York has never been vacant since Sept. 10, 1830, when the Right Rev. John Henry Hobart, third Bishop of New York, died, until Dec. 20, last, at Bishop Charles S. Burch's death.

Leading churchmen are agreed that the convention beginning today will elect a New York rector to the bishopric. The choice lies between the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street; the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, rector of Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning of Trinity Church.

The Right Rev. Nathaniel R. Thomas, Bishop of the missionary district of Wyoming, is scheduled to be nominated, but even his firmest supporters express little hope for his election unless there is a deadlock between the three local candidates.

If all the delegates entitled to sit in the convention attend there will be 873 present. Of these 315 will be clergymen and 538 will be laymen. All of the clergymen have a vote. The laymen are made up of three vestrymen from each of the 167 parishes and thirty-seven laymen from that many missions. Each parish has one vote and each mission has one-half a vote.

There was a report late last night that if the deadlock which has been predicted between Dr. Stires, Dr. Slattery and Dr. Manning should develop there might be a conference of the leaders who have been supporting the three local rectors, and that they might agree to concentrate on the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity Church, Boston. If Dr. Mann could not win sufficient support speculation added the names of two other local men. One is the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates, Vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Broadway and 155th Street. As Dr. Gates is one of the Vicars under Dr. Manning it is known that he will not permit himself to run unless there is no chance for Dr. Manning. The other is the Very Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, Dean of the Cathedral.

A canon provides that the convention shall sit in executive session when electing a Bishop. At the last convention this rule was waived, but today it is the purpose to observe the canon because of the large number of delegates and the lack of space provided.

The Rev. Dr. Edward C. Chorley, however, will introduce a resolution asking that reporters from metropolitan daily newspapers assigned to report the convention be admitted. In this he will be backed up by Justice Vernon M. Davis.

FEWER CRIME CONVICTIONS.

This State's Record for 1920 Shows a Decrease of 13,477.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—A marked decrease in the number of criminal convictions in the State in 1920 as compared with those of the preceding year was shown in statistics on crime issued by the Secretary of State, John J. Lyons, today. The number of convictions in Courts of General Sessions last year was 33,835, as against 47,312 in 1919, or a decrease of 13,477. Males were largely in the majority, there being 31,062. Females numbered 2,773.

The report showed that twenty-two persons were pardoned last year as compared with twenty-five the year before, and that 157 commutations were granted as against 116 in 1919, while 241 were restored to citizenship as compared with 164 in 1919.

LETTER TOO STRONG FOR WOMEN ON JURY

Judge in English Divorce Case Allows the Document to Be Read Only by Men.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—For the first time in an English divorce court six women shared the jury box today with six men. Sir E. Marshall Hall, of counsel engaged in the first case, was uncomfortable in the presence of these jurywomen and twice he suggested they should not be obliged to hear it.

"This is a most unfortunate case to be the first heard before a mixed jury," he said, but Justice Horridge replied that cases must be taken as they come.

Later, when correspondence in the case was being read, there was one document which the Judge agreed was not a pleasant thing for women to see.

"Some of them may not be married, and it is a terrible thing for them," said the lawyer.

The Judge replied that it was the law and he couldn't help it, but they need not see the document if counsel agreed they needn't. Some of the jurywomen were unmarried, and it was decided it would be sufficient if the male jurors saw it.

One of the married jurywomen afterward was emphatic in expressing the opinion that no young women should be empaneled.

ART NOTES.

Porcelains on View at the Museum of French Art.

The fourth official loan exhibition at the Museum of French Art consists of porcelains of the eighteenth century. The discreet and quiet aspect of the room is due to the high aristocracy of the beautiful wares, as innocent of display or boisterous gayety as a maiden of the ancient régime.

Here is a rare piece of Rouen faience, a vegetable dish with a cover, lent by Walter E. Maynard. It has the strong color and general vigor of aspect of the early work. Small ewers and basins used for rose water range from a soft paste example of 1767, with a ground of "Bleu de Roi," to a hard paste "porcelain d'Angoulême" with an apple-green ground, lent by Mrs. George T. Bliss. Mrs. Bliss also lends a remarkable little clock—did any other century so love to mark the passage of time—with the figure of a Poussah at the base in enameled Chantilly ware, with mountings of gilt bronze. A pair of horses, very rare examples, in Moustiers faience, are lent by Mr. Myanard. Other figure pieces are a statuette of a boy, lent by Miss Margaret B. Gould; a group of boy and girl with bagpipes and book seated on a rock, lent by E. F. Bonaventure; a group, "Les Mangeurs de Raisins," lent by Henry Symons & Co., and "La Bergère Assise," lent by Miss Gould, all, whatever the date and whatever the ware, bearing the eighteenth century stamp of incredibly combined childishness and sophistication in the characterization.

Several factories of countries other than France are drawn upon, and the ringing black of Wedgwood basalt makes a striking contrast with the vivacity of the French wares. A historic note is struck by a Staffordshire mug with handles, decorated with emblems commemorative of the peace of Europe, signed at Paris, 1814.

Among those who have lent objects of importance to the exhibition, besides those already mentioned, are Mrs. McDougall Hawkes, Mrs. George J. Whelan, the Rev. Alfred Duane Pell, French & Co., Arthur S. Vernay, Mrs. Henry G. Bartol, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Leo Kessel and Miss Diane del Monte.

NEW YORK BOXERS THRASH CANADIANS

Win Seven Bouts Out of Eight From Visitors in International Tourney at Garden.

MILTON WEISS IS BEATEN

Amateur Champion Welterweight of State Is Knocked Out by Harry Henning of Toronto.

Father Knickerbocker's sturdy amateur boxers repulsed the invasion of Canada's best ringmen to the complete satisfaction of about 3,000 followers of the amateur sport last night in the international tournament held at Madison Square Garden. In a series of eight contests, ranging in weight from the flyweight to the heavyweight divisions, the local lads vanquished the amateurs from the Dominion in seven contests. Five of the metropolitan successes were scored by knockouts, clean or technical, and in two other bouts the Gotham boxers carried off decisions.

The one shocking exception to the night's rule came in the 147-pound class when Milton Weiss of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., State and district welterweight champion, bowed in defeat before the withering fire of Harry Henning, a Toronto youngster, in two rounds. A crashing right to the jaw after an excited exchange of blows sent Weiss down and out 1 minute and 45 seconds after the start of the second session.

The local champion gamely tried to gain his feet, and succeeded after a manner at the count of nine, but he crumpled backward again before becoming erect without being struck, and almost fell through the ropes out of the ring. The referee then stopped the bout.

The result came as a complete surprise. Through the first round Weiss outpointed his rival by a wide margin. Henning was wild and ineffective against the clever fast stepping, shifty local champion. A right on the jaw soon after the second round started floored Weiss for a short count. Arising Weiss was groggy and dazed, and with a right to the jaw Henning finished the New Yorker.

Bill Spengler, policeman boxer, supplied the seventh victory for New York in the closing bout of the night. Spengler engaged Harry Ellis, Toronto, at 175 pounds, and forced the Canadian to quit in the second round. Ellis was completely outclassed while the bout lasted. A right to the jaw toppled Ellis in the first round and only the bell saved him. In the second round Ellis decided he had taken enough and quit.

James [illegible] Fanning of the Hudson Guild, New York State champion, started the evening auspiciously for the local boxers in the first of the international bouts. The little west sider engaged Willie Gabbre, Toronto, in the first bout, a [illegible] at 112 pounds. The contest ended abruptly after 1 minute 49 seconds of boxing in the first round, with Fanning the victor by a knockout.

The local lad twice sent Gabbre to the canvas with crashing rights to the jaw. The second tumble convinced Referee Tom Smith that the Canadian was outclassed and Gabbre was sent to his corner. The Canadian claimed an injury to his ankle after the bout had been stopped.

The second international clash at 118 pounds furnished one of the best bouts of the evening. The principals were William Singer, metropolitan bantamweight champion, and William Wagman of Toronto. Singer received the decision of Referee Smith, when the judges disagreed at the end of the three sizzling rounds. The verdict was disapproved by some of the spectators.

Victor Has His Hands Full.

Wagman gave Singer a decidedly interesting session, and landed frequently with damaging right and left swings. The local champion was sent down in the second round, and on two other occasions when partly off balance Singer slipped down under Wagman's assault. The local lad, however, forced the fighting steadily and kept up an uninterrupted attack throughout the bout.

Jack Stark, Bronxdale A. C., added another victory for New York, when he stopped Cliff Graham, Toronto, in the second round of their bout at 126 pounds. The end came 2 minutes and 5 seconds after the start of the second round, when Stark sent his rival down with a right to the jaw. Stark floored Graham in the first round for a short count with a snappy left hook.

Archie Walker, the local lightweight champion, outboxed Walter Newton, Toronto, in their bout at 135 pounds. The contest was fast and full of action. Walker received the judges' decision.

Mortimer Seligman, Pastime A. C., added the fifth New York triumph in a spectacular bout with Pete Murray, Toronto, at 160 pounds. Seligman forced his rival to quit in the third round, after 1 minute 40 seconds of fighting.

A right to the jaw floored Murray for a count of four soon after the third round began. When the Canadian regained his feet Seligman piled him with buffeting rights and lefts until Murray staggered helpless into his own corner, indicating that he had had enough.

In the previous rounds Murray, a free-swinging type, rocked Seligman several times with right and lefts, but the local boxer recovered and turned defeat into victory.

Oregon Offers Dobie $8,500 To Coach Football Eleven

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 25.—Gilmour Dobie, football coach at Cornell, has been offered $8,500 to coach football at the University of Oregon, according to announcement here today.

Gilmour Doble won his first fame as a football coach in the West. For nine consecutive seasons he coached the University of Washington and did not suffer defeat in that time. On Thanksgiving Day of 1916 he resigned and came East to handle the reins of the Naval Academy. Last season he secured his release from a contract and coached the 1920 Cornell team. He is still under contract with Cornell, although his name has been frequently mentioned in connection with posts at other colleges.

RICKARD TO CONFER WITH MONTREAL MEN

Arranges Meeting Tomorrow Regarding Transfer of Dempsey-Carpentier Bout.

Promoter Tex Rickard, who is prepared to conduct the Dempsey-Carpentier bout independently, yesterday received a telegram from C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., expressing regret because of delay in starting the trip and seeking an appointment with the Garden promoter tomorrow. The telegram read:

"Regret delay. Leaving for New York tonight. Wire me immediately if convenient to meet Thursday; any time and place; re staging Carpentier-Dempsey fight in Montreal."

Promoter Rickard replied advising the Canadians that they could consult with him on the removal of the match to Canada tomorrow afternoon between 11:30 and 1 o'clock. In the absence of any positive information on the proposition which the Canadians are reported ready to submit, Promoter Rickard refused to discuss the situation. He declared, however, that the Canadian offer might hold some interest for him, adding that he was prepared to consider the proposition for holding the bout in the Dominion.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25.—Rival would-be promoters of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in Montreal will probably combine forces.

It has been known for some time that Tom Duggan, prominent fight promoter of this city and Managing Director of the Mount Royal race track as well as the Mount Royal Arena, has been interested in bringing the world's heavyweight championship bout to Montreal. Yesterday it was announced that C. F. Graham and F. O. Goodspeed of the Eastern Canada Securities, Ltd., were also after the fight and that they had their representative in New York, who would interview Rickard. Now there comes the news that these two interests are negotiating to work together.

This morning Jimmie McKimmie, well-known matchmaker, made arrangements with Mr. Graham for a meeting between the latter, Mr. Goodspeed and Mr. Duggan. Mr. Duggan will offer his track as a place to hold the title bout and will offer aid in financing the fight.

As regards his representative in New York, Mr. Graham said that when that man does meet Rickard it will be through the medium of one of the most prominent lawyers in the American metropolis, and not satisfied with that alone, Mr. Graham will leave for New York in person tonight. So intent is he upon staging the bout here that he feels that if "a thing is to be well done, do it yourself," and therefore has decided to see Tex Rickard in person.

It is expected that an amicable agreement can be arrived at between the two factions. They believe that in the interests of this city the fight ought to be brought on here, and therefore instead of opposing each other it would be much better to work together.

The Mount Royal race track would make an ideal place for such a big event, and Tom Duggan is anxious that this be the spot where preparations should be started.

"If no men has interviewed Rickard on our behalf yet," said Mr. Graham, "it is not because he does not want to, but because Rickard has not had the time or opportunity. To make sure of things, however, I have decided to go to New York tonight, and I have an appointment with Rickard in person for tomorrow."

LAY PLANS FOR BIG BOUT.

Dempsey-Willard Match May Be Arranged Next Tuesday.

Details of the proposed return bout between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Jess Willard, the giant Kansan who relinquished the title to the present possessor of the crown, will not be definitely closed until Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard, who plans to conduct the match over the fifteen-round route at Madison Square Garden March 17. Rickard and Willard were in conference yesterday discussing tentative plans for the bout, but the Garden promoter announced that he would await the return here of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, before actually closing arrangements for the match.

In the course of his conference with Rickard yesterday Willard agreed to the bout without imposing any exorbitant financial conditions. The former champion is eager for another chance at the title which once was his, and to gain this opportunity Willard says he will agree to anything within reason. Jess said after his conference with Promoter Rickard that he had agreed to box on a percentage basis and was prepared to begin training for the match just as soon as it is positively closed.

Part of the day Willard spent in discussing preliminary arrangements for the training course he contemplates undergoing in order to fit himself for the prospective return match against Dempsey. With his business manager, Ray Archer, the former champion discussed with friends and admirers plans for a training site and a number of sturdy camp assistants who will be capable of extending the Pottawatomie giant in his preparatory work. It is planned to select a quiet, isolated camp, possibly in the Adirondacks or the mountains of New Jersey, where Willard can settle down to a strict, rigorous training siege of perhaps two months. The former champion plans to secure a number of fast, sturdy and hard-hitting boxers to assist him as sparring partners. Possibly four or five partners will be engaged for the task of assimilating Willard's punches and retaliating. A special trainer will also be selected, according to present plans, to superintend Willard's training. It is possible also that a physician will be engaged to examine Willard as he progresses in his training.

3 SKATERS IN DEAD HEAT.

Jewtraw, Leitch and Moore Finish Even in One-Mile Struggle.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A dead heat between three ice skaters in a one-mile race resulted here today between Charles Jewtraw, Al Leitch and Joe Moore, all of Lake Placid. Jewtraw and Moore recently tied for the national championship at Newburg.

Jewtraw, who was making his first appearance on the ice since he was slightly injured in a fall ten days ago, won the quarter and half mile events. Moore took second place in each race. Leitch was third in the quarter, and Leslie Boyd of New York third in the half.

CANOE BROOK GETS JERSEY GOLF PLUM

Summit Links Chosen by State Association for Amateur Championship Tourney.

The Canoe Brook Country Club will be the scene of the next New Jersey State amateur golf championship tournament. The Summit course was chosen at the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Golf Association yesterday, being favored over the Knickerbocker Club of Tenafly by a margin of six votes to five. The Shackamaxon course at Westfield polled two votes.

Although no course was chosen for the junior championship which was inaugurated two years ago, this tournament came in for considerable discussion. While the two championships held thus far have been successful events, it was the consensus of opinion of the meeting that it can be made an even more pretentious affair. Whereas the past two events drew some twenty odd entrants, it is felt that at least twice that many and probably more should turn out. By way of stimulating interest in the event delegates were urged to exercise as much influence as possible toward having their clubs encourage the youngsters to enter.

Three clubs submitted invitations to the association to hold the junior meeting over their courses. They were Upper Montclair Country Club, Glen Ridge Country Club and the Hackensack Golf Club. The matter of making a selection from this trio or others that may desire to stage the tournament was left to the Executive Committee as was the matter of dates for the tournament.

It is quite probable that another annual open event will materialize this year as the result of yesterday's meeting. The association took up the matter of staging an annual State open championship, and only one consideration now stands in the way of such an event. The association is short on funds owing to the increased cost of practically everything having to do with golf. The treasurer's report showed that a balance of less than $50 remains in the treasury. This state of affairs led to a proposal to increase annual membership dues, which at present are only $10.

According to the report of the Treasurer, expenses of last year's amateur championship exceeded the receipts of the asociation from annual dues by 50 per cent. With its membership of some fifty clubs, the receipts were around $500, while expenses at Arcola last year ran to $750. Some increase is necessary to meet this state of affairs, and it is proposed to make the additional amount sufficient to defray the expense, including prize moneys, for an open championship.

Two new clubs were admitted to membership during the last year. They are the Pine Valley Golf Club of Sumner and Weequahic Golf Club of Newark. These bring the membership of the association up to fifty members.

The death at his home at Prestwick, Scotland, Monday night, of Charles Hunter, removes one of the very few old pillars of the game of golf in the land which is conceded to have originated the game as it is now played. The veteran professional was 84 years of age, and his activities on the links date well back to the time of Old Tom Morris, the most notable figure in the early days of the game.

Hunter played in the British open championship as far back as 1865, while Old Tom won his last championship in 1867. Though Hunter never won the title, he was a prominent figure in the annual tournaments for years. Some years ago he celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as the professional at Prestwick St. Nicholas, and many years ago was made a life member of the club. David Hunter, professional at the Essex County Club at Orange, N. J., is a son of the Prestwick veteran, and he has two brothers engaged in professional golf on the other side.

At a recent meeting of the organizers of the Grassy Sprain Golf Club of Bronxville the personnel of three committees to carry on work that remains to be done on the proposition was announced. George de Kay Gilder, Alfred O. Hoyt, Harold Fowler, A. J. McAllister and W. H. Crandall were named for the Committee on Membership. S. A. Scribner, Edward Meinel, Michael Wilson, John G. Anderson, John M. Haffen and B. E. Smythe were designated as the Committee on Course and Clubhouse. James H. McIntosh, L. D. Garrett, P. E. Bisland, Charles H. Neely and William G. Hamilton were selected as the Committee on Final Organization.

The club proposes to adhere strictly to a membership limit of 250. A subscription fee of $2,000 will be levied on all members, payable $1,000 on call of the Organization Committee and the remainder in instalments of $250 each at intervals of not less than three months. The course was reported as progressing nicely, and will be open for play by May 1 of this year.

Following the precedent of the last few years, the leading women golfers have decided on the first week in October for the women's national championship tournament. The actual dates this year will be Oct. 3-8. As previously announced, the tournament will be played at the Hollywood Golf Club, at Deal, N. J. Thus far these dates have not been officially announced by the United States Golf Association, but as long as the players themselves have selected these dates, they will undoubtedly be accepted.

MEDAL TAKEN BY PERKINS.

Kentucky Golfer Leads Field on Ormond Beach Links.

Special to The New York Times.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—N. B. Perkins, a sturdy golfer from Kentucky, made low score today in the qualifying round of the Tomoka Sweepstakes here. Making the best score here is more or less a habit of his, for this is the third time he has performed the feat. His card was 81 and one of the strokes was an incurred penalty for striking another player's ball on a green.

There were only two others below 90. E. W. Van Houten of Arcola, with an 85, was one of them and another metropolitan golfer, Charles Longnecker of the Engineers, was the other with an 86.

Among the cards were the following: N. B. Perkins, Williamsburg, Ky., 42, 39—81; E. W. Van Houten, Arcola, 45, 40—85; Charles Longnecker, Engineers, Roslyn, L. I., 45, 43—88; B. S. Brown, Columbus, 49, 44—93; Paul McKell, Morgantown, 48, 46—94; Wells Bassett, Exmoor, 46, 49—95; W. J. Nichols, Bridgeport, 50, 46—96; Ashton Harvey, Point Judith, 51, 45—96; W. F. WILLOUGHBY GOLF WINNER.

Defeats Wetzel, 6 and 4, in Tourney on Lake Worth Links.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. of the Merion Cricket Club, medalist in the annual Lake Worth golf tournament, won his match today, putting out F. J. Wetzel of Trenton by 6 and 4.

Darwin P. Kingsley of Garden City, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, again played the same steady game that won him a position in the first flight in the qualifying round, and put out M. A. Carroll of Oshkosh, who was the winner of the medal round last year. The score was 3 and 1.

The summary of the first sixteen:

Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. beat F. J. Wetzel, 6 and 4; W. L. Kingsley, Rome, N. Y., beat George [illegible] Easton, Engineers Golf Club, 4 and [illegible]; George [illegible] Heintzman, Hanlan [illegible], Canada, beat Colonel [illegible], Wilmington, 7 and 6; Darwin P. Urban, Three-Letter Athlete, Now Member of Hockey Team

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Luke Urban, a crack catcher in baseball, a sure shot in basketball, a second all-American choice as a football end and a former captain or captain-elect in each of these sports at Boston College, has turned to hockey for further honors. He has won selection as a goal of the varsity team, notwithstanding that until two weeks ago he had not played the game and could not skate. This fact has recalled to those familiar with his advent at the college that Urban had never played football until he was taken in hand by Coach Charley Brickley.

HARVARD CLUB IS VICTOR AT SQUASH

Wins Close Match From Crescent A.C.—Seller Beats Moses in Class B Tourney.

METROPOLITAN LEAGUE SQUASH TENNIS STANDING, CLASS B.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Yale	8	0	1000
Columbia	6	2	.750
Crescent A. C.	5	3	.625
Harvard	5	5	.500
Princeton	3	7	.300
D. K. E.	2	6	.250
Army and Navy	1	7	.125

Class B squash tennis players had a banner day of it yesterday with the class individual championship being continued at the Squash Club and team matches in progress at the Columbia, Harvard and Yale clubs. The individual tournament at the Squash Club suffered as a result of the team matches for only one match was played. It was between F. A. Seller of the Montclair Athletic Club and Alfred Moses of the Columbia Club and the former had very little difficulty in winning in two straight, 15—10 and 15—6.

The Princeton Club seven took seven straight matches from the D. K. E. team on the Yale Club courts while the Harvard Club team defeated the Crescent Athletic Club seven by a single match, the score being four to three, and that deciding match was not won till the third game. It was between E. H. Heminway of the Harvard Club and N. F. Torrance of the Crescent Athletic Club.

The other team match of the day was between the Yale Club and the Columbia Club. The result will not be known until Thursday for, at the conclusion of the play yesterday, each team had three matches to its credit. The seventh match was to have been between J. A. Victor of the Yale Club and F. M. Simonds Jr. of the Columbia Club, but, by mutual agreement it was postponed until Thursday and now the coaches of both clubs will have their hands full preparing these two class B players for their coming tussle on which so much depends.

The feature of the Princeton-D. K. E. team match was the match between Robert Monks of the Princeton aggregation and F. Jenkins, who a couple of years ago was runner up to the Class B champion. Monks put up a very good game and took the first by the score of 15—4, whereupon Jenkins came back and just reversed the score. Monks proved the stronger in the third game and won by the score of 15—6.

The only close match in the Columbia-Yale contest was that between W. A. Kimbel of the Columbia Club and J. F. Tronstine of the Yale Club, which the former won by the score of 17—18, 15—11, 15—10. J. Walker 3d of the Eli seven was the first victor for his team. He defeated Willis Putnam, 15—5, 17—14 in a match that had numerous streaks of brilliancy. In the next match between R. V. Mahan of Columbia and Reginald Roome of Yale, the latter seemed to be the favorite and the first game, which went to 17—14 in favor of Mahan, was hard enough fought out to cause the observers to believe that Roome might come back in the next, but he did not, as the score was 15 love.

Four of the seven matches between the Harvard Club and the Crescent Athletic Club went to three games, the first being that between F. S. Whitlock of Harvard and A. Baxter Jr., which Whitlock won, 15—10, 8—15 and 15—9. Then James Doig of the Half-mooners returned the compliment by defeating Murray Taylor, 15—10, 6—15, 15—10 and the Crescent seven took the lead when K. F. MacVaugh won from W. M. Carson in a two-game match, 15—8, 17—14. C. W. Dingee of the Crescent seven then added another to his team tally by defeating C. J. Coulter 16—18, 18—16, 15—7, and it was a most interesting match.

The summaries:

The Brooklynites took no chances, but started off with a dash, and at half time had rolled up a score of 18, while their adversaries had managed to score 11. Parmele was the star of the winning team, although Stewart also added materially to the score.

SALLEE PUTS NAME TO GIANT CONTRACT

Walker, Recruit Outfielder, Also Signs — Another Football Game for Polo Grounds.

Secretary Joseph D. O'Brien reported yesterday the receipt at the Giants' offices of the signed contract of Harry F. Sallee, the lofty twirler, who, although 6 feet 3 inches from the ground upward, barely casts a shadow, and is familiarly known as Slim. Sallee paraded at the Polo Grounds as a member of McGraw's forces during part of the 1916 season and throughout the two following campaigns. In 1919 he went to the Reds, and was secured from Moran late last season to help the Giants in their belated rush for the pennant—the rush that fell short. The Higginsport Sheriff didn't set anything on fire in those nerve-racking weeks of Autumn, his chief duty appearing to be finishing games that other parties had started disastrously. Still, McGraw regards him as a valuable man to have around, or, perhaps, to send away in the course of a trade.

Curtis Walker, an outfielder, purchased last Fall from the Augusta Club of the Southern Association, also sent in his signed contract for 1921 to the Giants' headquarters yesterday. Walker reported only a fortnight before the season of 1920 closed and got no try-out hereabouts, but Arthur Devlin, the scout, who recommended him to McGraw, is highly impressed with his ability in the outer garden.

The far-sighted gentlemen in the Giants' offices are already looking far beyond the close of the coming pennant fight, and have begun work on the football schedule for the Polo Grounds in the coming Autumn. Yesterday they closed with the management of the Fordham and Lafayette elevens for a game to be played in the Brush stadium on Oct. 22.

BUCK HERZOG IS RELEASED.

Veteran Infielder Turned Loose by the Cubs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Charles "Buck" Herzog, the veteran National Leauge infielder, who has been with the Chicago Cubs for the last two seasons received his unconditional realease today. Herzog's name was mentioned several times in connection with the investigation of dishonest ball playing, but President Heydler of the National League, after making an investigation, declared there was nothing in the player's conduct which implicated him in any wrongdoing.

In a letter sent to the player today President William Veeck of the Chicago club said the release was not "the result of any known conduct on your part that reflects in any manner upon your honor and integrity." The action was said to be in conformity with the policy of Manager John Evers to reconstruct the club with young men.

MAY PUT TEAM IN CHICAGO.

Continental League Asks Colored Aggregation to Join Circuit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—The new Continental Baseball League contemplates invading Chicago, it was learned today, when a letter was received from Secretary George M. Riley, inviting the American Giants, a colored professional team, to join the new circuit. The letter stated that two strong colored teams had joined, the Boston Tigers and the Knoxville Giants, and two more colored teams were sought by the organization. The Giants are owned by George Schorling and own the grounds at Thirty-ninth Street, which was the old home of the White Sox.

CLARK WINS GOLF MEDAL.

Leads Field in Qualifying Round of St. Augustine Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 25.—Donald Clark of Huntington, W. Va., won the qualifying medal in the first tournament of the season here today, with a score of 39, 48—87.

Clark played beautiful golf going out, finishing in only three strokes over par. On the ninth hole he ran down a long putt for a birdie two. Coming back, the West Virginian was off color in his iron play and thus ruined his chances for a fine score. Of the half dozen New York players who competed, only one qualified in the first sixteen. He was Dr. D. L. Culver, former trap-shooting champion. The doctor managed just to nose in.

The summary:

Donald Clark, Huntington, W. Va., 39, 48—87; W. A. Knight, St. Augustine, 42, 48—[illegible]; Hugh MacKenzie, Washington, 48, 43—91; O. P. Goode, St. Augustine, 44, 47—91; F. W. SELLERS CAPTURES 880-YARD LAURELS

New York A. C. Runner Wins Metropolitan Indoor Title at Bankers' A. L. Games.

220-YARD RACE TO WEFERS

He Defeats Good Field in Championship Struggle—Emes Takes Standing High Jump.

In a finish that was entirely too close for his own comfort, Jack Sellers of the New York A. C. and former holder of the national 600-yard title, won the 880-yard metropolitan senior indoor championship, which was the chief event of the annual games of the Bankers' Athletic League at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory last night. When Sellers shot over the line he was but a few inches in front of Sydney Leslie, who ran unattached and who forced the New York A. C. runner to extend himself to the limit for the entire last lap of the journey. O. Higgins of the New York A. C. was third, less than a yard from the leaders, and he also had a chance to win to within a few yards of the finish.

This event brought out some of the best athletes who took part in the games, and was a good contest from the time the pistol was fired. Clarence Sherman of the St. Christopher Club took the lead for the first lap, but Sellers was never far away from him, and in the last lap the Mercury Foot runner fought his way to the front and held it to the end. Leslie, however, appeared to have him beaten as they turned the half way mark on the last lap, but just when his chances seemed brightest he ran against the rail and was partly thrown off his stride. This accident may have cost him the victory. He made up for it quickly, and once more pressed close to Sellers, but could not overtake him.

Wefers Scores in 220.

Bertie Wefers of the New York A. C. gave left much doubt about the 220-yard metropolitan senior championship. Not but what he had strong contention, but he also had all the speed for the race, jumping to the front at the very start, he led the procession all the way, and had a comfortable margin in his favor at the end. Second to him was Ed Farrell, running unattached, and third was R. W. Georgi of the New York A. C. Farrell made a desperate effort, but Wefers was never threatened by his rival.

Edward L. Emes, who formerly represented the Bronx Church House, staged a successful comeback after a long absence from athletics when he captured the standing high jump. Emes appeared in the colors of the New York A. C. There was considerable interest attached to his appearance, as it was a question if he could come back to his old-time form. Whether he is as good as ever was not determined, but he was good enough to take the event he was entered for. He registered 4 feet 10 inches, and that gave him the event, with two inches to spare. E. Berguist of the Hawk A. C. and J. Erbel of the same organization tied for second place with 4 feet 8 inches, and Berguist was awarded second on the draw for the position.

Mile Handicap to Williams.

The one-mile handicap, closed to members of the Bankers' Athletic League, was won by George Williams of the Central Trust Company, who started from scratch. Though he had to concede some large handicaps to some of his rivals, he ran a strong race, gradually wore down the erstwhile leaders and finished with a good margin to his credit. V. F. Miller of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, with a handicap of 45 yards, ran a bang up race, and was second, with A. Stone of the Guaranty Trust Company, handicapped at 15 yards, third. Stone was never able to catch Miller, though he disposed of a number of men who had started ahead of him.

The running high jump, an event closed to the B. A. L., was won by R. Daily, Liberty National Bank, who made a mark of 5 feet 10 inches and easily disposed of his nearest rival, L. Burk, of the City Bank Club. The latter had 5 feet 4 inches to his credit, and third went to Howard Hevern with 5 feet 1 inch.

The team of the St. Anselm's A. C. captured the medley relay A. A. U. handicap, W. Hannon, V. Tally and the Bennett brothers being the winning runners. The Brooklyn A. C. took second and the West Side Y. M. C. A. was third.

Man o' War Leaves in Special Car for Kentucky Stud Farm

BERLIN, Md., Jan. 25.—Man o' War, Samuel D. Riddle's famous three-year-old racing champion, left here this afternoon for his future home in the Blue Grass country of Kentucky, where he will enter a stud. He was accompanied by two other horses as companions. Only about twenty-five persons saw the departure.

The great racer left the Riddle Farm, five miles from here, shortly after noon accompanied by the other two horses, Trainer Feustal and three attendants. Man o' War was well blanketed for the trip to the railroad, being led all the way. The weather was cold and blustery.

The attendants experienced no trouble in getting the three horses in the specially prepared car for the trip. The car will be switched to a Western express at Philadelphia tonight.

HORSE SHOW BODY ELECTS VANDERBILT

President of A. A. H. S. Renamed at Annual Meeting—4 New Member Clubs Added.

At the annual meeting of the Association of American Horse Shows, at the Biltmore Hotel yesterday, Reginald C. Vanderbilt was again elected President of the organization, which in addition to electing officers, also awarded dates for exhibitions to be held during the coming season.

The other officers elected were: Thomas G. Aston, Vice President; Nancy Willets, Secretary and Treasurer; and Cecil F. Colton, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer. The Board of Directors selected consists of the following members: Thomas G. Aston, John McE. Bowman, G. Howard Davison, William du Pont, Robert A. Fairbairn, Fred F. Field, A. Henry Higginson, Prescott Lawrence, Pierre Lorillard Jr., Alfred B. McClay, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Norman Van Voorhis, J. Macy Willets, J. K. Dering and John R. Valentine.

The annual report was particularly pleasing to the members, as it showed a decided and steady gain in the number of exhibitions held during the past three years as well as a gain of four members, making a total of forty-five clubs. Two of the new clubs are Canadian, and it is the hope of the association that more of the Canadian organizations can be added to the membership in the near future. A rule against importing horses from Canada has kept some of the Canadian organizations from seeking membership, but this handicap is partly overcome now by the permission to import horses under bond where the animals are to be exhibited in shows open to the public.

It was reported that there had been but one case of misconduct of an exhibitor or agent under the rules governing the shows. In this instance, the report declared, the horse shown was not as represented in the entry blank and the Directors decided that all entries of the stable responsible for the entry be refused for a period of one year. This ruling included the suspension of all persons connected with the stable.

The name of the stable was not stated, but the only case of violation of the rules which came to public notice during the past year was that of Little Fire Lady, owned by Miss Patty Vauclain of Philadelphia. Patrick O'Connell, manager of the Broad Lawn Stables, was suspended by the A. A. H. S. for one year.

The dates awarded for 1921 follow:

April 5-6, Pinehurst; 20-23, Brooklyn; 26-29, New York Spring.

May 7, Philadelphia, indoor; 11, Wynnewood, pony; 25-30, Devon.

AERO HANDICAP TO TABLEAU D'HONNEUR

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 25.—Giving his backers considerably more thrills than they bargained for in a heavily played odds-on choice, Tableau d'Honneur won the Aero Handicap, a five and a half furlong dash which was the chief event on the program at the Fair Grounds today. He won by the proverbial whisker in spite of the fact that he was probably much the best of the very ordinary field of sprinters that tried for the purse, for he got home just a head in front of Mythology, and his supporters never breathed easily until he was over the finish line.

Although Tableau d'Honneur has been performing rather consistently, he usually wins or loses by very narrow margins; but today he seemed to stand out in his company so decidedly that he was made a 1 to 2 favorite while there was little support for any of the others. He might have won much more easily but for the fact that he broke from the outside and was forced to go wide for the entire trip, just getting up in the stretch in time to gain the decision.

Mythology showed surprisingly good speed and taking the lead at the start held sway all the way to the last sixteenth. The winner kept improving his position until at the turn into the stretch he was within striking distance, but was obliged to go out to the middle of the track to keep out of close quarters. Once he was straightened out for home he moved up fast and, catching Mythology, fought it out gamely. Grayson was third after being well up with the pace throughout, but none of the others was ever a strong contender. Daydue showed speed for five furlongs but hung badly in the final sixteenth.

The Sunnyland Stable's Ultra Gold accounted for a six-furlong dash in which he easily defeated Crystal Ford and Herald among others after coming from far back. Panaman and Redmon raced with each other in making the early pace, and both were through when they turned into the stretch. Panaman quit utterly and Redmon dropped back into the ruck while Ultra Gold slipped through and closed with a rush. Crystal Ford also finished strongly but was too far back when he made his bid to get to the winner.

Harvard to Lose Wrestling And Basketball Captains

Special to The New York Times.

He has fallen arches and will be unable to face the Massachusetts Aggies tomorrow. McDonnell has the distinction of being elected varsity wrestling captain three years in succession. His loss will be a serious one. Tolbert has been playing a strong defensive game for the basketball five.

APPLEBY DEFEATS MIAL IN 18.2 PLAY

Wins by 300 to 222 in Second Match of Eastern Class A Title Tourney.

EASTERN 18.2 CLASS A BALKLINE TOURNAMENT STANDING.

Name.	G.	W.	L.	P.C.
Clarkson	1	1	0	1000
E. T. Appleby	1	1	0	1000
Gardner	1	0	1	.000
Mial	1	0	1	.000

The second match of the Class A Eastern 18.2 balkline championship tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, held last night at the club house of the New York Athletic Club, was a pretty slow, go-as-you-please affair between Dr. L. L. Mial and Edgar T. Appleby. The contest, which ran for forty-one innings, was finally won by Appleby by the score of 300 to 222.

Dr. Mial played a careful, cautious game throughout. He was better at nursing the balls in the earlier innings of the game than was his opponent, but after the ivories once got away from him he generally had difficulty in bringing them together again. Dr. Mial made the high run of the evening, nevertheless, a cluster of 43. Appleby's best collection was 37 buttons. Seventeen innings blank for the doctor, however, tell the story of his defeat. Appleby was blanked for eleven sessions, and after both men got above the 200 mark, the winner averaged about 17 for six innings, the most consistent playing of the evening. Neither player ran a very startling average for the whole route, that of the winner being 7 15-41, while 5 17-41 is all that can be recorded for the loser.

The seventeenth inning proved to be the best for Dr. Mial. He got the balls back together several times when they had strayed apart, and made some very good massé shots. One particularly difficult one, when the ivories were in a row, evoked applause. He ran 1, 5 to 2, 4 to 1, 2 and 1 to 2, third. Time—1:12 2-5. Redmon, Green Grass, Panaman, Royal Duck, Louise V., Archie Alexander and Kuklux also ran.

Appleby did his best work, not in his high-run inning, but in his succession of consistent innings toward the close. His trouble at the outset seemed to be a tendency to strike a little too hard, driving the object balls wide apart. In the later innings he played with a more delicate stroke, keeping the ivories well together, and his massé shots were particularly successful.

The contestants in the game tonight will be Francis Appleby and E. W. Gardner. Gardner lost to Clarkson on the opening evening.

The scores:

Edgar T. Appleby—1 3 0 7 0 0 4 0 13 2 3 12 0 3 12 10 0 8 0 0 0 0 2 1 0 4 1 7 20 0 0 23 4 17 11 21 19—300. Average—7 18-41.

Church Easily Outplays Grogan.

SCOTT WINNER OF HERCULES TROPHY

New York State Shooter First in Eastern Live Bird Championship Match.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., Jan. 25.—Killing twenty-four out of his twenty-five fliers, with the second dead out of bounds, Asher C. Scott of Morton, N. Y., won the fifth annual Great Eastern handicap, emblematic of the live bird championship of the East, shot here under the auspices of the Hercules Gun Club today.

William H. Clegg of Philadelphia, a former Keystone State title holder, led the classic field of fourscore of gunners, the cream of the amateur wing-shots of the East, up to the twenty-third round, when the Quaker City shooter lost two, which put him back with George A. Brown of Seneca Falls, N. Y.; Harry B. Seigler of Schwenksville and Edward Shank of Philadelphia, who tied for the Runner-up Cup in the shoot-off of the trophy. Brown won by killing five straight.

Frank M. Troeh of Vancouver, Wash., the international live bird champion, finished three down. Of the New York Athletic Club gunners competing David Wadsworth 3d was high with 20 kills. Ben S. Donnelly, who was a member of the American Olympic trap shooting team, finished with 19; Reginald Sinclair, 17; Martin J. McVoy Jr., 19; Walter H. Bauer, 16; M. B. Orr, 19; R. F. Rice, 19, and E. B. Collins, 15.

The New York Athletic Club representatives finished third in the team shoot for five-man teams, scoring a total of 94 kills. The Fortside Gun Club of Philadelphia carried off the trophy with 100 birds scored, with the Spring Valley Shooting Association of Reading runner-up, registering 105 kills.

LAYTON WINS TWO BLOCKS.

Three-Cushion Champion Scores Over De Oro by Steadiness.

Those who witnessed the continuation of the three-cushion billiard match between Alfredo De Oro and John Layton, the champion, yesterday at Kline's Strand Billiard Academy were reminded of the fable of the hare and the tortoise. Layton won both afternoon and evening blocks of 50 points each, the former by the score of 50 to 49, which is the reverse of the result on Monday afternoon, and he won the evening block by the score of 50 to 45, which makes the grand total to date 200 for Layton and 182 for De Oro.

De Oro made numerous spectacular and good clusters during the afternoon, the longest being 10, made when he went to the table the second time, but Layton kept at his steady plugging game with deadly accuracy and regards angles, and, although the Cuban had tallied other clusters of 5 and 8, still in the thirty-ninth inning the champion passed De Oro. But a couple of innings later De Oro again assumed the lead and held it till he had his full count of the block of 49 when Layton, who had 4x at that time, kept up his steady work and by runs of 2 after 2 managed to win out before De Oro could get invoked needed 1 more point. Layton missed three difficult shots as a result of kiss-offs and De Oro lost two, in five consecutive attempts the two made to score, and in every case the cue ball was directly headed for the object ball.

In the evening game both made numerous unusual shots which brought forth volleys of applause from the large gallery. A forced draw shot by Layton was his most difficult shot, while the one that brought the greatest applause was a shot that failed to make, but it came so near to counting and was so difficult that the gallery gave him the benefit. In the evening session De Oro took the lead just as he had in the afternoon game, and in the forty-fifth inning the score was 38 to 26 in his favor, but again the tortoise overhauled the hare by indomitable plugging, and, in this case, by runs of 7 and 4, which, along with singles, put him on even terms with the Cuban in the forty-ninth inning. The match will be continued this afternoon and tonight.

Collegiate Five Adds Another.

Collegiate School's basketball team added another to its list of season's triumphs yesterday when it defeated the Hoboken Academy quintet in a game on the latter's court by the score of 16 to 8. A rally in the second half enabled Collegiate to score its victory. At the end of the first half the Hoboken lads were in the lead by a margin of 5 to 3.

TO ASK CURE BY LAW FOR BAIL BOND EVIL

Investigators Urge Making Surety Concerns Responsible and Recording of Collateral.

WOULD LICENSE BAIL GIVER

Recommend 2 Per Cent. Fee and That All Who Write Bonds Be Employed Under Salary.

Legislation limiting the granting of authority to write bail bonds so that surety companies may be made directly responsible for every bond written and the collateral given to secure it will be urged as the result of the John Doe investigation into the system of procuring bail bonds.

The report will recommend that the surety company itself be represented through an executive of the committee, and not by irresponsible agents, in the writing of every bond, and that collateral pledged for the security of the bond be a matter of public record on file in the District Attorney's office and the court where the bond is issued.

Limitation of the fee charged for a bond also will be recommended in the report, it being the belief of those who inquired into conditions that a 2 per cent. charge should be made for ordinary bonds, such as is charged at present, with a fixed charge based upon the hours of service at night or under other unusual conditions. And that all persons writing bonds be in the employ of the surety company and paid a salary.

The issuing of blanket powers of attorney to agents to be by them passed on to other persons over whom the company has no control, will be condemned by the report, as one of the greatest sources of evil, in the present bonding system.

The committee suggests that a license be required for all persons and corporations engaged in the bonding business.

Discussion of the recommendations for legislation made by the Bar Association Committee, of which Edward J. McGuire is Chairman, will take place at a meeting of the association tonight.

LAMSON SERVICE

He never waits for work

Neither does he lift the full cases to nail on the covers. As fast as one is nailed, another is at his hand ready to push under the machine. As soon as that is nailed, it is carried away from him.

That is only one operation in this plant, which is equipped with a Lamson System of mechanical conveyors. The saving in this operation is multiplied in every operation where the speed of production is regulated and maintained automatically.

The basis of efficient production—of making the most in the least time and space—is the continuous flow of goods through the plant.

A Lamson System of automatic conveyors applied to your business would give you this stream of production—saving costly floor space and overhead, and positively increasing production to a point where the installation would be a profit-maker. Lamson Conveyors are installed unit by unit without interference with production. Each unit starts to pay for itself as soon as it begins to operate.

Send for a Lamson engineer to survey your plant.

Metal Musical Instruments.

Quite a good deal of interest is being taken by the trade in a line of stringed musical instruments made of metal which has just been introduced. The samples shown include mandolins, guitars, banjos and Russian instruments, selling at retail from $1.75 to $4.50. A metal mandolin is 21 inches long 9 inches wide and retails for $3. The instruments have been designed chiefly for use as toys to stand the hard knocks usually given such articles. Good orders have been placed on the line, and manufacturers of wooden instruments are watching the results obtained.

Straw Hats Banned.

While it is fashionable in some things to reverse the seasonal order and wear furs in Summer, silk hosiery in Winter, etc., this rule does not seem to apply to millinery. The socially elect, according to investigators of the Retail Millinery Association, are sticking strictly to velvet hats and are passing up those of the straw variety. An investigation of the style trend conducted along Fifth Avenue showed that the straw hat has its following, but not among those who set the fashions. Their support of the velvet head covering is expected to make the straw hat passé, as far as its appearance in January is concerned.

Keeping Teeth in Luxury.

Not since a woman customer asked the cost of making a solid silver cage for her birds has anything so unusual come to the attention of an executive of a local silverware concern as a demand made very recently by a wealthy man for a solid silver receptacle in which to let his false teeth soak at night. The clerk to whom the order was given was "stumped" and put the matter up to his chief. The latter, after some hard thinking, suggested that the customer be shown a certain type of silver box originally designed for a far different purpose. This was done and the customer soon departed with the box.

Gray Goods Prices Break.

Further lack of trading in the local gray goods market was evident yesterday, as were some recessions in prices. Nearby sales of 39-inch 73-76 printcloths were put through at 10¾ cents. In the other printcloths 38½-inch 64-60s were more or less nominally held at 8½ cents, although some sales were known to have been made at 8⅜ cents. Buyers again paid 7¾ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s, which are apparently in not very large supply. Not a great deal was done in sheetings during the day, although some business was reported in 5.50s at 6½ cents.

What Dress Goods Demand Does.

Conditions from the standpoint of both selling men's wear fabrics and from buying the materials out of which they are produced are not considered satisfactory in that branch of the woolen industry. The demand for clothing fabrics has still quite a distance to travel, it is pointed out, before a normal business is secured. At the same time the situation has so improved in dress goods that the wool and yarn markets are stiffening. This uneven state of trade as between the men's wear and the dress goods division is not one that is relished by producers of the former materials. They see the prospect of being forced to pay more for their raw products even though the condition of their own trade does not warrant it.

Silverware Prices Revised.

Although salesmen for leading silverware concerns in this market have not been in their territories long enough to turn in any sizable orders, the impression prevails here that a good Spring business will be done. This belief is based not only on the knowledge that retailers' stoks are low for the most part, but also on the improvement that is reported in other lines of business. An important factor in making retailers buy, it was said yesterday, will be the reductions that have been made in the prices of all varieties of plated and sterling ware. A sample of the reductions that have been made was cited yesterday in which a certain style of sterling tablespoons had been reduced from $85 a dozen to $60.

Frequent Trips for Buyers.

Although the aggregate of orders received for ready-to-wear of various kinds and for other store merchandise is said to be reaching very satisfactory totals, individually the amounts required are small. This has been the experience of manufacturers and wholesalers in many lines. An instance given yesterday was of a buyer from Texas who is back again in the market after a trip he made only two weeks ago. At that time, he secured just enough merchandise to carry along the department over the intervening period, it was explained, and he must replenish his stocks. This policy is understood to be more or less of a general one, and the second trips are expected by wholesalers to yield much better orders in view of the stiffening of the markets.

Georgettes Have Improved.

If georgettes were an index to conditions in the silk market, that trade might confidently point to a greatly improved situation. Popular makes of this fabric have advanced half again over their most depressed price. Makes which were selling not long ago in the "distressed goods" market at 67½ cents are now reported to be quoted at 97½ cents. The latter price is still understood to be somewhat below actual cost of production. The market, however, awaits an even better price with the final cleaning up of accumulations of this material and the closing out of the great quantities of cheap makes which glutted the trade. Good constructions are in active demand, and sellers can make about their own price, if they do not value their product too highly.

Offers New Cigarette Case.

Something different in cigarette cases is now being offered to the wholesale jewelry trade by a Rhode Island manufacturing concern. Not only is the new case of different shape than the usual flat style, measuring about three inches long by two wide by one thick, but it is especially designed for smokers of the brands of popular-priced cigarettes that are packed twenty to the package. Instead of taking the cigarettes out one by one and inserting them in the case, as is done with the usual type, in the new case the whole package is inserted in the holder portion at once. Then the top of the package is torn off by means of a serrated edge with which the holder is made, leaving enough of the cigarettes exposed to make them easy to get hold of. Made of nickel silver, the new case is said to be non-tarnishable.

Expect Better Jewelry Sales.

The jewelry business was described yesterday as being somewhat in a state of coma at the moment, largely due to the quiet which usually prevails during the retail inventory season. Optimism is general in the trade, however, and a market improvement in sales is expected soon. High-priced goods, in particular, are expected to do better in the near future, as retail stocks were pretty well depleted by the holiday demand. That the retail trade, as a whole, is in a healthy financial condition was said yesterday to be shown by the promptness of payments and the small number of failures. Platinum has now dropped to prices ranging from $70 an ounce for the soft metal to $105 for the hard, and an upturn in quotations in the near future would not come altogether as a surprise.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Milton Lichtenstein & Co., resident buyers, 25 West Thirty-third Street, have taken additional quarters at 18-20 West Thirty-fourth Street, where they are conducting a jobbing department for their accounts in dry goods, piece goods, notions, underwear, hosiery, &c. Louis Bernstein is in charge.

The surplus Textile Exchange, commission brokers, have removed from 21 East Fourteenth Street to new quarters on the fourteenth floor of the Metropolis Building, 31 Union Square.

The twenty-seventh annual entertainment and reception of the Julius Kayser Mutual Aid will be held at the Thirteenth Armory Hall, Sumner and Jefferson Avenues, Brooklyn, on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Music will be supplied by the Thirteenth Regiment Band.

EUROPE FOR TESTING IMMIGRANTS THERE

Caminetti Tells Senate Committee That Project Meets General Favor Abroad.

GIVES STEAMSHIP PLANS

Says They Are Fixing Up Barracks at Ports and Preparing for a Flood to America.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Secretary Wilson's suggestion that the admissibility of immigrants to the United States be considered at the source so as to avoid the "tragedy" of aliens breaking up their homes and coming to America, only to be excluded, has met with the instant approval of European Governments and American diplomatic and consular officers overseas, Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, declared today before the Senate Immigration Committee.

Mr. Caminetti described his recent trip through Europe to obtain first-hand information as to the immigration problem and told of the very extensive preparations being made by steamship lines, Foreign Governments and various organizations for handling the expected flood of immigrants bound for the United States.

Incidentally, Mr. Caminetti said there was a general impression among the peoples of Europe that the American Government, through various organizations operating to assist immigrants on their way to this country, was inviting aliens to come here. He declared that this was not the intention of the organizers, "nor has it at any time been their purpose, but the effect is as stated, and great masses of people left their homes last Fall and this Winter, enduring hardships and suffering to reach ports of embarkation."

The committee was told by the Commissioner General that transatlantic steamship lines seemed to be "deeply engaged" in making provisions for the handling of immigrants for the present as well as for the future. He said the immigrant barracks or hotels at embarkation ports in use before the war had either been placed in commission again or preparations made for their further use, and that new barracks along improved lines were being constructed.

The Red Star Line is planning such barracks at Antwerp, he said, while the White Star and Cunard lines plan barracks at Cherbourg. Much activity also is being shown at Southampton, Mr. Caminetti added.

WAR ON RUM REMEDIES.

Dry Officials Plan to Curb the Sale of Disguised "Hard Liquor."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Active steps are soon to be taken by Federal prohibition officials to block the distribution of intoxicating beverages masquerading as patent medicines.

Prohibition officials said tonight that permits for the manufacture of medicinal preparations in which alcohol was used would be limited as much as possible. The Bureau of Internal Revenue, one official said, was determined to curb the well-known abuse of the patent medicine permits.

Thousands of applications, officials said, were coming in for permits and renewals of permits to manufacture patent medicines containing alcohol. Every application will be scrutinized with the utmost care, and it is the intention of the prohibition enforcement forces to weed out all except strictly medical preparations.

TO EXPERIMENT ON APES.

Pasteur Institute Gets Donation for Anti-Tuberculosis Test.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—A first subscription of 30,000 francs has been sent through the Matin to the Pasteur Institute toward the expenses of outfitting a laboratory in West Africa where it is proposed to carry on experiments on anthropoid apes, with the view of discovering an anti-tuberculosis vaccine.

As cabled last week, experiments carried on by Dr. Calmette and others at the Pasteur Institute have been so far advanced that it is thought advisable to continue them by experimenting on apes. Money is, however, needed to set up a laboratory in West Africa, where apes could be kept in a semi-wild state. Toward this work a check for the sum mentioned above has been sent by Georges Cahen Leon, a Paris merchant, who in his letter, expressed the hope that others will join in subscribing toward the 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 francs necessary for establishing the laboratory.

Experiments on other animals have so far proved so successful that every hope is entertained that a real preventive inoculation against tuberculosis has been discovered and by experiments on apes it is hoped to carry the discovery a stage forward before experimenting on human beings.

DAWES OUT AS BANK HEAD.

But Stays as Chairman of Central Trust Company of Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Charles G. Dawes, whose name has been prominently discussed as the possible choice of President-elect Harding for Secretary of the Treasury or, failing that, some other Cabinet post carried out this afternoon his announced intention to resign as President of the Central Trust Company of Illinois which he founded in 1902. He was immediately elected Chairman of the Board of Directors, and Joseph E. Otis, First Vice President, was chosen to succeed him in the Presidency.

Mr. Dawes stated that the change was being made in accordance with a plan inaugurated by himself several years ago.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "it is really a change in title instead of a change in work. I'll be here right along as before."

Wilson Uses Pen Signature Again.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Congress received from President Wilson today the first message signed with pen and ink since the President was taken ill a year and a half ago. The message had to do with changes in customs districts. Since his illness and up to this time the President has used an indelible pencil in signing communications to Congress.

Ties Up 20 More Merchant Ships.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Government-owned merchant vessels aggregating 122,000 deadweight tons will be withdrawn from service under orders issued today by the Shipping Board. Twenty vessels were ordered tied up at various ports.

Won't Sell Army Docks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The War Department does not intend to sell docks or terminals built for the army during the war, Secretary Baker advised the Senate today in response to a resolution by Senator Jones, Chairman of the Commerce Committee.

WOULD ADD A YEAR TO LEGAL TRAINING

Need of More College Work to Be Urged Upon City Bar by Columbia Dean.

Recommendations that would add a year of college study or its equivalent to legal training in an attempt to raise the standard of the profession will be made tonight before the Bar Association of the City of New York in a report by Harlan F. Stone, Dean of the Law School of Columbia University, as Chairman of the Committee on Legal Education.

The changes advocated have aroused some opposition. The recommendations were made last year, although they did not become public and were not acted upon. This year they have been renewed by Dean Stone and his associates on the committee, with a request that action be taken upon the report.

The resolution suggests that candidates for the bar should not begin their legal studies without "having first received some intellectual training in an institution of college grade, and preferably without having first pursued a college course."

Dean Stone bases this recommendation on the conclusion that "there are annually admitted to the bar of this State large numbers of men who are unfitted for its responsibilities by training and education and who are without natural or acquired inclination to uphold its traditions," and adds that "New York is more solicitous for the health of its horses and dogs than it is for the preservation of the rights of its citizens."

The tendency of present educational methods, even where the candidate attends law schools, is to train lawyers in precise rules of law rather than to develop general intellectual ability, the committee says.

"Criticisms which have come to our attention are directed toward the lack of a developed moral character on the part of candidates," says the report, "and the absence of the kind of training and intellectual development which fits them to conform to the intellectual and ethical standards which are essential to the bar. Too often the license to practice law becomes a license to prey upon the public.

"The superiority as a whole of the English bar over our own, despite its inferior legal education, is due, we believe, to the fact that most of its members are educated at the universities."

CALDER ON TAX EXEMPTIONS

Senator Advocates Freeing Mortgages Under $40,000.

Tax exemption of amounts up to $40,000 invested by individuals in mortgages was advocated by Senator William M. Calder last night in a speech in the West Side Y. M. C. A., at 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, on the housing situation.

"High taxes have driven men of large means to withdraw their money from real estate and mortgages and invest it in tax-exempt securities," the Senator said. "I don't believe in any kind of tax exemption, but so long as there are $15,000,000,000 worth of tax exempt securities in this country, we must make mortgages attractive investments at this critical time in order to interest capital in building."

Senator Calder said he was about to introduce another bill in the Senate, operative for five years, providing that any one who sells at a profit any kind of dwelling house built since the armistice, shall be relieved of taxation on that profit, provided he reinvests it in a new building. Mr. Calder said that while some legislation was necessary to keep down rents, he thought that the rent laws had done as much as anything else to divert capital from building dwellings.

WANT FRESH EGG TARIFF.

American Producers Alarmed at Recent Imports From China and Japan.

Eggs from China and Japan have been received in this country in such large quantities in the last few weeks as to cause American producers to agitate for an import duty on fresh eggs, according to a statement issued yesterday by Mrs. Louis Welzmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets. There is an import duty now on frozen eggs, Mrs. Welzmiller said.

The so-called fresh eggs from China and Japan reach this market about a month after they leave those countries. They are recandled and sold here as Western eggs at 50 cents a dozen or up wholesale. Mrs. Welzmiller said that they compared favorably with storage eggs.

BETTER GAME LAWS WANTED

Protective Association Asks Special Care of Fur-Bearing Animals.

Dr. E. W. Nelson, Chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, and Game Commissioners from many States addressed the annual conference and dinner of the American Game Protective Association held last evening in the Waldorf.

A resolution was adopted favoring the creation of a United States Department of Conservation, expressing sympathy with the movement to lessen the destruction of fur-bearing animals and advocating the establishment by all States of long closed seasons and licensing of trappers and all dealers in raw furs. The conference went on record as favoring the adoption of anti-alien gun laws and supporting a system of Federal game refuges.

CRAIG SEES BUS 'BUNGLING.'

Wants City Conveyances, but Opposes Methods Used to Get Them.

Controller Charles L. Craig did not accompany the members of the Board of Estimate to Albany yesterday to plead with the Governor and Legislature to allow the city to purchase and operate buses. The Controller said he was in favor of municipal buses, but did not approve of the methods of the present administration to get them.

"I believe in buses," he said, "and I further believe that if legislation had been properly presented to the Legislature favorable laws would have been enacted. But the whole matter has been badly bungled in presentation."

Washington Bookplate Brings $180.

The sale of the library of Mrs. Franklin Bartlett and bookplates, gathered by the late Dr. Henry C. Eno, was concluded yesterday at the American Art Galleries. The session brought $1,970. The total for the sale was $4,986. The highest price was $180, paid by F. Caplin for the bookplate of George Washington. The same buyer also gave $100 for the bookplate of Paul Revere, probably engraved by himself.

RETAINS CONTROL OF NIAGARA POWER

Falls Power Company's Monopoly Temporarily Assured by Federal Board.

NEW CANAL PLAN OFFERED

Project Is to Connect Erie and Ontario, but the Present Commission Will Not Act on It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The temporary continuance of the Niagara Falls Power Company's control over all water diverted from the Niagara River above the falls for power purposes became assured today through an agreement between the companies applying to the Federal Power Commission for water privileges along the river, and through the decision of the commission to consider no applications which would depend upon ratification of the pending treaty with Canada.

The agreement entered into by three of the applicants not to press their petitions at this time, and the action of the commission in its hearings today in ruling out several other applicants left as the only active applicant the City of Buffalo. The Buffalo application was thereupon merged with that of the State of New York, and pressure for its consideration by the commission was held up, pending action by the New York Legislature on all matters pertaining to Niagara Falls water power. New York State officials yesterday announced their intention of testing in the courts the authority of the Federal Power Commission to approve or disapprove applications.

The commission in virtually concluding its hearings on Niagara power projects today received from Millard F. Bowen plans for a proposal involving the construction of a canal from a point south of Buffalo to connect Lakes Erie and Ontario. Secretary Baker, a member of the commission, pronounced it a "daring project," and intimated that, as it could not be undertaken before the change in Administration, no action would be taken on it by the present commission.

Another project, which would include tunnels under Goat Island and a dam across the gorge below the falls, was presented by Peter A. Porter of Niagara Falls and Dr. Kennard Thomson of New York.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Continuance of the transcontinental airplane mail service was recommended by the Senate Post Office Committee today in reporting the annual Post Office Appropriation bill. The committee inserted an appropriation of $1,500,000 for this service.

When the bill was before the House the appropriation was stricken out on a point of order.

Ford's Gain Now 2,495 Votes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A net gain of 2,495 votes had been made by Henry Ford over Senator Newberry when the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections closed its work today in the recount of the Michigan Senatorial ballots, with 1,718 of the 2,232 precincts recanvassed.

SAYS COAL GOUGERS MADE $1,500,000,000

Senator Calder Tells That Amount Was "Mulcted" Out of Public Last Year.

BILL AIMS AT MIDDLEMEN

He Asserts That the Purpose Is to Tax Them Out of Existence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Taxes on coal dealers as provided in the Calder coal regulation bill have purposely been set high "to drive the coal straight from the mine to the consumer." This statement was made today by Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, before the Senate committee which is considering his measure.

It was the intention of the bill to "tax out of existence" many unnecessary middlemen, Senator Calder said, adding that it would be shown before "this investigation ceases where coal moving on the rails has been sold three or four times between the mines and the consumer."

The Senator appeared before the committee to reply to statements made yesterday by ex-Governor Oakley C. Curtis of Maine that the tax provisions of the bill as affecting coal dealers would aid profiteering.

The American public last year, Senator Calder said, was "mulcted out of a billion and a half dollars by men in the coal trade."

"Very well, but how about the shoe man, the flour man and the rest?" interjected Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri.

"The coal industry we are reaching first," Senator Calder retorted. "Coal is a necessity."

J. M. Armstrong, General Manager of Mines for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the largest mine operator in the United States, testified that the "payroll cost" of producing coal, which included all labor charges, had increased 136 per cent. since 1910.

"A man driving a mule in the mines gets $7.50 a day, and we figure this the base rate," he said, "while an ordinarily efficient miner taking out coal earns about $12.

"Loaders, shovelling coal into cars under ground," he said, "ought to earn from $8 to $10 under present scales."

Mr. Armstrong said that if not prevented from running full time by "lack of cars, lack of business, and lack of miners," the Pittsburgh Company could produce "20,000,000 tons of coal instead of the 11,000,000 we produced last year."

Coal production costs and labor conditions will receive further attention from the committee tomorrow.

LUMBER INQUIRY ORDERED.

Senate Committee Will Start It Next Week, Using Trade Commission Data

WASHINTON, Jan. 25.—An investigation of the lumber price and supply situation on the basis of the recent report of the Federal Trade Commission on the activities of lumber associations will be started next week by the Senate Reconstruction Committee, according to an announcement made today by Chairman Calder. Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, will direct the examination of witnesses before the committee.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 25.—A statement that "it would be practically an impossibility for the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association or any other organization to control either the output or the prices of lumber if they should attempt to do so," was made today by O. T. Swan of Oshkosh, Wis., Secretary of the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, in reply to a query from the convention division of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

BOY HELD UNDER DRY LAW.

Two Policemen Accuse Lad of Carrying Two Bottles for Father.

Michael Igloria, 13 years old, is the youngest person arrested in this city on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Commissioner Barmore, in Brooklyn, yesterday held him in bail for examination. The boy was arrested near his home, at 270 Union Street, Brooklyn, by Patrolmen Siegel and Goldstein. The police said he was carrying two bottles of wine for his father. The lad is a student at the Sacred Heart Academy.

Joseph Fenimore, a storekeeper at Bergen Street and Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, was found guilty by a Federal jury in Brooklyn, yesterday of violating the Volstead act. He will be sentenced today. Mrs. Eleanor Herrman, of 1,805 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, testified that she bought liquor at Fenimore's place on Dec. 2. She alleged that while there a fur coat and a diamond ring were taken from her.

When eleven men were tried before Judge Chatfield in the United States Court in Brooklyn yesterday on a charge of transporting liquor without a permit, it became known that some of 42 cases seized by the police at Coney Island on Sept. 5 last, had disappeared, while in many of the others water had been substituted for whisky supposed to have been in the bottles when the seizure was made. The liquor, it was said, was turned over to Marshal Power three days after the seizure. The liquor was being transferred from an automobile truck to a sloop at West Nineteenth Street, Coney Island, when the police arrived. The defendants were convicted and will be sentenced today.

TELLS AMERICA TO WAKE UP.

John H. Patterson Warns of Conditions in Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 25.—A cable has been received from John H. Patterson, President of the National Cash Register Company, in which he urges America to wake up to conditions in Europe before it is too late. Mr. Patterson is in Europe studying business conditions, problems of capital and labor and foreign exchange.

"The world's business is in trouble," says Mr. Patterson's message. "Some nations cannot sell their surplus of agriculture, industries and minerals. Other nations greatly need them. Plenty of idle ships to carry them. Millions of people out of employment.

"Nations are still spending money for war like drunken sailors. The world's business has no directing head. It needs an association of nations whose object is to do good to all the people, to stop war and fight with brains, not with bullets; to stop Bolshevism, to extend international credit, to prevent disease. Civilization is at stake. Wake up, America, before it is too late!"

FARMERS ARGUE FOR TARIFF

Needed "to Put Pep Into Agriculture," One of Them Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Farmers of the country will reduce their production if Congress fails to provide tariff protection for their crops, T. W. Monell of Colorado declared today before the House Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Monell urged duties which would serve as a stimulant to production, saying that was what was needed "to put pep into the agricultural industry."

"We do not know exactly what the duties should be," he continued, "but we know we have reached a point where some help must be provided. Our farmers cannot go on strike because they are under contract with the Government in reclamation work. They are not quitters, but unless they have help their production will be decreased, and that is the case everywhere."

W. A. Wentworth, representing the Iowa Dairy Council, said heavy importations of butter substitutes were causing losses to the American dairymen and farmers, and advocated high duties on ingredients of such products.

MRS. DREWES TESTIFIES AT TRIAL OF BRINES

Evidence Gives Movements of Dartmouth Student and Accused on Days Preceding Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Christian T. Drewes, mother of Elmer C. Drewes, the Dartmouth senior found slain last October, testified here today at the trial of William P. Brines, a University of Pennsylvania undergraduate, accused of her son's murder.

Brines' counsel lost a point when the court refused to strike out testimony relating to conversations alleged to have taken place between Drewes and friends. The defense maintained that these were irrelevant.

Witnesses today included Howard L. Heath of Trenton, N. J., roommate of Drewes at Dartmouth; Charles Schloss of New York, a friend of Drewes; Thomas C. Gauntlett, janitor at Brines's apartment; Mrs. Rita Fillmore and Mrs. Thomas Reeves, who live near where Drewes's body was found, and Mr. and Mrs. Drewes.

The more important testimony brought out through these witnesses was as follows:

Drewes left Hanover, N. H., on Oct. 15, and traveled to New York and Atlantic City, and then to his parents' home here; he received a letter from a man in Reading offering to sell him an automobile; he had expressed to another student at Dartmouth his intention to come either to Philadelphia or Reading to buy an automobile; Brines last attended classes at the University of Pennsylvania on the Monday after the killing and then disappeared from that institution; on the same Monday morning Brines spoke to the janitor of his apartment concerning some papers which had been thrust down the waste pipes; Drewes and Brines were chums; Drewes was last seen by his parents at home on the Saturday night preceding his death; a car seen at the spot where the body was found just before the crime is supposed to have occurred is one similar to that belonging to Brines.

WOMAN TRIES TO KILL ASSAILANT IN COURT

Pittsburgh Negro Saved Because Mrs. Bangham's Pistol Was Locked—Women Urge Her On.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Lillian Bangham, 25 years old, a member of the exclusive Forest Hills colony, today in the court room of Justice of the Peace A. O. Winnerbog, tried to shoot and kill William Wilson, negro, whom she had identified as the one who invaded her home Dec. 11 and brutally mistreated her.

Her unfamiliarity with the automatic pistol prevented her from carrying out her intention of killing her assailant. She had failed to release the safety lock with which the pistol was equipped.

Shouting "I'll kill you," she leaped from the witness stand, where she had been relating the story of the negro's attack, whipped an automatic pistol from a pocket in her skirt, thrust aside her husband, who barred her path, pressed the revolver against the negro and vainly pulled at the trigger. Crying hysterically, she was disarmed by county detectives.

Immediately there was a rush of crying, shouting women, trying to reach the cowering prisoner, who sought refuge in a circle of detectives. Mothers with babies in their arms and children tugging at their skirts, urged the frantic Mrs. Bangham to wreak vengeance upon the negro. "Kill him, we'll stand behind you," they shouted.

As detectives forced a passage through the crowd, increasing as persons rushed in from the streets, the women sought in vain to strike down the prisoner. Wilson was finally placed in an automobile and taken to the county jail.

Mrs. Bangham testified that Wilson entered her home, beat her almost into insensibility and then carried her into a cellar. She escaped by leaping through a window when the negro turned to shut the door through which he had carried her.

MOVIES TO AID HOOVER FUND

Theatres Begin Today Their $2,000,000 Drive for European Children

Motion picture theatres in this and other cities will begin today their campaign to raise $2,500,000 for the $33,000,000 fund of the European Relief Council for the children of Central and Southeastern Europe.

On Saturday morning special matinees are to be given in the theatres, and today motion picture actors will appear before the screens and urge audiences to buy tickets for those special performances. It is suggested that the adults buy the tickets and then give them to children for use because the performances are intended especially for young persons.

The price of the tickets is 50 cents, and it is estimated that at least 500,000 will be sold. The theatres in this city and Philadelphia have agreed to race for the honor of selling the largest number of tickets. A special midnight performance is to be given in the Capitol Theatre tonight, and Herbert Hoover will tell the audience of the need of raising the entire fund of $33,000,000. Walter Damrosch will direct part of the musical program.

An appeal for support of the work of the Near East Relief Committee in Armenia was made yesterday by Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who said:

"You are going to have many appeals, but of all the appeals that come to us there is none which ought to receive more prompt or more generous response than the appeal from Armenia."

BAGPIPES AT BURNS PARTY.

Caledonian Society Observes 162d Anniversary of Scotch Poet's Birth.

The anniversary of the birthday of Robert Burns, Jan. 25, 1759, was observed by the Caledonian Society of New York with a dinner in the Hotel Pennsylvania last eveping, at which many of the old Scottish clans, Camerons, MacKenzies, MacDonalds and others were represented. Two champion bagpipers, Angus M. Fraser and Murdoch MacKenzie, dressed in full regalia, greeted the diners with their music, and after the dinner there were songs, Highland dancing and speeches.

The chief speakers were the Rev. David R. Wylie, pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian Church of this city, and Duncan MacInnes, Chief Accountant in the office of the City Controller. Many of Burns's favorite verses, among them "A Man's a Man for a' That" and "The Deil's Awa' wi' the Exciseman" were sung, and the program ended with "Auld Lang Syne." The chief of the society, James R. Donaldson, presided, with ex-Chief John Maclean as toastmaster.

One of the dishes served was "haggis," a famous old Scotch pudding, eaten only on gala occasions, and Burns's "Essay on Haggis" was read to the diners by Andrew Gillies.

HIRSHFIELD OPENS INQUIRY.

Brother of Girl Killed by Soldier Complains of Injustice in Case.

Acting under instructions from Mayor Hylan, Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield yesterday began investigating the complaint of Stanley Siemietkowsky, whose sister, Mathilda, 16 years old, was shot and killed on Dec. 7, 1919. Half a dozen witnesses testified that the girl, while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Max Schubert of 191 York Street, New Brighton, was shot by a soldier named Anthon Marzalik, stationed in Hoboken, and who lived at Port Richmond, S. I.

Marzalik was indicted on March 3, 1920, for manslaughter and for carrying concealed weapons. On recommendation of the District Attorney the indictment for manslaughter was dismissed, but Marzalik was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory for carrying concealed weapons, and discharged from there twenty-two days later. The girl's brother complained that his family had not received justice.

PLEADS HER POVERTY ON $10,000 A YEAR

Wife of Major Julian Smith Says She Was "Dreadfully Poor and Couldn't Entertain."

JURY DISMISSED, PUZZLED

Major's Letter Read in Which He Says, "Don't Worry Over Money, I'm Used to Bills."

The household accounts of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Smith proved too much for a jury in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday. She submitted them in support of her contention that she was "dreadfully poor" on an income of $10,000 a year. This dire poverty, she said, prevented her from offering her friends even the simplest private entertainment. Her exposition of her financial condition was interposed as a defense to the suit of her husband, Major Julian C. Smith, who wants her to account for moneys he left with her or sent to his wife while he was in the E. F. in France.

The array of items was so bewildering that Justice Faber finally suggested the jury might be hopelessly puzzled. Attorneys for both sides suggested that the jury be dismissed and the Judge himself decide the case. Justice Faber consented. At the close of the testimony he took under advisement the suit, Mrs. Smith's counterclaim and a second suit brought by Major Smith to recover possession of three life insurance policies for $5,000 each now held by the wife as surety for the premiums she paid.

The only bone of contention between the Smiths not now before the court is the coolness which has resulted in a separation. This grew out of the discovery by Mrs. Smith of letters written to her husband after his return to this country by one "Jane," an affectionate Frenchwoman. It has been left to the attorneys to decide whether these letters are to be made the basis of divorce proceedings.

Among the items which Mrs. Smith charged to her husband's account were $352 for trips she made to St. Louis to see about an inheritance; $80 for dues in the Douglaston Association; sums for personal gifts to her church, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army; the cost of gift photographs and clothes and cigarettes for her son Donald, who is "self-supporting." The cigarette item was justified on the ground that Mr. Smith told the wife to buy a present for the boy.

Excerpts of letters designed to prove that Smith approved of his wife's expenditures were read into the record. One of them said:

I was prepared to read a lot from you about finances or lack of finances, and was not disappointed. Am awfully sorry that I had to leave same in such bad shape, but it was impossible to help it. You know, I left New York practically without a cent, and living here is horribly expensive. The insurance premiums, about $79, must be paid every three months. Then there is another insurance premium, payable once a year, due some time in June, about $150. The taxes should be paid as they fall due. So don't worry over money matters as long as you have a few hundred dollars in any bank. It is not worth while making any remarks about the list of bills, &c., that you write of. I have been so used to bills that they have ceased to worry me, and over here it is a pleasure to forget them altogether (or try to).

The evidence showed that $8,000 of Mrs. Smith's income was her own and $2,000 came from her husband. Justice Faber reserved decision and allowed the attorneys until Feb. 15 to submit briefs.

ASKS COURT TO HALT NEW JERSEY SEWER PLAN

Hughes Presents New York's Plea Against Passaic Valley Pipes Emptying Into Bay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Supreme Court heard final argument today on the application of the State of New York for an injunction against the State of New Jersey to prevent the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission from carrying out its plan to empty the sewage of Passaic, Paterson, Newark and other New Jersey cities into Upper New York Bay near Robbins Reef through the pipes now being laid.

Charles E. Hughes appeared for New York and Adrian Riker, counsel for the Passaic Valley Commissioners, and George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General, for New Jersey.

It was contended by Mr. Hughes that the waters of New York Harbor already were dangerously polluted by the sewage flowing from the North and East Rivers, and that to add the sewage from the Passaic Valley towns would not only create a nuisance but would endanger the health of New York's inhabitants.

Mr. Wickersham met this contention with the argument that his client contemplated treating the sewage in a scientific manner that would prevent the creation of a nuisance or the endangering of health. He asserted that the watershed of the Passaic River is as truly tributary to the waters of the Upper Bay as the Hudson, Harlem and East Rivers.

Mr. Hughes said that 200,000,000 gallons of sewage was poured daily into the Upper Bay from the Harlem and East River alone, and an additional 150,000,000 gallons from the Passaic Valley sewer, as contemplated under the proposed plan, would create an insufferable situation. A project was now under consideration by the City of New York, he said, for erecting a disposition station off Red Hook, near Governors Island, to care for the sewage from the Harlem and East Rivers, and this plan would be disrupted if the Jersey sewer emptied into the bay only about a mile distant. If the Passaic Valley sewer was built as proposed, he declared, the Harlem and East River station would have to be moved several miles out to sea.

"There is plenty of room in the Meadows," Mr. Hughes said, "for a great number of scientific methods of disposal instead of insisting on this comparatively inexpensive method of pouring through a tunnel into New York Bay an immense amount of Jersey sewage simply because New York City follows that natural method."

"Has New York the right to step in and stop Jersey's scientific methods of sewage disposal when New York itself does not use any scientific methods of disposal at all?" asked Mr. Wickersham, in opening his argument.

HARDING PLAYS GOLF ON FLORIDA LINKS

VERO, Fla., Jan. 25.—The houseboat Victoria, bearing President-elect Harding on his vacation trip, anchored off here after another day of uneventful sailing down the Indian River. She will continue her journeyv tomorrow and may reach Palm Beach by tomorrow night.

Today's run was completed in time to permit the President-elect and his companions to play eighteen holes of golf at the Vero links and take a surf bath before nightfall. Mr. Harding was welcomed at the golf club by members of the Ohio Winter colony, but in deference to his wishes plans for a formal reception in his honor were abandoned.

At the present rate of travel the Victoria should reach Miami, the southern point on her trip, by Friday. She has no fixed schedule, however, and it may be decided not to go into Miami until Saturday or Sunday.

LOSES FALSE ARREST SUIT.

Watchman Fails to Convict Ex-Police Inspector Henry and Others.

The jury before Supreme Court Justice Tierney which heard a suit of John Bohan, a private watchman, against ex-Police Inspector Dominick Henry and Detectives John J. Gunson and John Maloney for assault and false arrest, gave a verdict for the defendants last night after being out less than an hour.

Detective Gunson testified that in the raiding of a house in West Seventieth Street, which was under suspicion and in which the police believed Bohan took a hand by tipping off the proprietress, Bohan made no complaint at the police station of being assaulted or when he was arraigned in the Magistrates' court.

Ex-Inspector Henry testified that in raiding the house he was performing his duty as a police official and that his detectives did their duty when they arrested Bohan.

SHERIFF CENSURES BOARD.

Says Cut In His Budget Means Operating on $33,000.

Sheriff David H. Knott censured yesterday the approval by the New York Real Estate Board of Trade of the report of Edward P. Doyle, Bureau of Information and Research, recommending to the Board of Estimate that the Sheriff's budget for the current year be cut $160,000. The Sheriff said that if Mr. Doyle's views were adopted he would be compelled to run his office with eighty employes for $33,000.

The Sheriff pointed out that in 1920 the city appropriated $207,075, of which $40,662 was for Ludlow Street Jail. The office collected $160,552, which was paid into the city treasury, making the net cost of running the office, excluding the jail, $5,840. The office has been allowed $183,866 for this year.

"I'll See You Get a Light Sentence," Said Plant, When Witness Was Arrested.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 25.—Matthew O'Neill, who is serving seven and a half years in Sing Sing for receiving stolen automobiles, testified today in the trial of Carmen Plant, former county detective, that he had paid Plant $25 a week for protection. The latter is charged with conspiracy and receiving stolen goods.

When O'Neill was arrested Plant said he would fix it so that O'Neill would get a light sentence if he pleaded guilty. O'Neill said that when he first began to pay Plant the sum was fixed at $15 a week. When he protested to ex-Sheriff Harvey about the amount, Harvey spoke to Plant and the sum was reduced to $25.

"I told Plant I was talking with Sheriff Harvey," said O'Neill. "He told me he had arranged for me to do business with Plant, who said: 'Yes, I know about it; you will meet a man named Pettit.' I told Plant that Harvey had arranged for Pettit to meet me in Freeport, and I was to pay him $25 a week, and Pettit was to turn the money over to Plant. It was to protect Solano, myself and Hoffman in selling cars in Nassau County." O'Neill said Plant told him he was to meet Aubrey Pettit, former Superintendent of County Buildings, through whom the money was to be paid over.

O'Neill said they got a Buick car for Plant in 1919 and charged him $300, with the understanding that this amount should be deducted from the sum paid for protection. The car was delivered in front of the Lynbrook court house, and Plant told him not to forget to change the numbers. Mrs. Marie O'Neill testified that on the day her husband was sentenced Plant said that "it was all fixed."

TO WED HIS RESCUER.

Allan Topp Engaged to Miss Lindner, Who Saved Him From Drowning

A romance was revealed last night in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys Lindner, 18 years old, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Lindner, 79 East Thirty-second Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, to A. Allan Topp, 20 years old, formerly of Troy, N. Y., now owner of a garage in Brooklyn. The couple met last Summer in the sea at Manhattan Beach, when the young man, who had attempted to swim from Sheepshead Bay to Manhattan Beach, was seized with cramp. He was being tossed about among the rocks some distance from the beach, when he was seen by Miss Lindner, who went to his aid and succeeded in getting him ashore.

After he revived the young man escorted his rescuer to her home. He became a frequent caller and the friendship soon became love. The wedding, it was said, will take place in the Summer.

Government Survey Finds Large Decrease in "Mechanical Industry" in a Year.

DOES NOT COVER FARMING

234,243 IN NEW YORK CITY

Automobile Trade Shows Largest Reduction of Workers, Reaching 69 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Figures made public today by the Employment Service of the Department of Labor indicate that there has been a decrease of 3,473,166 in the number of persons employed in industry in the United States in January, 1921, as compared with the number employed one year ago.

The service bases its calculations on "comparative information" from thirty-five States and the District of Columbia and on estimates of unemployment from the thirteen other States.

It is explained by John B. Densmore, director of the bureau which made the survey, that the estimated decrease of 3,473,166 must not necessarily be taken as meaning that that number of persons now are actually out of work. It is, he says, "quite possible" that some of those on the labor rolls a year ago are now employed on farms or in some other occupation not covered by the survey, which was confined to pursuits classed as "mechanical industry."

The deductions of the Employment Service are presented in the following table:

Comparative information from thirty-five States and the District of Columbia indicates the number employed in industry January, 1920...	9,402,000
Number employed in industry January, 1921	6,070,848
Reduction in employment..............	3,331,352
Estimated unemployment in Mississippi (not included above)..........	35,000
Estimated unemployment in Alabama (not included above)...........	40,000
Estimated unemployment from forty-one leading industrial centres in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas, Montana, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and Kansas	67,114
Total	3,473,466

The survey goes with some detail into unemployment in various industrial centres, supplying figures as to 182 cities. The total unemployed for these cities, which have a population of 32,560,953, is put at 1,802,755 at this time. Unemployment today in New York City is estimated at 234,243.

Unemployed in New York Cities.

Estimated unemployment in industrial cities in New York State outside of New York City are given as follows:

Buffalo, 35,000; Rochester, 18,000; Syracuse, 10,000; Schenectady, 7,000; Niagara Falls, 2,000; Troy, 8,000; Utica, 8,000; Albany, 3,500.

Unemployment in Newark, N. J., is put at 41,000; Jersey City, 15,000; Paterson, 20,000; Passaic, 12,000.

The estimate for Philadelphia is 70,000; Pittsburgh, 12,500; and Scranton, 18,000. Chicago is down for 86,000 unemployed and Detroit for 160,000. Cleveland has 81,000 unemployed; Cincinnati, 24,000; Akron, 20,000, and Toledo, 38,625.

In the cities of New England, Boston is listed as having 25,000 unemployed; Manchester, N. H., 21,000; New Bedford, Mass., 30,000; Lawrence, Mass., 14,506; Lynn, Mass., 12,000; Lowell, Mass., 11,000; Providence, R. I., 17,500; Bridgeport, Conn., 20,000, and New Haven, Conn., 10,000.

The statement of the Employment Service has this to say:

"The largest reduction is indicated in the State of Michigan, which shows 82 per cent. reduction in employment between the period of January, 1920, and January, 1921. Ohio and Indiana follow with 50 per cent. reduction; Illinois third with 44 per cent.; Connecticut, 43 per cent.; Massachusetts, 38 per cent.; New York, 28 per cent.; Wisconsin, 32 per cent., and New Jersey, 22 per cent.

Relative Importance of States.

"The relative importance of these States as to number employed in January, 1920, to the total number employed in industry in all States is as follows:

State.	P. C.	State.	P. C.
Michigan	7	Massachusetts	5
Ohio	10	New York	17
Indiana	3	Wisconsin	3
Illinois	10	New Jersey	5
Connecticut	2

"The largest percentage of reduction, as compared with January, 1920, in specific industries occurs in automobiles and accessories, which indicates about a 69 per cent. reduction.

"Second in rank in reduction is the building trades, with about 52 per cent. The other industries follow, with their relative importance:

	Relative Import. Per Cent.	Reduction. Per Cent.
Textiles and products, clothing, hosiery and underwear	19	33¼
Leather and its products, boots and shoes	4	35
Lumber, house furniture, boxes and wood products...	8	32
Metals and products, machinery, electric goods, foundry products	30½	33¼
Glass, cement and stone products	5	19
Groceries and food products..	11	19

"The relative importance mentioned indicates the percentage of those employed in each industry in January, 1920, to the total employed in all industry reported.

"The census report for 1910 shows 10,658,881 as the total gainfully employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries, or about 28 per cent. of the total gainfully employed (38,167,336). The reports received from District Directors of this service, covering thirty-five States and the District of Columbia, as of January, 1920, show 9,402,000 employed in industry."

Declares Figures Too Low.

The Government figures of unemployment are disputed by the American Federation of Labor, which insists that they are too low. Frank Morrison, Secretary of the Federation, said that reports received from central federations in the cities throughout the country showed that the number of the present unemployed was between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000.

Requests for information as to unemployment had been sent by the Federation to central trade union bodies in 917 cities, Mr. Morrison said, and replies had been received from 340. These replies showed that the unemployed numbered 2,334,282. From the remaining 577 cities, said Mr. Morrison, the reports, it was expected, would bring the total number of unemployed to more than 4,000,000.

Mr. Morrison asserted that unless the large employers of labor would devote themselves to evolving means of putting men to work instead of reducing wages, lengthening hours of labor and reducing standards of labor, they would find their efforts resented by the employed as well as the unemployed.

Carson Declines Premiership Of New Ulster Parliament

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, declined the Premiership of the new Ulster Parliament, which was offered him today by an Ulster deputation in London. He thanked the deputation for the honor, but said he felt his age and lacked strength to undertake the arduous duties involved. He agreed, however, for the present to accept the Chairmanship of the Ulster party in the Imperial Parliament.

It is expected that the offer of the Premiership will now be made to Sir James Craig, who represents Mid-Down in the British Parliament and is Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, who would probably accept.

COAL WAGE PARLEYS END IN NO AGREEMENT

Anthracite Operators Assert There Will Be No Further Meetings Unless Asked by Miners.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The joint conference of anthracite mine workers and operators, which has been discussing increases in wages, the extension of the eight-hour day and the adjustment of inequalities, said by the miners to exist, came to an end today after a two days' session without any agreement being reached. There will be no further meetings unless one is asked by the representatives of the miners, it was said.

The miners are working under an agreement signed last September. This agreement is based on the award made by the United States Wage Commission appointed last Summer by President Wilson after the operators and miners failed to reach a settlement for a new wage contract to take the place of the one that expired last Spring. The award of the commission granted the men about 17 per cent. increase in wages, and the eight-hour day for certain groups of workers. The miners had contended for a wage advance equal to that granted by a commission to bituminous miners.

With the signing of the new agreement a vacation strike was started in the hard coal fields which reduced production about 70 per cent. in September. It lasted about three weeks when the miners and operators held a meeting to adjust differences. The miners asked for a general increase of 18 per cent., but this was refused by the operators who agreed to adjust any inequalities that might exist and also correct any cases of injustice done under the award.

Ten days ago the miners made a new proposition asking the mine owners to extend the eight-hour day to men still working longer hours, to increase the rates to contract miners employing laborers so as to enable them to pay their laborers the full amount of the increase provided by the wage agreement, to grant proportionate increases to other contract miners equivalent to 7 per cent. and similar advances to inside men, and to restore the wage differential of outside men over the minimum rate for laborers.

It is understood the operators told the miners they could not go into all these things without opening the wage agreement, although they still stood ready to adjust individual inequalities for alleged injustices.

DECLARES SINN FEIN FOUGHT US BITTERLY

Admiral Sims Tells Boston Audience It Cost Many American Lives in War.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims said at a mass meeting arranged by the Loyal Coalition here tonight that to him it was inconceivable that American citizens of Irish nationality could support the Sinn Fein, "knowing what they do about them."

"How any American of Irish descent can support a party that was our implacable enemy during the war passes my understanding," the Admiral said.

Sinn Fein activities, he asserted, necessitated the diversion of vessels from the convoy of troops and of merchant ships.

"And you people here in America," the Admiral continued, "have a great many of your sons at the bottom of the sea today because we were obliged to divert those vessels and could not give adequate protection.

"We were fighting against the Germans and the Central Powers, but they were fighting in the open. They fought the submarine under the water, but that is the way to fight the submarine. The Sinn Fein were fighting us just as bitterly and behind our backs."

Characterizing many of the differences between the United States and Great Britain as "pin pricks," Admiral Sims said that, although pin pricks were usually of little consequence, sometimes they caused "blood poisoning—the poison being supplied skilfully by propaganda."

"Enough pin pricks," he added, "will make a dangerous situation. The world will not stand for another great war. Even were the world so disposed, it could not stand another great war. The nations must find a way to compose their differences."

Admiral Sims expressed the opinion that promotion of the spirit of the Allies in fighting side by side in the war depended chiefly upon Great Britain and this country taking the initiative. A permanent understanding between them, he said, "will inevitably result in peace and good will throughout the world."

"I cannot see," he went on, "that there need be any misunderstanding if we approach our inevitable commercial and other difficulties in a friendly spirit. If people can co-operate loyally under the fierce stress of national interests and personal ambitions in war, surely they can with good will co-operate in peace. In my estimation, as a student of war, a failure to co-operate with a certain degree of cordiality is a danger."

LORD MAYOR HERE.

O'Callaghan Outlines Cork's Needs to Relief Committee.

Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork came here on his last visit to this city yesterday before returning home. He said he did not know just when he would leave the United States. At a meeting in the Hotel Biltmore, the Lord Mayor briefly outlined the needs of the Cork district for the American Commitee for Relief in Ireland. Other heads of Irish municipalities now in this country also told of the requirements of their districts.

O'Callaghan said that the burning of Cork had thrown about three thousand persons out of employment and that in all about seven thousand persons in Cork were unemployed. He appealed to the committee to send relief in the shape of money, and urged that it take up the question of rebuilding devastated areas in Ireland.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The State Department refused today to reverse its decision in the case of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, when appealed to by a committee representing the American Commission for the Independence of Ireland of New Jersey.

THINKS IRISH ARMY IS BREAKING UP

Gen. Strickland Is Pleased With Success in Localizing Its Operations.

SAYS IT MAY LAST A YEAR

But Is Hopeful That "Official Reprisals" Policy May End It in Less Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The progress made in repressing Irish outrages has been discussed by Major General Strickland, Military Governor of the martial law area of Southern Ireland, with a representative of The Evening Standard.

He says he believes the organization of the Irish Republican army is being broken up and is becoming more localized. Local bodies have now to take more responsibility than before because of the smashing of communications. With that sort of situation it is easier to deal.

"The position today," he said, "is very different from a year ago. Then the Irish Republican army had centralized headquarters in Dublin and had established communications throughout the country. Its battalion commanders had facilities for calling up whatever number of men they required from different companies for attacks on police barracks. That is no longer possible. Now we are taking their officers, local commanders here, intelligence officers there, somebody else in another place, and so on that breaks their communications."

In answer to the suggestion that last week's simultaneous attacks on police barracks in different parts of Tipperary seemed to show effective organization, the General replied that the attacks were far less formidable than formerly.

"Nothing has been accomplished by them," he said. "In all cases they are easily beaten off, and the attackers withdraw after half an hour or so. It is complimentary to suggest that the improved communication and the nobility of our patrols and reinforcements compel the early abandonment of these attacks, but I think it is due rather to lack of brawn on the other side."

General Strickland admits that small local bands may be able to carry on guerrilla warfare for a year or more if the general public does not get tired of it and assert itself. He is satisfied that the people are weary of present conditions and are also feeling a sense of growing relief from the pressure which the revolutionary organization applied to them.

Speaking of "official reprisals," the General explained that it was wrong to presume that every house within sight of am ambush was destroyed, and that no account was taken of the fact that it might easily happen that householders aware of the preparation of an ambush might have no power or time to warn the police, or might run almost certain risk of being shot if they did.

"It is only when a resident refuses to give information, as many of them do, on the ground of Republican sympathy, or is known as a Republican, that we destroy his house."

General Strickland believes that the official reprisal policy has already in some cases forced the Irish Republican Army to abandon ambushes it had begun on account of the protests of residents in the neighborhood.

COURT-MARTIAL BEGINS FOR DUBLIN KILLINGS

Three Accused of Slaying Lieut. Angliss—Civilians Shot in Ambush of Police Lorry.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—In the room at the City Hall where the Dublin Corporation is accustomed to hold its meetings three men were placed on trial today for their lives. They are charged with the murder of one of the officers shot on the morning of Nov. 21, when fourteen members of the forces of the Crown were killed.

The accused are Francis Teeling, William Conway and Edward Potter, all between 20 and 30 years of age. They are being tried by court-martial.

For the first time it was publicly stated that the officer whose death was the subject of the trial was living under an assumed name. Up to the present time he had been described as a Lieutenant or alternatively "Mr. McMahon," but counsel for the Crown stated that he was Lieutenant H. Angliss of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, who "for good and sufficient reasons was living in Dublin last November under the name of McMahon."

The crime was committed at a house in Lower Mount Street. Armed men gained admission and McMahon, as he was described throughout today's proceedings, was shot while lying in bed. Incidentally, counsel related how by acute presence of mind a brother officer, sleeping in the same bed, saved his life when McMahon was shot. This officer jumped as if the bullet had struck him, too, fell and rolled beneath the bed.

This is the first of the series of court-martials to be held on the cases of the murdered officers.

A daring ambush of a police lorry was carried out near Four Courts, Dublin, tonight. Two lorries were proceeding from Kingstown and at one, which was travelling on the south side of the Liffey, three or four bombs were thrown. Immediately the police opened fire and the occupants of a lorry on the north quay came to their assistance and joined in the firing. Details are scanty, but it is stated that casualties were inflicted on five or six civilians as they were running away. There were no police casualties.

Further official information comes to hand with reference to the ambush at New Birmingham, County Tipperary, in which the Crown forces suffered eight casualties. A trench was cut across the road at the point where the ambush took place, while a wall directly in front had been loopholed. From this wall and from both sides of the road fire was concentrated on the party of military and police.

Attacked thus from three sides, the Crown forces were at a great disadvantage. They replied to the fire, however, and for half an hour there was a sharp fight. The attackers fled.

An official report states that a farmer, 65 years of age, has been found dead near his house in Bandon District, County Cork, with a bullet wound through the brain and a note pinned on his clothing, stating that he had been shot after conviction by a court-martial held on the night of Jan. 22 for intending to inform the enemy of the presence and movements of republican troops.

Some excitement was caused in the vicinity of Dublin Castle last night. A sentry at one of the inner gates thought he saw a man on the roof and opened fire. The object disappeared. As no casualty is reported it is assumed either that the sentry was too imaginative or that a cat on a nocturnal expedition has lost one of its nine lives.

CORK, Jan. 25.—Mary Bowles, about 16 years old, was tried by a court-martial today charged with being in possession of a revolver, twenty-five rounds of ammunition, an automatic pistol and a machine gun. A sturdy girl of the farming class, Mary refused to plead and maintained an attitude of indifference while police witnesses related the story of her capture.

On patrol in a lorry passing Clogheen Church, a policeman saw a girl in a field drop a large bundle, which proved to be a machine gun, wrapped in a waterproof covering. The accused appeared to be unnaturally shaped about the shoulders. Under her coat she had a steel body guard. Besides the arms, she had in her possession several documents, included a book entitled "Hotchkiss Portable Machine Gun." The finding of the court will be announced later.

White Boys' Killing of Sacred Pigeons Starts Bombay Riot and Closes Exchanges

BOMBAY, Jan. 24.—The Stock Exchange and cotton and bullion markets were closed today, and a general hartal, or religious strike, is proposed in consequence of a grave incident yesterday, attendant upon the killing of two pigeons in the street by two European boys. The natives consider pigeons sacred. A crowd of angry Indians gathered and remonstrated with the boys. The police took charge of the lads and also several Hindu boys with whom they had been fighting.

The crowd followed, demanding the release of the Hindu boys, whereupon the police charged, and scenes of intense excitement ensued. The natives stoned the police, and several persons were injured and seventeen arrested.

Native merchants are meeting to consider what steps shall be taken.

BRAZIL SUPPORTS WILSON ON RUSSIA

President Pessoa Approves Views Expressed in Note on Armenia.

VISIT FROM AMBASSADOR

State Department Officially Informed of the Brazilian President's Accord.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. — Señhor Augusto Cochrane de Alencar, the Brazilian Ambassador, informed the State Department today that President Pessoa was in thorough accord with the views and policies indicated by President Wilson in the telegram addressed to President Hymans of the League of Nations assembly, on Jan. 18, regarding Armenia.

Brazil is the first great power to respond immediately to the appeal of the President for an agreement to refrain from armed action against Russia and for a compact between the powers for the preservation of Russia's territorial integrity.

The decision of the American Government to stand by Russia has been most favorably received by Russian liberal leaders, anti-Bolshevists spokesmen, Russian exiles in this country and Europe, and is expected to give great impetus to the work of the Russian Liberal Conference now in session at Paris. It is the confident belief of Government officials that it will also have a widespread and beneficent effect upon the peasant and other anti-Bolshevist masses throughout Russia, as soon as the note's contents become known within Bolshevist territory.

All the best confidential reports to the State Department regarding conditions inside Russia are construed as showing that the masses are anti-Bolshevist. They are also strongly opposed to foreign aggression, imperialistic or otherwise. If Russia is not threatened with partition or invasion it is believed the masses will have an opportunity to react properly and naturally against the Soviet régime.

The State Department's information reveals that the peasant population, which is being looked to as the backbone of the Russian Liberal movement for the redemption of their nation, is managing its own rural affairs without much serious interference from the Bolsheviki, while the city population, especially in Moscow and Petrograd, has been hit hard by the miserable economic conditions precipitated by the Soviet attempt to saddle its communist experiment upon the people.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 24.—In a wireless message to Foreign Minister Bekzadian of Armenia, part of which was picked up, Nikolai Lenin, Russian Soviet Premier, is quoted by Armenian sources as saying: "For the present Armenian territorial aspirations must be sacrificed to the interest of world revolution."

The Armenian Foreign Minister had complained to the Moscow administration that the country's condition had become worse since the establishment of a Soviet Government, and asked that Bolshevist troops protect Armenia against bands overrunning the country. Lenin refused the request but promised to send food supplies.

WANT RED ENVOY EXPELLED.

Mixed Up in Plot to Murder Lithuanian Government, It Is Charged.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 25.—A special dispatch from Helsingfors to the Berlingske Tidende says it is now proved that the arrested terrorists at Kovno, who were planning to murder the Lithuanian Government, have been closely associated with the Russian Soviet Representative Axelrod, who tried to bring about the coup. The papers demand that he be expelled.

According to the same dispatch Russian and Ukrainian troops of the garrison of Kiev have mutinied, and with the railwaymen have driven the Soviet troops and commissaries out of the town. Peasants joined in the revolt, taking the suburbs.

RED TROOPS REVOLT NEAR LETTISH BORDER

Similar Outbreaks Reported in Other Districts—Moscow Denies Kiev Mutiny Rumor.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Soviet Russian troops at Opotshka, near the Lettish frontier, have mutinied and killed several commissars, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen quoting advices from Riga. The uprising is said to have been quelled by force, but similar disturbances are declared to have been reported from other districts. They are said to have been due to the fact that the soldiers are hungry and ill-clad.

Enforced requisitions upon villages in that district, it is asserted, have caused rioting among civilians.

Another Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen quotes Finnish newspapers to the effect that a number of secret organizations are systematically preparing for a new rebellion in Finland with the object of enabling the proletariat to assume power with the help of troops from Russia.

The Minister of Home Affairs, adds the message, has refused any information on the subject, but admits that a grave situation exists.

A wireless dispatch from Moscow today says there is no truth in Helsingfors advices received in Copenhagen to the effect that part of the Kiev garrison mutinied recently, seized several strategic points and compelled the Soviet troops to withdraw after sanguinary encounters.

GIOLITTI OUTLINES INDUSTRIAL PLAN

It Gives Workers in Most Trades Sole Membership in Control Boards.

BOARDS OF MASTERS, TOO

Latter Are Permitted to Name an Equal Number of Representatives for Negotiation.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 25.—Ever since the memorable factory-seizing campaign in Italy the industrial world of both hemispheres has been waiting to know precisely in what way the Giolitti Government would redeem its pledges to the workers for joint control of the larger industries.

The full text of the Government's bill for establishing and consecrating the principle of control was finally given to the press tonight. Nowhere in the bill is the much debated term "control" formally defined.

Its objects, however, are explained as aiming at familiarizing the workers with the conditions in which industries live, move and have their being; bettering the technical instruction of workers and their moral and economic status within the limits permitted by the conditions in which the manufacturers carry on their task; insuring the execution of the whole body of laws framed for the protection of the working classes; facilitating betterment in methods of production, with a view to making production itself more fruitful and economical, and rendering more and more normal and peaceful the relations between the givers and the undertakers of labor.

Now, what about active control? Active control means that the workers' commissioners will have the right to be supplied with all necessary data for understanding thoroughly the methods adopted in buying, for understanding cost prices in production, as well as administrative and executive methods, excepting whatever depends on the secrets of manufacture. They will also have the right to know how a firm's capital is constituted; what are its real profits; what are the salaries of employes; how the laws safeguarding those employes are observed and enforced, and everything regarding the system of taking on fresh hands or discharging them.

Factories employing fewer than sixty workers are excluded from the proposed regulations; so, too, are brand-new ventures and infant concerns that have not yet attained their fourth birthday anniversary. State-worked industries, such as railways, mines and tobacco manufacture, are likewise exempt; but, outside these few exceptions, the principle of control is instituted separately for each kind of industry, and emphatically so in those handling iron, steel and machinery; in textile, chemical and electrical industries; in mines and quarries other than those Government owned; in land and water transport; in building trades, and in hotel and allied interests.

In drawing the articles in the bill affecting the formation of joint commissions and the participation of workingmen in these bodies Giolitti seems to have profited by the proposals lately put forward for British industrial reconstruction by the Manchester new Liberal school, the embodiment of which in Professor Ramsay Muir's book has intensely interested him.

Workers who belong to each category of the larger industries, and who have reached their majority, will elect on a proportional system a Commission of Control, comprising nine members. Six of these members will be chosen by the rank and file, and the remaining three by the engineers, higher employes and technical managers engaged in that particular industry.

For each factory or workshop contemplated in the bill, whether it be in the hands of a limited liability company or depend upon sleeping partners or private traders, the commission will delegate two or more workers, according to the size of the establishment, to exercise control and furnish the commission with reports.

The manufacturers, or, more accurately, the industrialists, in each branch of industry will in similar fashion nominate their own Commission of Nine for the requisite negotiations with the Commissions of Control for forcing the industrial masters to conform to the law or for the purpose of choosing two representatives to attend the Control Commission meeting.

Labor bureaus are to be set up under the joint management of employers and employed. Political considerations must never be allowed to influence the engagement or dismissal of the staff, special regulations for which will be determined after the Board of Trade approval for each separate industry. But any firm may refuse the re-engagement of persons who have undergone heavy sentences for common crimes or have been dismissed from work for grave breaches of discipline.

Should reduction of the staff become imperative, no workers can be turned adrift until the working week shall have been reduced to thirty-six hours, and as subsequent endeavor, if necessary, shall have been made to divide the available work among the empolyes in turn. When methods of this sort proves insufficient to meet the crisis the senior and married members of the staff must enjoy preferential treatment.

All controversies arising from these courses are to be decided, without appeal, by two arbiters chosen from either side, under the Presidency of a third persons selected by the workmen's delegates, or nominated, in case of disagreement, by the President of the tribunal.

From the hurried inquiries which I made tonight I find the factory owners fiercely opposed to the extent of control outlined above. Many declare that they will go into liquidation rather than submit to the provisions of the bill.

SENATORS ARE TOLD OF YAP DEADLOCK

Acting Secretary Davis Goes Before Foreign Relations Committee on Dispute With Japan.

LATTER'S STAND CRITICISED

Lack of Written Agreement, Senators Believe, Does Not Justify Retention of Former German Cable.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Concerned over the insistence of Japan upon retaining sole possession of the former German cables in the Pacific, Norman H. Davis, Acting Secretary of State, went voluntarily before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations today and brought the situation to the committee's attention. After he had given his testimony, which was made to include other questions of Japanese-American relations, members of the committee showed that they shared the State Department's feeling, and some of them expressed an inclination to have the Government adopt measures to indicate its dissatisfaction with Japan's course.

One of the suggestions made informally after the testimony of Mr. Davis had been heard was that the United States publish the entire record of the Yap transactions in order to show that the United States had acted in good faith, but had failed to legalize its rights by documentary agreement. Japan, it was declared, had taken advantage of the absence of documentary proof.

While his original purpose was to confine his statement to the Pacific cables, Mr. Davis's testimony took a wide range, due to close questioning by members of the the committee. Senator Knox was particularly insistent upon knowing the intimate details of the killing of Lieutenant Langdon of the United States Navy by a Japanese soldier at Vladivostok, and many of the inquiries were directed to ascertaining why Japan continued to hold Vladisovtok and Eastern Siberia under military control. Mr. Davis was questioned also as to the Japanese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

British Position Discussed.

The British Government's part in the controversy was also brought into the examination of the Acting Secretary. In the course of his testimony Mr. Davis produced correspondence with Great Britain regarding Japanese retention of exclusive control over the German cable station in the Island of Yap. This showed that the British Government held that, as there was no written evidence that the United States had served notice at the Peace Conference that it reserved the right to object to Japanese sole control of the Yap cable, Great Britain was disposed to regard Japan's claim to exclusive control as valid. It was brought out also that Great Britain had joined with Japan in bringing this matter to the attention of the League of Nations at its recent meeting at Geneva and that the League had confirmed Japan's claim to exclusive control. The State Department has not verified this statement. Its position is that as the German islands in the Pacific were ceded to the allied and associated powers by the treaty of Versailles, these islands and German property upon them cannot be disposed of without the consent of the United States, one of the allied and associated powers.

Acting Secretary Davis produced today before the Foreign Relations Committee some of the minutes of the Paris peace conference, including minutes of the council of the five great powers. It came out incidentally that the State Department did not possess a complete record of the proceedings of the peace conference, minutes of many of the sessions of the so-called Council of Four never having been obtained.

An examination of the minutes produced served to show that the council had discussed reservations made by President Wilson to Japanese control of the Island of Yap cable, but the Acting Secretary was not able to produce any evidence that this reservation had been made in writing or preserved in any formal way. In this connection resort was had to the transcript of the stenographic record of President Wilson's conference with the members of the Committee on Foreign Relations on Aug. 19, 1919, shortly after his return from Paris. In that conference the President had stated that as Yap was one of the bases and centres of cable and radio communication in the Pacific he had made the point in the peace conference "that the disposition or rather control of that island should be reserved for the general conference which is to be held in regard to the ownership and operation of cables."

The President added that "the subject is mentioned and disposed of in this treaty (the Versailles Treaty) and that general cable conference is to be held." The verbatim report continues:

Senator Moses—Was the stipulation that that should be reserved for the consideration of the cable conference a formally signed protocol?

The President—No, it was not a formally signed protocol, but we had a prolonged and interesting discussion on the subject and nobody has any doubt as to what was agreed upon.

International Control Our Demand.

The Acting Secretary of States gave an outline of the position of the Government with respect to the future of Yap and its cable station. This was that Yap should be internationalized and must be used as an international cable landing station and not under the control of any one power. The American understanding was that the status of Yap would be determined along with the settlement of other cable questions by the International Communications Conference which met in Washington recently. President Wilson, Mr. Davis informed the committee, had said that he was not willing that Yap should belong to a single power. It was true, he said, that Japan and Great Britain had had an interchange of letters by which Great Britain supported Japan's claims to possession of the islands in the Pacific north of the equator.

Since the Communications Conference adjourned without coming to an agreement on the Yap cable question Great Britain and Japan had reached an agreement in regard to mandates growing out of the Peace Treaty. It was brought out that in the Communications Conference the Japanese delegates made the point that there was nothing in the Peace Conference record to show that the United States had made a stipulation in writing that it reserved rights in the Yap cable.

The attention of the committee was called to the fact that Mr. Balfour recently informed the House of Commons that an agreement had been made between the allied powers respecting Class C mandates and that this agreement had been submitted to the Council of the League of Nations at Geneva on Dec. 17 and approved. According to unofficial reports, which the State Department has not verified, the agreement gives to Japan the right to apply Japanese laws to all the German Pacific islands north of the Equator, including Yap.

Japan is understood to contend that as her laws provide for ownership and control of all means of communication in Japanese possessions by the Japanese Government, exclusively, the cable landing at Yap must be administered solely by the Japanese Government.

Some of the Republican members of the committee were disposed to criticise President Wilson for having failed to make a stipulation in writing concerning his reservation in regard to Yap and its cable station. At the same time, it was said, there was a very general feeling in the committee, shared by Republicans and Democrats, that the Japanese Government had not acted in good faith in its insistence that the failure of the President to produce a written record of his reservation relieved Japan from any obligation to consent to American participation in the disposition of the Yap cable.

Earned His Living by Slipping on Banana Peels

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 25.—Banana peels, which Frank Smith, of Philadelphia, says have netted him "easy money," today landed him in jail for six months. He was arrested yesterday in the offices of the Public Service Railway Company here, where he presented a damage claim for injuries sustained in a trolley car on Sunday night when he slipped on a banana peel. His insistence that his claim be settled out of court aroused suspicion.

The police say they learned that Smith had presented similar claims against the Philadelphia and Reading Railway and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. He is alleged to have admitted he worked with a companion who preceded him into the cars and dropped the peel, and that he had worked the scheme in many cities.

WELSH LIBERALS FIGHT LLOYD GEORGE

They Organize Against Him at Cardigan, in His Own Territory.

DROP COALITION CANDIDATE

Champion of the Anti-Lloyd George Liberals Put Up Against Premier's Secretary.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A political sensation has been created today by a rebuff which Premier Lloyd George has received in his own territory. The Cardigan Liberals have refused to accept as their candidate in the forthcoming by-election the coalition candidate, Captain Ernest Evans, and have nominated instead Llewellyn Williams, a champion of the anti-Lloyd George Liberals.

When the vacancy occurred it was assumed that the seat would go to Evans as a matter of course. He is one of the Premier's private secretaries and a former member of Parliament. M. L. Vaughan-Davies, who has received a peerage, was returned by the constituency in 1918 unopposed.

It looked as if Evans would not even have to fight for the election. Moreover he had been "nursing" the constituency for some time. However, the Independent Liberals in Wales have been growing restive with the coalition policy for some months, and Llewellyn Williams had the courage to voice their dissatisfaction publicly and vehemently before the Premier's face in a speech which he made at Llandudno on Oct. 9, in the course of Lloyd George's Welsh tour. Since that time he has been a prime mover in forming the new Welsh Liberal Federation.

Captain Evans, it is stated, will run in spite of his rejection by the Cardigan Liberals, and consequently a contest of extraordinary interest and great importance as far as Lloyd George's political future is concerned is now in prospect.

MAY OPEN A NEW ERA IN TELEGRAPH SERVICE

Norwegian Invention Said to Reproduce Photographically at Any Distance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A Christiania dispatch to the London Times says:

"The morning newspapers here publish detailed accounts of the demonstration given at Sandefjord on Saturday of an important improvement in telegraphy invented by Hermod Petersen, chief manager of the radio department of the telegraph service.

"This invention, in the opinion of experts, will revolutionize telegraphy. It is the result of four years' work and consists of a new system based on the alternating current instead of the continuous current system hitherto used.

"One of the many benefits which this invention is expected to bring is a big reduction in the number of operators needed. It is estimated that work which now requires 117 of the best operators in Norway could be done by sixteen. The new system eliminates errors of any kind and reproduces with photographic accuracy at practically unlimited distances all sorts of handwriting, type, drawings and photographs."

An expert is quoted as saying that by using the Petersen system a New York newspaper would be able to reproduce a column from a London contemporary within ten minutes.

FRENCH COURT USHER HELD AS BRIBE-TAKER

Remark by Old Woman Leads to Inquiry and Discovery of 27,000 Franc Hoard in His Home.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—"I didn't give him enough," sighed an old woman in a Paris police court some days ago when the Public Prosecutor demanded that the judgment passed on her son should be upheld. "Didn't give who enough?" asked the presiding Judge, who had overheard, and the old woman pointed to the prosecutor. There was a scene, and explanations were demanded. The honor of the legal profession had to be upheld, and the old woman was severely questioned. The only reply she could give, however, was that Monsieur Henri had promised for consideration of 200 francs to use his personal influence with the Judge, and for another 200 francs had promised that the public prosecutor would show leniency.

Who Monsieur Henri could be puzzled the Judge for some days. Then another magistrate heard the same story of how Monsieur Henri had promised for a consideration in cash to produce a postponement of a case.

The inquiry became more searching, and yesterday Monsieur Henri was arrested. When the news spread through the law courts it caused a sensation, for Monsieur Henri turned out to be a most respectable and popular usher in the Palais de Justice. For twenty years he had held his position except for the years of war, when he won promotion from Corporal to Lieutenant.

Apparently his kindness of disposition led him astray. Relatives of accused people were always coming to him asking him to help, and Henri found it only too easy to let them suppose he could if properly handled. When the police searched his house they found a little hoard of 27,000 francs, which certainly represented more than he could possibly have saved from his pay.

All that he ever did, he declared, was to get little tips for arranging times at which a case would be heard, but the honor of French justice has been touched, and it looks hard for Monsieur Henri even though he is so popular.

BRINDELL SAFES DEFEAT LOCKSMITH

Expert Quits With Bleeding Hands After Four-Hour Attempt to Open Them.

ANOTHER WILL TRY TODAY

"Hoist Them on Your Backs," Council Member Tells Movers; "They Are Empty."

House Wrecker Describes His Effort to Get a Receipt From Alleged Extortioner.

The two steel safes removed yesterday from the office of Robert P. Brindell, Chairman of the Building Trades Council, to the Criminal Court Building, did not yield up their contents despite the attempt of John Girouard, an expert for the Mosler Safe Company, who gave up the task of opening them after four hours' work.

The prosecution in the case of Brindell, on trial before Justice McAvoy on a charge of extortion, will call in another expert today in the hope that they may learn whether the minute books and cash books of the Council are in the safes.

The safes reached the Criminal Court Building shortly before 2 o'clock. Girouard and L. B. Morris, manager of the Mosler Safe Company, were on hand and the expert began work at once. Girouard got down on his knees and worked at the combination until his knuckles bled. At 6 o'clock he reported that he was "all in" and said the only way to open the safes would be to blow them open.

Intimation that the safes were empty were received by the men who moved them from the Council's office at 11 St. Mark's Place. The movers inquired about hoisting the safes out of the window by a block and tackle when one of the Council's members said: "You are fine safe movers. We have men here who will hoist them on their backs and go downstairs smoking a pipe. Those safes are empty. Give them a shake and see."

Robert C. Whiting, in charge of labor for the George A. Fuller Company; Herman Clompoos, a house wrecker, and Joseph H. Goldblatt, a house wrecker, were witnesses at the trial yesterday, and repeated substantially the stories they told before the Lockwood committee.

Tells of Brindell Threat.

Whiting told of how William Waixel, a house wrecker, was forced to discharge wreckers in the Zaranko union and engage inexperienced Building Trades Council men. Brindell threatened that if Waixel were not dismissed he would call a strike on every job the Fuller Company had under contract in the United States, the witness said. The labor leader also threatened to have the Fuller Company tear down "every pound of steel" in the Metropolitan Life Annex because it was put up by non-union men.

Goldblatt was extremely cautious in his dealings with Richard Pike and John Chapman, delegates of the Council, to whom he paid $2,000, so that the men whom they called on strike at 121 West 145th Street might be permitted to return to work. He demanded a receipt for the money, and when the delegates refused it he complained to Brindell, who told him to "be quick about it," and that he was "getting off cheap," and, anyway, it was a "measly sum," he testified.

When he drew the $2,000 from the bank he got the paying teller to note on a slip of paper the numbers of the bills. In making out the check, which he cashed personally, he endorsed it with the words "Labor Council" and made it payable to the Council. After paying the money the men returned to work.

Says Council Framed Him.

On cross-examination by Martin W. Littleton the witness told of being dismissed from the Building Trades Employers Association in 1914 on a charge of hiring non-union sheet metal workers. He declared the charges to be a "frame-up."

Herman Clompoos, a house wrecker, on direct examination by Samuel Untermyer, told of paying Brindell $1,000 in two payments of $500 each and $200 for "permission" cards for his workmen. There were twenty men and the cards were $10 each. The money was paid after he had two strikes which were "rather painful, almost an agony." He paid the money, he said, so that he could get workingmen from Brindell.

The trial will continue this morning at 10 o'clock. The case for the prosecution will probably be concluded today and the defense will present witnesses for Brindell.

10 IN BLANKET INDICTMENT.

Report Bronx Cut Stone Contractors Face Anti-Trust Law Charge.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, of which William I. Spiegelberg is foreman, returned a blanket indictment yesterday to Justice John V. McAvoy in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The names of the defendants were not made public. They will appear to answer the charges at 11 A. M., today.

It is believed that the indictment is against ten cut stone contractors in the Bronx, said to belong to one of "the Hettrick groups." The charge is said to be violation of the Donnelly anti-trust law.

FRIEDLANDER MURDER CLUE.

Auto in Which He Was Slain With Dr. Cantor in Ukraine Is Found.

WARSAW, Jan. 25 (Jewish News Bureau).—An important clue to the murder of Professor Israel Friedlander and the Rev. Dr. Bernard Cantor, the American relief agents, last July has been discovered in the concentration camp near Warsaw where a remnant of Petlura's army is interned. Among the effects of the Ukrainian chief's army was found the automobile in which the murdered Americans were riding through Kamenetz-Podolsk when they were shot down.

The automobile was brought to Warsaw today and turned over to the local representatives of the American Joint Distribution Committee. It is expected that a new investigation will be begun which will fix definitely responsibility for the crime.

SPINACH POISONS TWENTY.

Two Dead, Three Dying in Michigan From Eating Preserved Vegetable.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 25.—Two persons, a nurse and an orderly, are dead at Blodgett Hospital, here. Three others are dying and several more are in a critical condition as a result, hospital authorities believe, of eating preserved spinach last Saturday night.

The dead are: Miss Flossie Coyle, a nurse; John Smith, 25, hospital orderly.

Twenty nurses and hospital attaches partook of the spinach at noon Saturday. All are said to have shown signs of poisoning. Following an analysis of the poison, a special serum was ordered from the medical institute of the University of Illinois.

An investigation has been started by local health authorities.

MUSIC
By Richard Aldrich

The Chicago Orchestra.

A large part of the musical apparatus of Chicago was in New York yesterday. Besides the Opera Company that was playing in the Manhattan Opera House, with its gifted directrix leading the cast, the Chicago Orchestra gave a concert in Carnegie Hall on the first Eastern trip it has taken in a good many years.

It was under the direction of its conductor, Frederick A. Stock, who, since his promotion to the post he now occupies on the death of Theodore Thomas, founder of the Chicago organization, has become one of the most distinguished as well as one of the most unassuming of conductors, and has put his orchestra in a position second to none in this country. He amply demonstrated this last evening, and left no doubt that the Chicago Opera Company is one thing and the Chicago Orchestra quite another.

The program, which was somewhat too long and comprehensive, was made up of Brahms's third symphony, a choice grateful to music lovers who have heard much of the other three symphonies in recent seasons and very little of this one—Tschaikovsky's symphonic fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini"; Arnold Bax's symphonic poem, "The Garden of Fand," and Strauss's tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration." The natural and inevitable desire of a visiting conductor giving a single concert to display as many as possible of the best points of his orchestra is no doubt responsible in part for the composition of the program. Thus Tschaikovsky's fantasia calls for virtuoso playing by the orchestra and demands unusual points on the part of several of the players, but it no longer deeply interests and has begun to show somewhat the ravages of time.

The orchestra was, as [illegible], a remarkably fine body of players, and quite sustained its high reputation. Its tone as a whole is beautiful in quality, in mellowness and richness, in balance. The strings are of golden beauty and transparency of tone. The wood winds are delicious in their purity, [illegible] and finesse, especially the flutes and clarinets. Such clarinet playing as came forth in the little solo passage in Tschaikovsky's symphonic poem is not too frequently heard. So, too, are the brasses good, though not quite so distinguished. The first horn's solo passages showed an excellent tone and style.

The performance of Brahms's symphony was deeply musical in its conception, beautifully finished in the execution; a true exposition of the composer's thought, in its fine [illegible] romantic tenderness and poesy, [illegible] tion. The conductor went hand in hand with the composer, [illegible] effects, but [illegible] subordination and emphasis of the several choirs showing forth the depth and eloquence of Brahms's instrumentation as it should sound. There was much beauty in the phrasing throughout, and especially in the "Poco Allegretto" movement. Some may have been perplexed at a certain few moments by what seemed to be an interruption of the melodic line, a momentary loss of the "melos," and could only wonder why, in a performance otherwise so profoundly felt.

"The Garden of Fand," heard for the first time in New York, is one of the very few works of Arnold Bax that have been played in New York or in this country. It is but a few weeks since another of his [illegible] pieces was given here by the Boston Orchestra, "In the Faery Hills." [illegible] is concerned with some of the supernatural lore of Ireland.

"The Garden of Fand" is the sea itself, on which human voyagers are borne to the shores of a [illegible] island where [illegible] inhuman revelry continues, and Fand sings her song of immortal love claiming the souls of her human listeners till the sea rises and overwhelms the whole island, and the people of Fand, riding in rapture on the waves, mock the fate of the [illegible] mortal.

The music finely depicts the atmosphere of enchantment, the sky of amethyst and pearl, the "ridges of green and gold waves," in its iridescent coloring and subtle harmonization, its persuasive thematic unfolding. Mr. Bax is a modern and adventures into the midst of subtle dissonances and seeks atmosphere and color more than the clear treatment of theme. But he is guided constantly by a feeling for beauty. His music is pregnant with suggestion. It is unfortunately too long for its substance and it would say more and more pertinently if it said it more briefly.

The performance was delicately luminous in its restoration of the composer's musical coloring. It did, too, quite all that was to be expected of it in Tschaikovsky's "Francesca da Rimini." There have been, perhaps, more thunderous performances, that made more of the sensational features of the work, but few that translated them into more musical language.

The audience was large, and soon found occasion to manifest enthusiasm. There was much applause after every number, and more than once Mr. Stock made his men rise and share it with him.

The National Symphony Orchestra.

At the concert of the National Symphony Orchestra given yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall Mr. Mengelberg presented a program comprising Cherubini's overture to "Anacreon," Tschaikowsky's fifth symphony and Liszt's piano concerto, played by Ignaz Friedman. The audience did not fill the hall completely, but it was roused to great enthusiasm by the performance of Tschaikowsky's symphony. Especially after the second movement, the Andante Cantabile, and again at the close of the symphony, it burst into an uproar of applause and even bravos, of a sort not often occasioned by a symphony concert.

And, in truth, the performance was a remarkably fine one, of great eloquence, as splendid and sonorous in its larger proportions as it was finished and ornate in detail. Mr. Mengelberg had indeed elaborated his reading to the furthest limits in the molding of phrase, the adjustment of the finer shades of dynamics, the subtle differences, the retardations and accelerations of tempo.

The music, of course, yields itself with open arms to such treatment, through its very substance and texture, and it has always been favorite material in which conductors may develop to the fullest degree that "certain license" that the composer prescribes in the slow movement and implicitly suggests through the whole. Mr. Mengelberg had brought his orchestra to the point of responding flexibly to the flexibility of his reading. He wreaked himself upon the music and the result was a performance of stirring power and impressiveness.

It may be that there was the less opportunity to prepare scrupulously the accompaniment to Mr. Friedman's performance of Liszt's concerto. Mr. Mengelberg has before this given some excellent accompaniments. Yesterday there was something of confusion in the whole effect of Mr. Friedman's performance and the orchestral background. He played, on the whole, brilliantly, not with wholly impeccable accuracy, with relentless power in the fortissimo passages and great delicacy in the pianissimo; with much capriciousness of rhythm and tempo—a capriciousness that is no doubt justified, at least in part, by the character and spirit of the composition, but which added considerably to the difficulty of a closely following accompaniment.

Levitzki Plays With Letz Quartet.

The Letz Quartet gave a second subscription evening of chamber music last night in Aeolian Hall, repeating on this occasion the Italian Malipiero's "Rispetti e Strombotti," a prize work of the Berkshire Festival last year. The Messrs. Letz, Harmati, Kreiner and Shuk were also heard in an "allegro assai" of a posthumous quartet by Schubert, and Mischa Levitzki assisted in the piano quartet in A, op. 26, of Brahms. The program was enjoyed by a keenly musical house.

MARY GARDEN GETS OVATION AS VANNA

New Director of Chicago Opera Welcomed Home in Title Role of Fevrier's Opera.

MURATORE AS PRINZIVALLE

French Conductor, Henri Morin, Shares With Stars Many Recalls After Second Act.

Welcome to a victorious French wing of Chicago's songbirds, now at the Manhattan to sing till March, was extended last evening by the Tuesday subscribers, the only opera audience of this one night, whereas there will be double opera [illegible] all the rest of the week. The opera was "Monna Vanna," but that fact was of only mild interest now. It was a great home-coming at the revived house of Hammerstein and of his prophet, Mary Garden. Here she had begun long ago the first campaign for all that part of modern French art that this town yet owes to the enterprise of Oscar. It was on Tuesday nights, the "French nights" of later custom, that the Chicagoans had also come back to New York after the Hammerstein heights, and had shown here still more of their Parisian spectacles, once appearing as the Metropolitan's own guests in "Monna Vanna," never repeated there, but thrice again at the Lexington, and new to the old Manhattan [illegible] last evening. The event was [illegible] like a "first night" than second [illegible] season.

Miss Garden as impresario for the first time presented herself as star, perhaps the first woman in the world to fill both roles of manager and singer [illegible]. To her critics of [illegible] past [illegible] song with what was [illegible] voice, the voice of [illegible]. To her warmest admirers it was [illegible] "anything." What leading [illegible] of spoken drama [illegible] more firmly associated in the popular mind as "trying many parts" than had Mary Garden in the years she had drawn round her [illegible] personality [illegible] a slender cloak of many colors, the [illegible] of Thais, Louise and [illegible] of Salome and [illegible] Griselidis [illegible] Miss Garden [illegible] her personality [illegible] interesting [illegible] has considerably and [illegible] to opera [illegible] of the [illegible]. She was never a more [illegible] figure [illegible].

Fevrier's "Monna Vanna" was first sung in New York on Feb. 17, 1914, in the [illegible] season of the then combined Chicago-Philadelphia company's visits to the Metropolitan Opera House. It had had an American premiere the previous [illegible] in Boston at the hands of the Boston Opera Company, and in the interval it had been produced by the Metropolitan's so-called ally in both Philadelphia and Chicago. When the independent [illegible] organization began its annual seasons here at the Lexington it opened on Jan. 23, 1918, with "Monna Vanna," repeating it once again that season and once in the following year, Jan. 20, 1919. Last night's performance was thus only the fifth time in New York.

The large audience rose in quick popular tumult and the orchestra men played a "flourish" when Miss Garden entered the stage as Vanna, evidently struggling, without being ungracious, not to step "out of the picture," which she was later able to do in good conscience at the first act's end in half a dozen curtain calls. Baklanoff and Cotreuil were admirable as the sombre husband and the father-in-law, once sung by Marcoux and Huberdeau.

In the tropical tent scene of Act II. there returned with Garden herself the tenor, Muratore, remembered after several years as a Prinzivalle of much poetic tenderness to the chivalrous hero's reminiscence of Vanna's childhood. The role indeed, brings out the gentler qualities of his voice better than some others he sings. His reserve best deserved applause, which, however, was not lacking when he took some top notes singing a falsetto.

A new and active French conductor, Henri Morin, deservedly shared with Garden and Muratore the prolonged recalls after the second act, and there were more when the opera ended, briefly and imaginatively as does the play, without a "last act" that Maeterlinck wrote for Fevrier, but which has never been included here. Minor parts in the cast were taken by the Messrs. Paillard, Nicolay, Contesso and Defrere, and Mr. Coini staged the revival.

Many Metropolitan stars were in the Manhattan's audience, as also were Albert Wolff, the French conductor there; President H. H. Flagler of the Symphony Society and others representative of social and musical New York.

AN ALPHABET OF APPROVAL
HAPGOOD TO WIGGIN.
NORMAN HAPGOOD—"Miss Lulu Bett" is literature and at the same time it is good strong drama. High comedy, the comedy of character, truly and superbly drawn, is scarce and the theatre offers no finer appeal than that kind of comedy of the mind and heart.
W. E. HILL—I fear I shall be sorely tempted to borrow right and left from "Miss Lulu Bett" and her relatives for "Among Us Mortals."
JOHN HAYNES HOLMES—I enjoyed every moment of it.
MADGE KENNEDY—An amazing experience in the theatre. I liked it tremendously.
THOMAS W. LAMONT—I have seen it twice and have been immensely taken with the play. The cast is an excellent one all around.
RING W. LARDNER—Miss "Lulu Bett" is bad advice. I'm glad I didn't.
EDWIN MARKHAM—The sentiment is fine, the humor contagious. A wholly delightful two hours.
SAMUEL MERWIN—I was enthusiastic from beginning to end.
CHARLES MERZ—I liked it better than "Enter Madame."
ALICE DUER MILLER—Who says a book can't be dramatized?
WILLIAM LYON PHELPS—Those who enjoy life will enjoy this play. It is full of vitality, full of comedy and tragedy.
JOHN S. PHILLIPS—It is a good play, fresh and interesting; a little masterpiece of acting; a fine example of directing and stage managing.
ANNE RITTENHOUSE—I loved every minute of it.
TED ROBINSON (In The Cleveland Plain Dealer)—The best thing in New York is "Lulu Bett."
EUGENE SPEICHER—I liked it better than "Enter Madame."
IDA TARBELL—I was enthusiastic from the first to the last moment.
HERBERT B. SWOPE—The kind of a play that having seen once, nearly everybody will want to see again.
CHARLES HANSON TOWNE—A beautiful play, beautifully produced and acted.
LOUIS UNTERMEYER—That rare thing: A true rendering of the book—and what a book!
GILDA VARESI—I would give ten years of my life to have written "Lulu Bett." It is a perfect thing.
OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD—A wholly delightful comedy.
WILLIAM ALLFIN WHITE—A great American comedy—the drama of the new woman who would rather be the beloved mistress than the neglected wife.
KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN—I cannot tell you how I liked it, and I have seen it twice.

Bonds of Proved Integrity

Present-day investors should not fail to investigate the opportunities offered by time seasoned bonds which have paid their interest promptly and uninterruptedly for a long period of years, through good times and bad, and which are now selling far and away below their original offering prices. To include such bonds among those to be purchased is to strengthen and diversify one's investments as a whole. Our circular "January Investments" mentions bonds of this character.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Movement of Stocks Again Irregular—Advance in Foreign Exchange Halts.

The halt in the upward movement of foreign exchange—practically the first check to the progressive rise which has occurred for ten days—attracted the greater share of Wall Street's interest yesterday. This reaction began after sterling had made a further advance to $3.80¼, the highest of the month; a rate which represented a total rise of 5 cents within a week and of 27½ thus far in the New Year. It closed unchanged from Monday. Other exchanges, however, as a rule drifted lower all day; in the end the rate on Paris sold about ⅝ cent below Monday's closing.

Wall Street was disposed to ascribe the reaction to the published statement of the French Financial Commissioner in this city, to the effect that the predicted $100,000,000 French Government loan was a matter of rumor only, and that "there is no necessity for such an operation at the present time." This statement may have influenced the market, but as a matter of fact the recent pace of the upward movement in exchange, and the evidence of accumulating speculation for the rise in the past few days, had made reaction probable in any case. It has also been well enough known that the French negotiations had not passed the tentative stage. Possibly the Paris financiers believe that more favorable terms may be obtained by waiting until the American money market has adjusted itself somewhat farther to the new conditions.

Yesterday's stock market presented the now familiar mixture of isolated advances and declines; the only movement which could be attached to current news being the sharp advance at the opening in both stocks and bonds of the street railway companies, followed in the later trading by the loss of most or all of the earlier gains. The advance was obviously in response to Governor Miller's message on the traction situation, which was undoubtedly encouraging to all who hope for intelligent handling of this complicated question instead of the stupid reiteration of catchwords with which our City Administration discusses it.

The Governor's public recognition of the fact that "the water has already been squeezed out of the securities and that the companies are now earning fixed charges," is important as clearing the ground for wider discussion, and the unlucky holders of traction stocks and bonds may possibly be comforted by his assertion that "the market value of outstanding securities is undoubtedly much below the intrinsic value of the properties represented." It is likely, however, that Wall Street was disappointed at the absence of that recommendation for a higher passenger fare, and by the uncertainties involved in the proposal for a unified system not only devoid of opportunity for speculative profit but so adjusted that "profitable parts of the system" should "maintain the unprofitable." We are likely to hear a good deal more of this general plan, however.

The earnings statement of the United States Steel Corporation for the closing quarter of 1920 was not given out until after the Stock Exchange was closed. It was in most regards in line with expectations. Except for the preceding quarter, the period's net earnings were the largest since the second three months of 1918, and the October earnings in particular were considerably above those of any month since June of that year. No one was surprised at this. It was well known that deliveries of a given month represent the orders placed several months before, and that orders on hand at the end of July were the largest ever reported by the company outside of a few months immediately after our country went to war. Such was the volume of these unfilled orders, a result of the company's policy of maintaining stable prices, that even at the close of December, with the mills of other companies shutting down, the United States Steel was still operating at capacity in Pittsburgh and around 89 per cent. elsewhere. The earnings nevertheless decreased during the quarter from $18,700,000 in October to $12,000,000 in December, the smallest of any month last year.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JAN. 25, 1921.

Call money again ruled at 7 per cent. on the Stock Exchange market throughout the day. Business was reported to be on a fair scale, but without any features. In time money there was a fractional hardening in mixed collateral offerings, but the change was little more than nominal. A more important change in the market was the reduction in quoted rates on commercial paper, on which the asking rate of 8 per cent. on best names was eliminated, with only the 7¾ per cent. bid price reported. The rate for other names, which has stood at 8@8¼ per cent. for some time past, was lowered to 7¾@8 per cent.

Government withdrawals from the banks of this Federal Reserve district for tomorrow will amount to $25,750,000, making a total for the week of approximately $37,000,000. Of this, about $32,500,000 will come from New York City banks, out of balances reported at the end of last week amounting to $103,618,000.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Reaction in Rates on European Continental Markets—Sterling Touches New High Level.

Heavy selling of exchange, proceeding apparently both from actual holders of bills who had been keeping out of the market during the recent rise and from speculators who were realizing profits, caused a sharp reaction yesterday in Continental exchange rates. French exchange opened a fraction lower at 7.32 cents and declined to 6.75, where it closed. Italian ended nearly ¼ cent lower, Belgian declined exactly ½ cent, Norwegian ¼, and the rate on Berlin fell back about ⅛ cent per mark.

The reaction did not extend to all markets, however. Sterling advanced ¾ cents, then declined 1¾ and recovered 1 cent before the close, which was the same as Monday's. Spanish exchange closed slightly higher and Greece about ⅛ cent. Central European markets generally maintained Monday's closing rates. Argentine and Brazilian exchange were a small fraction higher, and the Montreal rate rose to 88.6 cents, the highest of the year, comparing with 88.3 Monday and 87.6 a week ago.

PENNSYLVANIA WOULD RAISE $100,000,000

Authority of Railroad Stockholders to Increase the Debt to Be Asked at March Meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Authority to increase the indebtedness of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to the extent of $100,000,000 will be asked of the systems stockholders at the annual meeting here on March 8, it was announced today. Requests for proxies were mailed to the stockholders from the General offices here.

Samuel Rea, President of the railroad, in a circular letter sent to the stockholders, explains the request as necessary in order that the company may not only be able to do its own necessary financing, but, if required, be in a position to assist its subsidiaries in meeting their large maturities during the current year; to settle accounts with the Government, which spent large sums upon the property during Federal control, and to acquire such additional equipment and facilities as may be deemed essential.

The stockholders also will be asked to vote on the ratification of long term leases of sixteen railroad properties now constituting portions of the Pennsylvania system and controlled through ownership of all, or virtually all, of their capital stock. The most important of these are the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (the "Panhandle"), the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railway and the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Some Issues Loaning Flat.

Evidence of continued activity on the short side of the market was to be found yesterday in the increased demand for stocks in the loan crowd. Several issues loaned flat, but did not at any time reach the premium point. One of the issues in heaviest demand was Mexican Petroleum, which started out by loaning at 6 per cent. As the scarcity of stock became manifest the rate decreased until the shares were loaning flat. It was said that many of the would-be borrowers of this issue had to go unsatisfied. Sears-Roebuck was another issue which was in scant supply. The borrowing demand was not one that encompassed the entire list, but was confined to special stocks. This seemed to bear out the contention of many that speculators for the decline were confining their operations to the seeking out of possible weak issues.

Traction Issues Active.

As the direct result of the Governor's message covering the local traction companies, trading in the securities of the local concerns in yesterday's stock market was on a larger scale than for some time. At the opening there was a demand for the stock, which brought about a fractional advance, the initial interpretation apparently being bullish, but later, when it was realized that the Governor pointed the way to ultimate municipal ownership sentiment, was reversed and not only were the earlier gains lost, but most of the shares closed showing net losses for the day. In public utility circles and among bankers the message was generally approved, while some of those who have specialized in local street car, elevated and subway securities were particularly well pleased. The movement of traction issues in the bond market almost paralleled the movement of the stock prices in that they opened up and closed off. The Governor's statement that regulation of the situation should be lifted out of politics was specially approved in some quarters.

Railroad Wages Too High.

It is the opinion of a great many railroad managers that the time is approaching rapidly when concerted action must be taken by the carriers in the matter of wage reductions. The last available monthly earnings statistics for the Class 1 railroads show that since the inauguration of the new rate schedules the roads as a whole have earned only a little more than half of the amount that they were expectetd to earn on their aggregate value when the Interstate Commerce Commission approved the increases. To comply with the law rates must either be increased or expenses lowered. It is the unanimous opinion that the public would not submit to higher rates, so expenses must be cut. And the one item in the expense account of the American transportation system which is able to bear a cut and will yield enough money to allow for the functioning of the law is the payroll. Outside industry is already beginning to ask why it should pay such high rates when those rates are held up because of rail wage scales which are higher than those in their industries, and it is believed that the pressure will soon result in a definite effort to bring rail wages down in proportion with the decreases in the cost of living.

Improved Grain Movement.

Reports from the West indicate that grain producers in the West, Northwest and Southwestern areas are shipping more freely. All of the bread grains such as wheat, corn, rye, and barley are being received at primary points in increasing volume, and the week-by-week improvement is marked. That this will find some reflection in the traffic figures of some of the rairoads serving the districts mentioned is a natural assumption, but it is not expected that it will serve to offset tthe general slump in other kinds of traffic.

December Reports Delayed.

It is expected that the December earnings statements of a large number of the railroads to the Interstate Commerce Commission probably will be delayed from one week to three. This is because several of the roads have to make extensive readjustment in items which had been carried during the other months pending various decisions. Appropriations were made early in 1920 to cover the items in the budget, and probably the most disturbing incident was the wage award by the Railroad Labor Board in July. This meant that an item of $600,000,000 had to be fitted into the accounts of the carriers which they had not expected.

Five Per Cent. by March 1?

A banker who handles probably as much money for loans as any other in the Street is predicting 5 per cent. call money by March 1. Money, he says, is plentiful now—much more so than the 7 per cent. rate on the board would seem to indicate—and he expects it to become more plentiful in the next few weeks. He thinks that funds will be flowing in from the interior and he is convinced that a rate lower than the current quotation on the Stock Exchange is not going to "scare off" interior balances to any noticeable extent for the reason that interior lenders will not be able to find home employment for their funds at any better figure than will obtain here.

Not Plentiful for Stocks.

Money, most of the money rokers agree, is plentiful for everything but stocks. One big handler of funds says that his firm is well supplied with offerings of all kinds except demand collateral loans, and money for these continues reasonably scarce. It would appear that the lenders are favoring eligible paper more than ever and what money they have for collateral loans they are trying to place on the ninety-day maturity, doubtless on the theory that money is going to be much cheaper within the next ninety days. But the borrowers are just as adverse to borrowing for three months as the lenders are axious to lend, so there is not a great deal of business being done.

Wanted: A Rail Issue.

The almost phenomenal success of the Belgian loan and the American Agricultural Chemical offerings has inspired distributing bankers with thoughts of what might be if only the available supply of new securities included some prime rail issue. The appetite for new stuff of high grade and at ttractive figures seems to be as keen as ever and yesterday many distributing bankers were convinced that a good rail offering would be easily sold and profitable to handle.

Today's Opportunities

LIQUIDATION of commodities, the consequent fixing of more permanent values and easier money rates, are some of the factors which indicate that bonds will not continue to sell at prices that permit the very large returns at present obtainable.

Some Facts Regarding Liberty Bonds

United States is by far the richest nation in the world; in comparison with other countries our national debt is ridiculously small. More nearly normal money rates and industrial conditions will mean that obligations of the United States will return to a basis where the yield will approach that of pre-war days. In the meantime Liberty Bonds are selling to yield more than certain standard issues of railroad and municipal obligations.

If some of the tax features of Liberty Bonds are not clearly understood we invite requests for information.

DENIES RAIL HEADS FAVORED OWN SHOPS

A. C. L. President Asserts They Held No Interest in Concerns Which Made Repairs.

J. R. Kenly President of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company issued a statement yesterday denying that his road ever had its equipment repaired in outside shops in which officers or Directors of the railroad were personally interested. His statement, which lays the necessity for farming out some repair work to the fact that shop efficiency on the Atlantic Coast Line was decreased not less than 30 per cent. through the abolishing of piecework and the substitution of the eight in place of the ten-hour day, said:

"The Baldwin Locomotive Works have practically rebuilt twenty Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company locomotives and are rebuilding ten more. Two were sent to the American Locomotive Works for repairs. The contract for the first ten was made during Federal control with the full concurrence of the Regional Director and the work upon them was begun before the end of Federal control. No cars have been repaired at outside shops.

"We estimate that the efficiency of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company's shops was decreased not less than 30 per cent. during the period of Federal control by the reduction of the work day from ten to eight hours by the forced abandonment of piecework, by the forced obligation of the closed shop and by successive Federal interpretations of the rules and regulations governing shop control and operations.

"No Director or othe officer of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company has any direct or indirect interest in either the Baldwin or the American Locomotive Works.

"When the Federal Government took over the railroads on Dec. 31, 1917 there were 112 engines out of service requiring repairs. At the end of Federal control on March 1, 1920 there were 202.

"A locomotive is supposed to be near the time of shopping for major repairs when it has made 100,000 miles. On Dec. 31 1917, the following was part of the locomotive record:

Locomotives having made less than 40,000 miles 297
Locomotives having made more than 100,000 miles........................93

"On March 1, 1920, when the railroads were returned to their stockholders:

Locomotives having made less than 40,000 miles 246

"Add to this condition a decreased shop capacity of not less than 30 per cent. and you have the reason why the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad was forced to employ outside shops if it was to meet the demands of the public for transportation service."

NEW ENGLAND ROADS REJECT RATE OFFER

Rail Presidents Proposed Giving Up to $15,000,000 More on Through Freight.

BROADER MEETING HERE

Heads of All Trunk Lines Are Asked to Attend Friday in Effort to Settle the Problem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A call was issued tonight for a meeting in New York Friday of all railroad Presidents whose lines might be affected by the re-division of revenues from through freight rates between trunk lines west of the Hudson River and New England carriers. The meeting was called after the breaking up today of the conferences here of the Presidents of eleven large Eastern railroads, through inability to arrive at any compromise acceptable to New England roads.

The conference here sought an adjustment of the controversy without action by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and on the failure to reach an agreement the hearings before the commission were continued, with W. S. Kallman, of the New York Central, as a witness. Mr. Kallman attacked the exhibits submitted by the New England carriers at previous hearings on the ground that they were not fair to the trunk lines. He presented New York Central exhibits, which, he said, gave a fairer showing of the moneys received by New England carriers.

Presidents from the Eastern lines are understood to have offered the New England carriers $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 to meet their estimated annual deficit of $17,500,000. E. J. Pearson, President of the New Haven, and J. H. Hustis, President of the Boston and Maine, however, were said to have refused to accept the offer, holding that it left too great a deficit to be made up in other ways, and that the New England roads would only be postponing bankruptcy to accept.

The meeting called for Friday in New York is expected to allow the New England carriers an opportunity to place their financial troubles before the entire list of presidents whose lines would be affected by the granting of a larger share of the joint rates to the carriers east of the Hudson.

The insistence of Chairman Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission that an amicable adjustment be reached by the two groups was understood to have played a large part in the decision to hold another meeting in New York. One executive said, "Chairman Clark talked stronger to us than ever before" when informed of the failure to reach an agreement at the conferences here.

The eleven railroad Presidents left Washington tonight for their home offices, where they are expected to work over various offers which might be acceptable to the New England lines.

STEEL CO. EARNINGS FALL $4,200,000

Report for Last Quarter Shows Net of $43,877,862, or $4.09 on Common Shares.

HIGHEST IN OCTOBER

Return of $16,775,443 for Month Is Record for Year—Regular Dividend Declared.

The report of the United States Steel Corporation for the final quarter of last year, which was announced yesterday, showed net earnings of $43,877,862 after allowance for all expenses and estimated Federal income and excess profits taxes. As compared with the third quarter of the year the earnings were less by $4,200,000, but they exceeded the earnings reported in the first and second quarters. After all charges the balance available for dividends, with due allowance for the preferred, was equal to $4.09 a share on the common stock. In the preceding quarter the earnings on the common were equal to $4.76 a share, while in the December quarter of 1919 the amount available for the junior issue was equal to $2.27 a share.

The record of earnings by months in the report for the December quarter showed October at $16,775,443, November at $15,002,919, and December earnings were $12,099,500. Briefly, the October earnings were the highest reported in any month of the year and the December earnings were the lowest. The sharp falling off in earnings in December was something of a surprise to the financial district, since it was not foreshadowed in any of the reports as to operations which have been coming forth. The only possible construction which could be placed on the display was that at some place along the line operations had failed to hold up to the high standard that was generally reported by trade publications. In no other way, it was argued, could earnings have been so adversely affected, since prices were unchanged. When asked for an explanation Judge Gary, Chairman of the Board, said it was purely a seasonal situation, earnings always declining in December.

It was to be seen by a glance at the records, however, that December of 1919 was a contradiction since December earnings were the highest of the quarter. Earnings in October and November of that year were, however, adversely affected by the steel strike. But taking the year as a whole, December earnings in 1919 were exceeded by only two other months of the year. The general run of reports all through the last quarter of 1920 showed that the Steel Corporation was operating at somewhere in the neighborhood of 90 per cent. capacity, the high basis being emphasized as opposed to the position of the independents.

The last quarter earnings were made possible by heavy infringement on forward business. Unfilled tonnage was cut down sharply since new demand was not by any means the equivalent of operations. In other words, the earnings of the corporation were made possible by cutting down the size of the backlog of orders. Various reasons were advanced for this, among them one that the corporation hoped to get as much as possible out of its forward business before cancellations played a big factor in reducing unfilled tonnage.

On the basis of the quarterly reports for 1920, which are usually subject to some revision before the annual report appears, net earnings for the year reached the total of $177,174,126, an increase of more than $33,000,000 over those reported for 1919. After all charges and estimated allowances for Federal taxes, the balance available for dividends was $110,136,105, or $33,042,945 more than in the preceding year. After allowing for preferred dividends of $25,219,677 the amount available for the common stock was $84,916,428, or the equivalent of $16.70 a share. This is more than three times the annual dividend rate. In 1919 the earnings on the common were equal to $10.20 a share.

The following table shows the chief items in the report for the December quarter, the same items in the previous quarter and the report for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1919, also the net earnings by months for the last three years.

London Bank Ordered to Wind Up.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The court today ordered the compulsory winding up of the affairs of the British-American Continental Bank, which suspended payments Jan. 6. Counsel said that probably all the creditors would be paid in full.

In financial circles in London at the time of the suspension of the bank the general financial situation was given as the reason. The bank was formerly Hannevig's Bank, Limited, and had a capital of £2,500,000.

Announcement was made yesterday of the incorporation in Delaware of the Barnsdall Foster Oil Co., a subsidiary of the Barnsdall Corporation, with a nominal capital of $100,000. It will operate in the Montana and Wyoming fields, where it has obtained approximately 11,000 acres of oil lands. Edwin B. Reeser will be president of the company, H. V. Foster vice president, and R. A. Broomfield secretary and treasurer.

E. H. GARY PREDICTS BUSINESS REVIVAL

Labor's Attitude Is a Hopeful Sign for a Gradual Improvement Soon, He Says.

Improvement in business conditions in the near future was predicted yesterday by Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation. The attitude of the masses of the workmen, he said, led him to be hopeful.

"Our own business," he said, "is running about the same as it has been going during the last sixty days. Those who have been expecting a sudden and satisfactory revival of business will probably be disappointed, but others who have taken into account all the conditions throughout the world which have a bearing upon business conditions and prospects should be well satisfied with the developments which have been shown.

"It seems to me the two important factors to be considered in trying to prognosticate the future relate to the high costs of production and the high costs of living. There have been some readjustments in respect to one factor which are appreciable and tend in the right direction. As to the wage rates I think, generally speaking, employes have been fair and reasonable. Of course, I do not include the rates paid to those who have suddenly become experts, including men working at the carpentry trade at the rate of $1 to $1.50 an hour, or other similar trades, influenced by special conditions not necessary to mention, having nothing to do with the law of supply and demand; not to the retailers who are paying not more than 50 per cent of former prices and yet insisting upon as high or even higher prices for what they sell.

"The inexorable law of supply and demand will bring all different lines of activity to a realization of what must be done before we can expect a normal volume of business on a fair and reasonable basis. I still think that with the elimination of extravagance and waste in all public and private departments, the disposition to economize and save, and a reasonable effort to co-operate, we shall, as the days go by, see a continued, if slow, improvement in business conditions in the comparatively near future. All that I see in my connections with industry, and particularly concerning the attitude of the masses of the workmen, leads me to be hopeful. There will still be seen pessimists, self-appointed agitators and others who are of no particular benefit to the general community."

COMMODITY MARKETS MOVE IRREGULARLY

Several Food Items Record Declines—Metals and Textiles Mixed.

There was a good deal of irregularity in yesterday's wholesale markets. Such changes as were recorded favored the declining, rather than the advancing side, but several items were unchanged from the preceding day. In foodstuffs, wheat, flour, sugar and eggs were unaltered, but corn, oats, and most of the meats were fractionally lower. The advances in the food department of the commodities list were in coffee and sugar and amounted to very little. Metals were mixed, with lead and copper unchanged, iron slightly higher and tin down. Spot cotton, on the basis of middling at New York, was off 65 points to 16.20 cents per pound.

HOOVER IN COMBINE OF BIG ENTERPRISES

Julius H. Barnes President of Company to Launch Half-Dozen Industrial Projects.

ALL EX-GOVERNMENT MEN

Drawn Together by the War, They Will Raise Cotton, Develop Water Power and Timber.

The formation was announced yesterday of a holding corporation, with offices at 42 Broadway, of which Julius H. Barnes, formerly of the United States Grain Corporation, is President, and in which Herbert C. Hoover is interested, to combine several industrial enterprises and establish others dealing principally with so-called waste products.

The Intercontinental Development Company, as the new corporation is named, has a Maryland charter and controls The Washington Herald, in which Mr. Hoover is a large stockholder; the Pejepscot Paper Company of Pejepscot, Me., makers of print paper and specialties, and the Klearflax Linen Rug Company of Duluth.

The Pejepscot Paper Company has timber holdings in Maine and Canada and is endeavoring to reforest clearings as they are made, and to carry out cutting in such a way as to preserve the young growth. This company also is endeavoring to utilize the water power within its holdings.

The Kleaflax Linen Rug Company makes its product from flax straw, which has been a waste product in the linen industry. Among the new plans of the company is the development by irrigation of large tracts of land in California for the production of cotton.

Besides Mr. Barnes other officers of the company are E. M. Flesh, a St. Louis grain operator and Treasurer of the United States Grain Corporation, Vice President and Treasurer; Edgar Rickard, mining engineer and director of the American Relief Administration, Vice President and Secretary, and Edwin P. Shattuck, Vice President and counsel.

An officer of the corporation said yesterday that the concern does not propose to enter the grain, mining or shipping fields. "The officers of the company are all men who have been doing Government work since the beginning of the war, and before that were engaged in European relief work. We were brought together by the war and its influences. Because of our congenial associations we have decided to go into business, feeling that many of our present economic ills can best be served by increased production on a large scale and the better utilization of waste products and uncultivated areas."

BULGARIA'S SITUATION.

Good and Bad Sides to the Banking Position.

The British Board of Trade Journal reports a Director of the leading Bulgarian bank as stating during a recent visit to London that the Bulgarian joint stock banks as a whole seem to have prospered throughout the eight years of Balkan and European warfare. The interview states that most of them have paid 10 per cent. dividends, notwithstanding the increase of their capital four or five times during the period, and their deposits show a corresponding increase. The banks are stated to have met their own foreign obligations mostly by drawing on their pre-war balances abroad.

But for war-time indebtedness incurred since 1914, the banker continued, the moratorium still exists and is not likely soon to be terminated. Moreover, private debts to foreign creditors are still almost entirely unpaid. It appears that the banking interests in Bulgaria previously controlled by German and Austrian capital have been very largely bought up by French and Italian banking interests, only one bank remaining altogether German.

FINANCIAL ADVERTISEMENT.

Now the Tide Has Turned

From 1914 to the first months of 1920, commodity prices have been climbing almost continuously without any appreciable set-back. The jump in commodity prices was followed by an increase in interest rates, because the purchasing value of the dollar had depreciated, and the investor demanded a greater return on his outlay in order to compensate for the wasting power of the monetary unit.

This tendency of interest rates to rise with commodity prices is not peculiar to the past few years—it has demonstrated itself during, and subsequent to, the Civil War and in every period when the trend of prices pointed upwards.

Now, the tide has turned. Many of the influences that combined to promote higher prices are spending their force and commodities are showing a marked decline. According to Bradstreet's index number, wholesale prices at November 1, 1920, had declined twenty-nine per cent from their level of the previous July, while other barometers show corresponding decreases. As interest rates rose when prices ascended so will they decline when the commodity trend is downward, in accordance with the experience of history and the laws of economics.

Already, there is unmistakable evidence of this fact. Recent issues of securities have been sold at interest yields noticeably less than those prevailing a few months ago, and high grade bonds of all classes have advanced appreciably.

The advantages of investing at the present moment, therefore, are obvious. Interest rates will continue to fall with commodities and security prices will advance proportionately so that by purchasing now the investor will reap the full benefits of the appreciation in values. High grade bonds selling at present on an 8% basis will in the standard yield for such securities. In the meantime, the dollar saved to-day will be steadily increasing in value through the restoration of its purchasing power, and the investor is consequently doubly benefited.

We urge our clients not to neglect the unusual opportunities offered for the safe and profitable employment of their savings.

Our booklet entitled "Exceptional Investment Opportunities" will be of value to you. Send for a free copy.

Bonds of power companies have increasing values behind them

It is estimated that there are 14,000,000 homes in the United States still to be supplied with electric light, in addition to an increasing power demand from hundreds of manufacturers whose plants are being equipped for electrical operation.

The constant increase in the industrial and domestic use of electric power is leading to the centralization of the sources of such power.

Such centralization tends to greater economy in operation with a consequent strengthening financially of many well-managed power companies. This is reflected in earnings over a period of years.

However, the increase in price of Power bonds has been in most cases only in line with the general rise in bond prices. A fuller knowledge of the strong position of good power companies and a realization of the tremendous possibilities of additional demand for electricity should lead to still further increases.

Some very good Power bonds are:

	Price	Yield
Montana Power Co. 1st and Ref. 5s, 1943.......	86¾	6.10%
Penna. Water & Power Co. 1st 5s, 1940........	86	6.27%
Georgia Ry. & Power Co. 1st and Ref. 5s, 1954..	77	6.72%
Niagara Falls Power Co. 1st 5s, 1932..........	88	6.55%

HALT NEW BUILDINGS

Clarence H. Kelsey Tells Builders' Conference Real Trade Competition Is Needed.

LABOR UNIONS SCORED

Contractors to Form a Branch Here of National Congress of Their Industry.

Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, addressing yesterday a building trade conference at the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, attacked labor unions as giving an "ever decreasing performance by labor for ever increasing wages to labor." He endorsed the work of the Lockwood committee, and said that "banks will not lend to builders or material men if present conditions continue, and they see that so much money is wasted on the job that it never can pay."

The conference, which was attended by general contractors, sub-contractors, material manufacturers, engineers, architects and representatives of labor, met to form a New York branch of a proposed national congress of the building and construction industry. Robert D. Kohn, who presided, was authorized to appoint a committee of five to draft a plan for forming the local organization.

These are among the objects of the association:

"To make a scientific survey of the needs of the industry in workers and of how these needs may be met; to study the present methods of training and enlisting personnel; and to discover and correct the causes of the progressive decline in the supply and quality of workers in the industry.

"To study the needs of the industry in and the sources of supply of raw materials and manufactured products; the quantities of such now available, and to determine the national requirements of construction in 1921 and succeeding years."

Mr. Kelsey declared that it is only a bold man who, in view of the recent exposures in material costs by the Lockwood committee, will proceed with an extensive building program until assured that the combinations are absolutely abandoned and that real competition in price can be obtained. Neither will there be a great building movement until labor "comes to its senses," he said. He announced that he did not mean a great cut in wages, but a great change in what the laborer gives for his wages. "I cannot understand that labor can be so blind as to believe that business can go on with ever-increasing wages to labor and ever-decreasing performance by labor," he continued.

The fundamental principles of the labor unions must be reformed, said the speaker, so that the thrifty, ambitious and industrious workman is rewarded for his skill and efficiency. Labor is bound to be inefficient, Mr. Kelsey said, until the unions permit classified lists, with graded pay for piecework or some other method by which the skillful can do better than the unskillful and lazy.

Hugh Frayne, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said that, while workmen in this country were poorly trained, wages were not too high and would never return to the pre-war level. Dr. W. King of the National Bureau of Economic Research, L. K. Comstock and Bassett Jones of the Engineering Council also spoke.

COTTON LIST DOWN

Indian Unrest Upsets Liverpool and Manchester—January Notices Make Record.

Record tenders of January notices and lower and unsettled Liverpool prices sent our market down rather sharply yesterday in the forenoon. The decline then was arrested, but before the day was ended weakness again appeared and by closing time the list was down 46 to 35 points net. Spot prices here were down 65 points to the basis of 16.20 for middings and the market tone was decidedly heavy.

Advices from abroad spoke of the poor tone at Liverpool and of upset conditions at Manchester. At the latter place, it was reported, word had been received from India asking for a temporary cessation of shipments, and private advices were to the effect that labor and social disturbances in India were assuming serious proportions. These reports upset the Liverpool market, which had started at advances of 3 to 14 points—less than they were due to have advanced—and then declined until at the close they were down 10 to 25 points on the day. Spots there were up 11 points, but the spot market was dull.

The January notices totaled about 35,000 bales, on top of the nearly 39,000 which had previously appeared, and constituted a high record for any month in a very long time. Virtually all of this was taken by the same three houses which had taken the earlier notices, and this fact led to a considerable amount of uneasiness as to the ultimate disposition of the cotton. Reports of shipment abroad and of consumption by domestic mills were not taken very seriously, and around the ring there was general fear expressed that a good part of the cotton would come back into the market in the form of March sales. The January contract, which expired at noon, was driven down a full 100 points before it ended.

The rest of the market sold off in sympathy with January and in reflection of the budget of unfavorable news.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 65 points to 16.20c for middling upland; sales 4,900 bales.

EXCURSION FARES

Western Lines to Charge $106.80 for Round Trip Over Direct Course From Chicago.

NORTHERN ROUTE $128.40

Homeseekers' Charge of Two Cents a Mile on One-Way Tickets Is Re-established.

The Western transcontinental railroads have met and agreed on the excursion rates for the Summer season this year from June 1 to Oct. 31, according to information obtained in railroad circles yesterday, and it is expected that the Eastern carriers will decide soon upon the rates which they will charge between Atlantic Coast points and Chicago.

The Western carriers have agreed that the excursion fare direct to Pacific Coast points and back will be $106.80, while a trip over the Northern route through the Canadian Rockies will cost $128.40. The latter will mean 6,000 miles of transportation at a rate of approximately 2 cents a mile, as compared with more than 3 cents now obtaining.

These figures show a 20 per cent. increase over the excursion fares which were in force in the corresponding period of 1920.

In addition, the Western roads have re-established what is known as homeseeker fares which are at the rate of 2 cents a mile on one-way tickets.

Cars by Gillespie Explosion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Appropriation of an additional $295,000 for payment of damages caused by the explosion of the Gillespie munitions plant in New Jersey in 1918 was requested by Secretary Baker of the War Department in a supplemental estimate sent today to the Senate.

Most of this sum, according to findings of liability made by the Government legal officials, would be to reimburse the Pennsylvania Railroad for freight cars of other railroads destroyed at its terminal.

Denies Ford Sought Loan.

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—The Ford Motor Company has not initiated negotiations for a loan of upward of $50,000,000 as reported last week in New York banking circles, according to a close business associate of Henry Ford.

Offers of a loan have been received, it was said, from a number of banks, whose representatives have called at the company's offices here during the last week, but they have been declined.

Your Family's Welfare

WITH most men, the desire to provide liberally for the requirements of their family is paramount. To accomplish this means careful management, wise investment, thrift and economy.

These same details should be just as carefully supervised when the time comes to distribute the estate so that the beneficiaries may receive their full due.

Prudent men consult specialists for every requirement while living, and for the same reason they appoint a trust company as executor of their estate.

Our experience of over 50 years as executors and trustees warrants your consideration, and we invite an interview.

What Is Thrift In Advertising?

THRIFT in advertising, especially in investment advertising, is represented by a conscientious regard for the cost of space.

Advertising becomes either extravagant or economical, not as measured by agate line rule, but as measured by the effectiveness of its sales message.

Thrift in investment advertising is even more to be measured by the manner in which advertising backs up and is backed up by sales organization.

Knowledge of the bond business, of the marketing of bonds, of territorial characteristics, of follow-up correspondence, and of the human element in investment—these are the factors which combine to make for an ever increasing distribution of security issues among conservative investors.

Why not permit us to co-operate with you along these lines?

BREAK IN WHEAT ON LIGHT SELLING

Prices Decline 4¾ to 5 Cents, With a Moderate Rally at the Close.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 25.—In the last three weeks over 2,000,000 bushels of corn have been moved out of Chicago by two of the leading Eastern railroads to the seaboard for export, confirming the recent reports that the amount of export business was not exaggerated. The grain traffic throughout the West is still above the average for this season despite the smaller arrivals here due to the wet and warm weather, which prevents hauling from the farms to interior points.

The heavy short covering of yesterday weakened the technical position of the grain markets to the extent that it took but little selling by foreigners here and at Winnipeg and local traders to start whole values downward. At the inside prices were off 4¾ to 5 cents from Monday's close, with the finish on a moderate rally, with net losses of 3⅝@4⅛c., with May leading. Part of the foreign selling of futures here was regarded as hedging against cash grain. The announcement that Germany required over 100,000,000 bushels of grain had no effect on values, as such a quantity cannot be financed at the present time. There is, however, a very strong impression that as soon as peace is declared with that country and the money now in the hands of the Enemy Alien Property Custodian is returned that a large business will be put through. France took 900,000 bushels of wheat today, including No. 2 hard and red Winter, No. 2 Durum and No. 2 Manitoba. The price was not given. However, Belgium and other countries secured 280,000 bushels via the Gulf, where premiums were easier. Milling demand here was better, with 45,000 bushels of Spring sold out of store and 60,000 bushels more have been ordered shipped. Omaha sold 50,000 bushels of wheat to mills and a like quantity for export. Sentiment after the close was generally very bearish, with a majority of the trade looking for lower prices. Unless an active export demand continued, the statistical position counts for little at the present time.

Coarse grains declined readily and sold within a fraction of the low figures on the crop, closing 1 to 1⅛c. lower on corn and ⅝c. lower on oats. Hedging sales continue to come into the corn market, with the pit furnishing practically the only demand for the grain not needed for export or by the industries. Sentiment is very bearish and it would not be surprising to see new low prices on the crop made early tomorrow unless the unexpected happens. The let-up in the movement of corn is regarded as only temporary, and a return of colder weather would result in heavy selling by the country, although the prices are regarded as low by many operators.

In the last two days primary markets have received a total of 10,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats. Arrivals of wheat today were 884,000 bushels; week ago, 1,020,000 bushels; year ago, 638,000. Shipments, 678,000; week ago, 829,000; year ago, 502,000. Receipts of corn, 2,253,000 bushels; week ago, 1,705,000; year ago, 736,000. Shipments, 889,000; week ago, 798,000; year ago, 406,000.

84% OF FAILURES DID NOT ADVERTISE

G. A. Cullen Tells the Fact in Advising Fruit Farmers.

Special to The New York Times.
ALBANY, Jan. 19.—"A few days ago one of the financial agencies (either Dun's or Bradstreet's) gave out the information that of all the failures recorded in 1920, 84 per cent. were of firms which did not advertise."
This was the statement of George A. Cullen, Vice President ...

Evidence— If Not Proof

THE American Public prefers to deal with houses of established reputation; when given the opportunity of choice the public invariably picks the advertised product.

Take the question home to yourself. Would you buy a jewel from a person or concern you did not know?

Would you buy an unmarked spark plug, or can of paint, when you could buy a branded make made known to you by advertising?

What are the best brands of hats, collars, shirts; of package foods, of furniture—isn't your opinion based on public opinion formed by advertising?

Through years of education, the public has been taught that only quality articles can be consistently advertised.

We would be glad to show you how you can take advantage of this public attitude.

SMITH AND DOOLING CHARGES DISMISSED

Almirall Grand Jury Reports an End to Cases Against Prosecutors.

WORK NEARLY FINISHED

Court Advises Against Return of Presentment Against an Individual, as Desired by Some Jurors.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury, better known as the "Almirall Grand Jury," reported to Justice Bartow S. Weeks, in the Supreme Court yesterday, the dismissal of the charges against Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, made by former Police Inspector Dominick Henry, Jacob L. Goldman and Bernard Freedman. The jury also reported dismissal of the charges brought by Gaston Means against Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling.

The charges against Smith included allegation that he had accepted a bribe to protect an east side stuss game and that he used improper methods in endeavoring to obtain evidence against Inspector Henry. The charges against Dooling grew out of his investigation of the murder, nearly three years ago, of Mrs. John T. King in Wilmington.

Justice Weeks remarked that the Grand Jury has been in session about [illegible] months and expressed the hope that he would soon be able to excuse [illegible] from further duty. He said that certain members of the Grand Jury [illegible] him that they wished to make a presentment against an individual—[illegible] a public official—and the Justice warned them against it, declaring [illegible] the circumstances con[illegible] him that such a presentment [illegible] be without legal warrant.

Justice Weeks said that Raymond F. [illegible], the foreman, had said the work of the Grand Jury had been practically completed except on one matter. He added that this matter had been referred to William Rand, Jr., Special Deputy Attorney General, adviser to the jury.

Justice Weeks paid tribute to the jury's work in connection with criminal [illegible] and continued:

"It is only fair to say that by the fearless performance of your duty in this respect that the crime of criminal [illegible] has been very materially controlled and driven into darkness and se[illegible]. He urged more careful supervision of immigration.

"Your foreman," he then said, "has told me there is some desire to submit to this court a presentment. I think it was generally received the disapprobation of the court to bring about the presentation of facts relating to an individual. That is, in effect, to charge [illegible] that does not constitute a crime. Such action directed against [illegible] individual may be doing him a great wrong. Directed against any public official the wrong would be still greater. [illegible] warn you, therefore, against going beyond the properly prescribed limits of a Grand Juryman's duty into debatable fields of uncertainty."

PIPE NOT BOMB, SAYS GEGAN

Explosion in Smelting Plant Due to Picric Acid in Tube.

Detective Sergeant Gegan of the Bomb Squad determined yesterday that the piece of lead pipe which exploded Monday afternoon in the plant of the Columbus Smelting and Refining Company, [illegible] West Street, killing one workman and injuring three others, was not a bomb, as first supposed.

Investigation had disclosed, he said, that the pipe was part of some wartime [illegible] purchased by the company. Picric [illegible] used in the manufacture of ammunition was found on the inside of the [illegible], he said.

ASK SEAMEN TO TAKE CUT.

Steamship Owners Make Another Appeal "In Grave Crisis."

The American Steamship Owners' Association, 17 Battery Place, which last week asked the engineer and deck officers on American ships to agree to a wage reduction of 25 per cent., elimination of overtime and readjustment of subsistence and room allowance, yesterday presented a formal request to the Sailors' and Firemen's Unions of the Atlantic and Gulf for a "readjustment of wages and working conditions to meet the present depression in the shipping industry." While no word has yet been received from the engineer and deck officers, favorable action on the request is expected.

A. J. McCarthy, Manager of the American flag steamers of the International Mercantile Marine Company, Vice President of the sub-committee of the association on wage and working agreements, signed the formal request to the seamen and firemen. In his letter, Mr. McCarthy said in part:

"We believe in adhering to the agreements as written so long as they are unchanged by mutual consent, and we are asking you to co-operate with us to save the new American merchant marine, in which we are alike interested, from the rapid decline which, under existing conditions, seems inevitable.

"Before taking this matter up with you the steamship companies have been and are bending every energy to effect reductions in overhead charges, repairs, fuel, supplies, and all other operating costs. They believe that with these economies and with some readjustment of wage and working costs they will be able to keep in commission ships which otherwise must go out of commission—and perhaps to restore to service some ships not laid up. It is a very grave crisis that is now confronting us."

FEBRUARY MILK PRICE CUT.

Borden's Farm Co. Will Charge a Cent a Quart Less for Supplies.

Patrick D. Fox, President of Borden's Farm Products Company, announced yesterday that the price of milk would be reduced 1 cent a quart in February by his company. Grade B milk, which now sells for 17 cents a quart, will be 16 cents; Grade A, now 20 cents, will be 19 cents. The "dip" milk will also be reduced 1 cent a quart, as will also "route" cream, which now sells for 22 cents a half pint. The company is enabled to do this, Mr. Fox says, because of the lower price that will be paid the producer.

No announcement has yet been made by the Sheffield Farms Company of the February price to the consumer.

CLOTHING PRICES AT EBB.

They Will Go No Lower, Says Jersey Retail Association.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 25.—Clothing prices will go no lower, according to reports submitted today to the New Jersey Retail Clothiers' Association that opened its annual convention here. Delegates say real woolen suits may now be purchased for $35 to $40.

The organization will send resolutions to Congress asking repeal of the luxury tax.

Dunnigan Says He Leads in Votes.

John J. Dunnigan, Democrat, who is contesting the seat of George H. Taylor, Republican Senator-elect in the Twenty-third Senatorial District of the Bronx, said yesterday that the recount of the votes cast at the last election, and now being carried on by the State Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections had shown he had gained 150 votes and that he is now leading Senator Taylor by 80 votes. Senator Taylor, according to official returns, had a plurality of 27 votes.

More than fifty members of the staff, editors and publishers were present. Mr. Presbrey received a loving cup.

APARTMENT DEAL ON PARK AVENUE

Syndicate Acquires Thirteen-Story Structure Assessed at $1,200,000.

INVESTOR ASSEMBLES PLOT

Three Old Dwellings in East Eighty-First Street for Big Improvement.

Two important transactions in the apartment house section of the upper east side have just been closed, it was ascertained yesterday, one of which is likely to result in an apartment house improvement. The larger deal involved a change of ownership in the thirteen-story structure on the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. A syndicate known as the 830 Park Avenue Corporation has just been incorporated at Albany to take over the property from the Seventy-sixth Street and Park Avenue Company, which erected the building about ten years ago. Frederick Johnson is President of the company which holds title to the property.

The house has a frontage on Park Avenue of 102.2 feet by 133 feet on Seventy-sixth Street. The site was assembled by the Alliance Realty Company, the immediate corner having been occupied for many years by the old Seamon stables. The cost of the structure was estimated at $1,000,000 by the architects, George and Edward Blum, and the property is now assessed for taxation by the city at $1,200,000. The new company is capitalized for $875,000 and has for Directors Edward J. Flynn, G. Marcrander and J. F. Gorman. The house has been well rented and is in one of the choice residential areas of Park Avenue.

East Eighty-first Street Deal.

In Eighty-first Street, where there has been considerable buying activity recently, an interesting deal was closed in the purchase by an investor of the three three story residences at 152 to 156 East Eighty-first Street. The property is between Lexington and Third Avenues and the three houses have a combined frontage of 59 feet by 104 feet in depth. The dwelling at 152 was sold by Ida M. Hoffman and the other two by the Richard H. Morrison estate. The plot was valued at $90,000.

Pease & Elliman were the brokers in the transaction. No plans have been prepared for improvement, but in the near future an apartment structure will probably be erected on the site.

COURT HOLDS UP CHARTER.

Suspects "Airall Democratic Club" Is Socialist Organization.

Justice Russell Benedict, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday, refused to grant a certificate of incorporation to the "Airall Democratic Club," whose stated objects were "discussions and investigations of political principles, and for the purpose of promoting more enlarged social intercourse among the residents of the Nineteenth Assembly District."

"I shall not approve this certificate of incorporation," said Justice Benedict, "until I am advised as to whether any of the incorporators are enrolled members of the Democratic Party or whether they are merely using the name 'Democratic' as a cover for socialistic purposes and propaganda, as might be expected from the very vague statement of the objects of the incorporation."

It was taken in part payment for Château-Thierry on Riverside Drive, recently purchased by Joseph S. Ward. Edward C. H. Vogler, was the broker in both transactions. The purchaser is a client of H. F. Byrnes.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

West Side Plot to Be Improved by Lessee.

The old buildings at 158 and 160 West Twenty-second Street, on a plot 50 by 100, have been leased for twenty-one years by the Markham Realty Company to Max Sindler, who will improve the property for light manufacturing purposes. Mr. Sindler owns the adjoining property, 156 West Twenty-second Street, which he recently built and leased. MacLean & Co. represented the tenant and Dwight, Archibald & Perry, Inc., represented the owner.

Sales in Brooklyn.

Frank H. Malone, as broker, sold the one-family limestone front dwelling 440 Seventy-fourth Street, for James O'Neill of Hartford, Conn., to a buyer for immediate occupancy.

The Realty Associates sold to the Parkside Improvement Company an unrestricted plot, 125 by 100.2, on the north side of Forty-ninth Street, 100 feet east of Second Avenue, upon which the purchaser will build a one-story garage covering the entire plot.

SURFACE LINE WINS.

Federal Court Finds Official Compulsion of Transfers Illegal.

Federal Judge Hough signed an order yesterday restraining city and State officials from seeking to prevent the Fifty-ninth Street Crosstown Railway Company from discontinuing the exchange of transfers with the Sixth, Seventh, First, Second and Lexington Avenue lines. The company is part of the Third Avenue Railway system.

The court stated that to compel the company to continue the transfer system would violate the law, because it would be confiscatory, and stated that the company received only 2 cents from each transfer passenger and that it cost 3.96 cents per passenger, to say nothing of more than half a cent additional needed to meet interest on borrowed money.

Also, in conjunction with E. J. Lucas, sold a large plot of ground in Pondfield Crossways at Bronxville to A. E. Betteridge of New York City. It is the purchaser's intention to build a residence for his own occupancy.

Prince & Ripley announce the sale of the dwelling owned by Howard Willetts, located on Park Drive, Gedney Farm, White Plains, to M. J. Collins. The property was held at $25,000.

The William A. Brockhurst Company, Inc., of Yonkers purchased from the Valentine Terrace Company a plot of four lots, 100 by 100, at the southeast corner of Riverdale Avenue and Radford Street, Yonkers. The company plans to improve the corner with an apartment building containing several stores.

A SHORT CUT TO ACCOUNTANCY SUCCESS.

Five months will qualify you as a junior accountant and twelve months as a senior accountant if you have a grammar school education and ability with figures.

This quick result can be accomplished by the La Salle Problem Method because the student is given enough theory and a great deal of practical work on problems lifted bodily from actual business instead of being given much theory and little practical work.

If you're big enough for a bigger position than you are holding get the facts about this Problem Method by calling for a personal talk, or phone or write.

$125,000 IN BONDS FOUND ON PRISONER

Detectives Investigating Their Possession by Man Arrested in Paterson Hold-Up.

SIX OTHERS HELD IN CASE

Ohio Miner Arrested When He Offers Sleuth a $1,000 Bracelet for $25.

The manner in which William Payton of 56 Paterson Street, Paterson, N. J., came into possession of securities with a face value of $125,000 is a mystery, according to statements made yesterday by Detectives Moran and Fitzpatrick of the East 104th Street Station when they arraigned Payton and three other men and three women in connection with the holdup several days ago of a Paterson jewelry store, during which two bandits obtained $20,000 in jewels.

The detectives said that when they arrested Payton on the night of the hold-up they found in his pockets 700 shares of the Lucky Oil Well Company, issued in 1865; 100 shares of the Interstate Mining and Milling Company, issued in 1907; 400 shares of Bonanza Chief, issued in 1899, 5 share of the E. A. Rosenheim Company, issued in 1894; 3 shares of the New Jersey Car Spring and Rubber Company, issued in 1869; 20 shares of the Harmon Petroleum Company, issued in 1865; a certificate of 1,000 shares of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and another certificate of stock in the Selma, Rome & Dalton Railroad Company.

Magistrate Ten Eyck held all of the prisoners without bail for a hearing tomorrow, when it is expected the New Jersey authorities will have completed extradition proceedings.

Magistrate William Sweetser in the Essex Market Court yesterday held John Dousses, who said he was a coal miner from Fairpoint, Ohio, in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow on suspicion of grand larceny. Detective Smyth of the Fifth Street Station testified that Dousses offered to sell him for $25 a diamond bracelet, which proved to be worth $1,000

Arthur Stanley Naylor, 21 years old, of Pittsburgh, whose father is a wealthy manufacturer, was arraigned yesterday in Jamaica on the charge of robbery. He was held in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Conway, and will be examined tomorrow.

BANDITS BIND JEWELERS AND GET $30,000 LOOT

Customers of Toledo Store Also Seized, but One, a Girl, Is Supplied With a Chair.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 25.—Four bandits entered the Daniels jewelry store here today, bound the two proprietors and the customers hand and foot, and escaped in an automobile with jewelry valued at more than $30,000.

The proprietors were felled before being bound by the bandits. Two customers, one of whom was Miss Adele Laramie, 17 years old, upon entering the store were also bound and placed in a rear room. Two architects engaged in considering repairs to the store entered a few moments later and were similarly treated. One of these, Sidney Aftel, escaped later in a mêlée with one of the bandits, but the hold-up party fled before he could summon aid.

A chair was supplied to Miss Laramie by one of the bandits. She said afterward that "they were very kind to me during the half hour they were in the store." The robbers forced the proprietors to unlock the safe at the point of revolvers.

MILLER REFUSES REPRIEVES

Two Mexican Murderers to Die in Sing Sing Tomorrow Night.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 25.—Governor Miller today refused executive clemency to Augustin L. Sanckey and Enrique Garcia, Mexicans, awaiting death in Sing Sing on conviction of murder.

In doing so the Governor declared that not a single fact had been presented to him to justify a reprieve, and added that he did not purpose to grant reprieves "either to raise false hopes in the breasts of defendants or to magnify the chances of escape from the consequences of crime in the minds of those against whom society needs to be protected."

The Governor said that unnecessary delays in the execution of the judgments of the courts "merely tend to bring the administration of justice into disrepute. Punishment for crime should be made as certain as possible and should follow the offense as speedily as the due and orderly administration of justice will admit."

Application for a reprieve to enable a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence was made for the two Mexicans by Ramond de Negri, Mexican Consul in New York City. The execution is set for Thursday night.

NEWARK AIDS HOOVER PLAN.

He Says Our Economic System Is Wrong In Reply to Criticisms.

Fifteen hundred persons paid $10 each for a dinner consisting of one wheat biscuit, milk, a piece of cake and a cup of coffee, served on bare pine tables in the ballroom of the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark last night and sent $15,000 to feed 3,500,000 children in Europe. The dinner was arranged by the Rotary Club.

The address of Herbert C. Hoover clearly was intended as a reply to criticisms of charitable activities in behalf of European children in the face of industrial depression. He said that with food rotting in the fields and warehouses and unmarketed clothing on merchants' shelves, the cause lay in overproduction in the face of a faulty social and economic system.

"We have enough to feed and clothe us and a surplus besides," he said. "Can any one say, as long as we can support 7,500,000 automobiles, we cannot entertain 3,500,000 invisible guests?" We are asking the price of one battleship to feed these starving children."

800 IMMIGRANTS QUIT PIER.

Permitted to Enter U. S. After Four-Hour Examination.

The 800 immigrants who had been encamped on Pier 53 North River since Saturday afternoon, when they landed from the Cunard liner Saxonia, were permitted to enter the United States after four hours' examination by Immigration and health officials.

The shed occupied by the aliens was heated, and they slept upon mattresses laid on the concrete floor. Meals of good food were served three times a day. Many of the immigrants, tasting ice cream for the first time, alternated bites of it with hot roast beef. They seemed to like it. Some of the Irish immigrants waved handkerchiefs out the window to their countrymen working in Gansevoort Market. The workmen yelled, "Throw us a line; we'll give you some fruit." This was done and the Irish immigrants received enough bananas to supply every alien in the shed.

BILL CUTS ARMY TO 150,000.

House Subcommittee Votes for $330,000,000 Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—An appropriation of $330,000,000 with provision for an army of 150,000 men is understood to have been agreed to by the House Appropriations Sub-Committee, drafting the annual Army Appropriation bill.

The total is a reduction of more than one-half from the amount requested by the War Department, which was about $690,000,000 and a reduction of $60,000,000 from the appropriation for the present year, which provided for an army of 175,000.

Counting the Philippine Constabulary and other forces, the total armed strength provided for under the bill is about 160,000. Both the House and the Senate, however, have directed the maintenance of an army of 175,000 men. The bill will be laid before the full Appropriations Committee and is expected to be reported to the House in a few days.

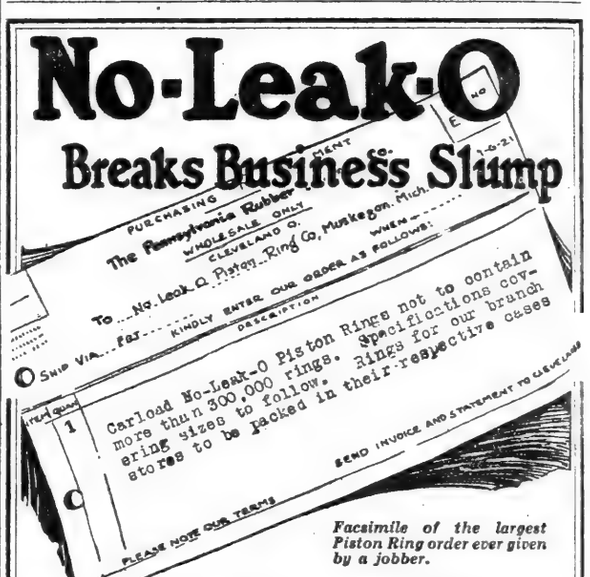
No-Leak-O
Breaks Business Slump



Facsimile of the largest Piston Ring order ever given by a jobber.

On January 6th the largest single shipment of piston rings ever placed by a jobber was made by the No-Leak-O Piston Ring Company. The order called for one carload of piston rings to be delivered to the Pennsylvania Rubber and Supply Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. It is the first carload shipment on record—an honor for which every piston ring company has been striving for years past.

The No-Leak-O Piston Ring—Why a Phenomenal Success.

A new motor, equipped with almost any make of piston ring, runs smoothly and has maximum power. But after being run a few hundred miles it begins to lose power, pump up oil and carbonize.

The cylinder walls have warped or shrunk, due to expansion and contraction. The piston ring cannot conform to the depressions or warped places. The explosions and other forces destroy the seal of oil between the ring and cylinder wall as the ring passes over these spots—the gas and power escape—the escaping oil passes up to the firing chamber.

Seven years ago J. E. Norwood, well known mechanical engineer, discovered the fact that any grooved piston ring possessed marked advantages over a smooth-faced ring, because the groove picked up a small quantity of oil and carried it up and down over the wall of the cylinder, forming an oil seal.

The Only Practical Groove That Cannot Clog.

The No-Leak-O angled groove is cut in such a way that on the down-stroke of the piston the surplus oil will be forced towards the oil pit and the groove refilled with fresh oil; and on the up-stroke the oil will be drawn from the groove and distributed onto the cylinder wall, insuring perfect lubrication and a non-leaking oil seal, regardless of warped or worn places on the cylinder wall.

The Price Is Always the Same—50c Up.

MRS. R.C. VANDERBILT, DIVORCEE, IS WED TO S. J. COLFORD JR.

She and War Hero Marry in Her Home a Few Hours After Obtaining License.

BIG SURPRISE TO SOCIETY

Bridegroom, Son of S. J. Colford of Newport, Was Divorced by His Wife Last Month.

SERVED IN FRENCH ARMY

Bride Is the Daughter of Mrs. Frederic Neilson—Got Her Divorce in Newport Last April.

Mrs. Cathleen Neilson Vanderbilt, former wife of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, and Sydney J. Colford Jr. of this city and Newport obtained a marriage license yesterday at the Municipal Building.

The marriage took place later in the afternoon at the bride's apartment at 965 Park Avenue.

The ceremony was performed by Supreme Court Justice Henry D. Hotchkiss and was witnessed by a small group of relatives and friends. The bride wore a gown of dark blue crêpe de chine, with a matching hat, and carried purple orchids and gardenias.

Mrs. Vanderbilt obtained a divorce from Reginald Vanderbilt on April 9, last year, at Newport, on the ground of desertion. The divorce was granted in the Superior Court of Rhode Island, which awarded her the custody of her daughter, Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt.

Mr. Colford was divorced on Dec. 9 last, at Newport, by his wife, Mrs. Clara W. K. Colford, on the ground of neglect to provide. She received the custody of their two minor children, Dorothy Knight and Clara Dwight Colford.

Since Mr. Colford's divorce it has been reported that he was to marry Mrs. Vanderbilt, but the report was denied. The granting of the marriage license yesterday was the first intimation that the marriage was to take place. The license gave no indication as to when they would be married. In fact, Mr. Colford told the clerk he did not know himself.

In making application for the marriage license they both gave the same age, 35.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt were married in Newport, April, 1913, and they have both been prominent in the social life of that fashionable resort for many years. She is the youngest child of the late Frederic Neilson. Her mother was formerly Miss Belle Gebhard, and was a sister of the late Frederic Gebhard. Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell, of Boston is a sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, and Jules B. Neilson of this city is her brother. Her marriage to Mr. Vanderbilt was a home affair, as she is a Roman Catholic and Mr. Vanderbilt is a Protestant.

Their daughter, Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, will make her début in society within a year or so.

Mr. Vanderbilt is the third and youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt. He has never been interested in society or business, giving up much of his time to the breeding and exhibition of show horses. He is the President of the American Hackney Horse Society, also of the Association of American Horse Shows, and one of the Directors of the National Horse Show Association. He is a brother of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and the Countess Szechenyi.

Mr. Colford is the son of Sydney Jones Colford of Newport and Paris. During the early part of the war he drove an ambulance for the French Army, and his daring behind the firing lines was such the French Government decorated him three times, once with the Croix de Guerre. As soon as the United States entered the war Mr. Colford returned to New York and was commissioned Second Lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps, returning to France. For his valor and distinguished service he was recommended for the D. S. C.

His first wife is the only daughter of Edward C. Knight Jr., of Philadelphia, who owns a villa at Newport, where she and Mr. Colford went to reside after their marriage in Philadelphia about fourteen years ago.

Among those at the wedding were the bride's mother, Mrs. Frederic Neilson; Mr. and Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell, her brother-in-law and sister; Mr. and Mrs. Littleton Fox, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2d, Howard Slade, with whom Mr. Colford is associated in the brokerage business, and Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick.

SEVEN GHOULS ROUTED FROM SENATOR'S GRAVE

Entire Elizabeth, N. J., Police Force Seeks Men Surprised at Tomb of John Kean.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 26.—Seven men were discovered in an attempt late tonight to rob the grave of John Kean, United States Senator from New Jersey. They had dug through the soil to the concrete covering of the grave when a watchman came upon them. The ghouls dropped their tools and fled.

The body lies in Evergreen Cemetery in Hillside, just outside of Elizabeth, and the entire police force of that place was turned out to hunt the grave robbers. None was found up to midnight.

Hamilton F. Kean, National Republican Committeeman from this State and a son of the late Senator, ordered a nightly guard over the grave after learning of the attempt to despoil it, according to the Elizabeth police. Mr. Kean would not discuss the incident and no opinion could be had as to whether the attempt was ascribable to the random work of body snatchers or whether it was planned by some one who wished to spite the family.

Senator Kean was wealthy and prominent in the affairs of Northern New Jersey. His business interests were mostly public utilities.

New Québec Liquor Control; One Bottle at a Time Is Limit

QUEBEC, Jan. 26.—Plans for the regulation of the liquor traffic in the Province of Quebec under a commission of three were outlined today by Provincial Premier Taschereau. The regulation will become effective May 1 under an order in Council.

Liquor will be sold at retail at Government depots, one bottle at a time. In Montreal there will be one depot for every 50,000 inhabitants, and in Quebec one for every 40,000. Hotels of more than 100 rooms will be permitted to sell wine between 6 A. M. and 9 P. M. Special provision will be made for ales in mining districts.

Brewers will be authorized to sell beer to persons licensed by the commission, but must pay a tax of $1,000 for every brewing establishment and 5 per cent. of their sales monthly.

A bill incorporating the new regulations was introduced in the Legislature this afternoon by Provincial Treasurer Mitchell.

"The Government's intention," he said, "is to take over the liquor traffic absolutely and completely."

MISSING GIRL SAYS SHE'S SAFE IN CANADA

Barnard Student Who Disappeared Monday Writes She Went to Montreal to Study Art.

PARENTS FAILED TO GET NOTE

Father Still Puzzled Over Miss Spellman's Sudden Trip—Will Go to See Her.

Miss Blanche Adele Spellman, daughter of Benjamin F. Spellman of 1 West Ninety-second Street, a Barnard College student, who left home on Monday without word to her parents, is in Montreal, Canada. Her family received a letter from her yesterday, telling of her safe arrival and of a letter she had mailed to them before leaving this city, but which had become mislaid at her home.

Miss Spellman wrote that she intended to enter an art school there instead of taking a four years' college course. Mr. Spellman said yesterday, after he had expressed his relief from the fear that she had met with foul play, that she could study anything she wished, but he could not understand why she went so far to study art.

Miss Spellman's movements from the time she disappeared until she reached Montreal had been fairly well traced when word was received from her, and the family had begun to suspect from a suggestion by Detective O'Hanlon of the Missing Persons Bureau that she had gone to Canada.

A number of things seem at odds with her statement that she went to Canada to enter an art school. After leaving her home she was driven downtown by her father's chauffeur. She left the car to telephone a girl friend with whom she was studying in preparation for her examination Monday afternoon at the Department of Extension Teaching, Columbia, that she would be unable to keep the engagement. Then she dismissed the chauffeur and went to two department stores, where she bought a hat, overcoat, suitcase and clothing.

She then went to the Hotel Pennsylvania and wrote a letter to her family explaining her reasons for leaving home, posting it at 5 P. M. Then she took a train for Canada. Members of her family were sure no one had accompanied her.

Just before she left home she asked her mother to let her wear a diamond horseshoe brooch, valued at $1,500. She also wore a dinner ring worth several hundred dollars which her mother had promised to give her if she got good examination marks. The family believes this is evidence that she had not planned the trip.

When Mr. Spellman received the letter from Montreal, he made search at his home and found the first letter behind a small stand.

Miss Spellman's brother Howard said he could hardly believe that his sister had gone to Canada to study art. She had wanted to enter Connecticut College, he said, but the entrance examinations prevented her. He thought she might enter McGill University, where such examinations were not required.

Mr. Spellman probably will go to Montreal today. He said he was not likely to interfere in the plans of his daughter.

"No Work, No Eat" Order.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—"No work, no eat," was the ultimatum presented to Agnes Ladzikoski, 15 years old, which her mother was summoned to explain to Judge Arnold today. Agnes's work certificate had been revoked by school authorities to compel her to return to school.

"I educated two girls, and they ran away," said Mrs. Ladzikoski. "Agnes—she'll work. If she doesn't, she can't eat here."

When a city welfare worker found Agnes yesterday the mother's edict had caused Agnes to go without food for twenty-four hours.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The Interallied Conference began today discussion of the all-important problem of German reparations. This discussion opened with a clash, a clash of differences of opinion as to how much Germany should be made to pay. France named her figure, and England at once contested it.

And we have today the same reparation argument that has existed since the Treaty of Versailles went into effect.

Two hundred billion marks gold, current value, was what France put forward as the allied reparation total—twice the total tentatively accepted by Premier Millerand at Boulogne last July. Under interest charges this amount would be doubled before it was completely paid. This was France's answer to Lloyd George's demand that the total be fixed.

It was M. Doumer, French Minister of Finance, who opened the reparations discussion with a long statement of France's position and demands. In reply to the complaint that France would not name a figure, he said he would do so. France claimed 112,000,000,000 gold marks, current value, which, calculating France's share at 55 per cent., would make the total about 200,000,000,000.

The attitude of France, he added, was that Germany would have to pay this amount.

Lloyd George Wants to Be Shown.

"And how?" asked Lloyd George.

M. Doumer replied that before the war Germany's exports were 10,000,000,000 marks gold, today worth 17,000,000,000. Germany should pay over to the Allies annually twelve of this seventeen, keeping five billions for herself.

Lloyd George then objected that Germany must pay with her exports for her imports, and that if you took away most of her exports she could not get raw materials to continue her exports.

M. Doumer insisted he could prove that Germany could do what he said.

Lloyd George remarked that discussion must await these proofs.

What is probably true is that Premier Briand put M. Doumer up as a target and told him to name an amount to disarm Lloyd George in his arguments in favor of fixing the indemnity quickly. Nothing is surer than that England will not agree to a total as high as the French name, and the French are going to be very slow about coming down to what England will agree to.

May Be Another Conference.

The complications of the reparations negotiations are such that the present conference will not find itself able to fix the total indemnity figure, but it may be expected to decide, despite the French attitude, that this total must be arrived at by May 1. There will be another allied conference to consider the indemnity problem between this one and May 1.

Indications are at present that the following decision will be reached at Paris this week:

First—Within a few weeks the Commission on Reparations will name a figure which represents what Germany ought to pay if she could.

Second—The Commission on Reparations will give the Germans an opportunity to make observations in this report and submit offers.

Third—The Commission on Reparations, in concert with experts of the allied Governments, will establish methods of payment by Germany.

Fourth—At another conference the allied Premiers will deliberate upon fixing the total amount and deciding on penalties. This conference may fix how much shall be paid in the next few years.

This program may be changed, naturally, but it is that which appears most likely today. From this summary it may be seen that no very definite re-

Berlin Would Waive Fixing Indemnity Now; Ready to Accept 5-Year Instalment Plan

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Official announcement was made today after a conference between Dr. Walter Simons, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Dr. Wirth, Minister of Finance, with Chancellor Fehrenbach, held yesterday, that Germany had agreed to the plan of five yearly instalments for the payment of reparations as the basis of further negotiations with the Allies.

Germany, however, desires that the negotiations fixing the amount of the instalments shall be temporarily postponed for discussion of the method of assessing the reparations and appraising Germany's capacity to pay.

The official communication on the subject says that Germany is aware of the difficulties of fixing the total indemnity by May 1, as stipulated in the Peace Treaty, and is therefore willing to waive insistence and to accept the five-instalment plan, but that she expects discussion of the total amount of the indemnity to take place during and not after the five years. This view, says the communication, has been admitted to be justified by the French Ambassador in conference with Dr. Simons.

The communication concludes by saying that unless allied concessions, as specified by the German delegation to the Brussels conference, are granted, the German Government will be unable to assume responsibility for acceptance of the five-year plan, which means a great concession on its part.

[The German requests for concessions were: (1) To obtain 3,000,000,000 gold marks abroad for food purposes in addition to the allowance made at Spa; (2) no further German shipping to be surrendered and some of that already given up to be returned; (3) the liquidation of German property abroad to cease and the remaining property, as well as the returns from that already sold, to be made available to Germany in some way; (4) Germany to be authorized to make favorable commercial treaties.]

ATTEMPT TO SEIZE BERGDOLL IN BADEN

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—The South German papers publish long accounts of an alleged attempt to kidnap two Americans named Bergdoll and Stecher at Eberbach-on-Rhine, Baden, by an American detective and sergeant who motored from Speyer accompanied by three other men not of American nationality. Bergdoll and Stecher had just reached the Eberbach railway station in their own automobile to meet friends arriving by train to attend a marriage at Bergdoll's relatives' when another automobile containing the five passengers mentioned above drove up. The American sergeant approached Bergdoll, who sat behind the wheel of his own machine, and, pointing a revolver, shouted, "Hold up your hands!" But Bergdoll knocked the revolver out of the sergeant's hands, started his machine and sped away, disregarding the shots fired after him.

When the five tried to follow they were overpowered by Bergdoll's friends and arrested by the police.

The sergeant and detective admitted they had acted on their own responsibility, and that the American occupation authorities at Speyer were not concerned with the affair. They intimated a large reward offered for the arrest of Bergdoll and Stecher had induced them to undertake the arrest. The American Commissioner at Speyer denied all knowledge of the affair.

It is said here that the detective and sergeant were instigated by private parties in America, who offered $60,000 for the capture of Bergdoll and Stecher.

Bergdoll Living at Eberbach.

BERLIN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Bergdoll and Stecher have been living at Eberbach for some months past, according to a dispatch to the Tageblatt from Karlsruhe. Last Saturday the two men were invited to a local wedding. Early in the evening Bergdoll accompanied the bridal couple to the railway station, where they were to call for other wedding guests. Bergdoll remained behind while the bride and bridegroom proceeded to the station platform.

As the party was about to leave the station a motor car dashed up and five men alighted. They surrounded the car in which Bergdoll and his party were seated. The chauffeur suspected a plot and promptly started the engine, whereupon one of the strangers stepped up to Bergdoll, pointed a revolver at him and demanded that the car be halted under pain of instant death.

Bergdoll brushed the weapon aside, by which time his car was already well under way. The car with the five men took up the pursuit. Several shots were fired at the bridal party, it is alleged, and one of the members was wounded.

The commotion attracted passers-by and the police placed under arrest the pursuers, whose car had arrived from Speyer Saturday morning ostensibly for the purpose of forcibly seizing the two Americans and transporting them to the occupied zone.

A special dispatch says that the car was in charge of two officials from the American Army of Occupation, who were accompanied by four German detectives. The Americans gave the names of Carl Neaf and Frank Ellmer. These two men are supposed to be American detectives, hailing from Denver. The Germans in the party were Gustav Steiger, Gottfried Kelm, August Farnbach and the driver, named Hildebrand. All four are said to hail from Otterstadt, in the Palatinate sector of the occupied zone.

The newspapers refer to the attempted kidnapping of Bergdoll and Stecher as a "Wild West performance in Baden."

The National Zeitung expresses doubts that what it terms a breach of the peace occurred with the knowledge of or under instructions of the military authorities in the occupied zone, as these authorities "always have conducted themselves in a correct manner." The newspaper believes the episode was due to an act of personal vengeance.

One special dispatch from Eberbach says the populace of the town not only is indignant, but highly wrought up over the affair.

Fugitives Had Been Shadowed.

EBERBACH, Baden, Jan. 26.—A party, comprising two American officers and four Germans, came here last Saturday in a large touring car from Speyer in search of Grover Bergdoll and Isaac Stecher. They were armed and

MOB BURNS NEGRO AFTER 100-MILE TRIP

Arkansas Men Go Into Mississippi, Take Him From Train and Hurry Him Back.

ALL IN FAST AUTOMOBILES

Captive Confesses, Is Fastened to Stake on Scene of Murder and Then Set Afire.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 26.—Henry Lowery, a negro of 40 years, who killed O. T. Craig, an Arkansas planter, and his daughter, Mrs. C. O. Williamson, was burned at the stake at Nodena, Ark., just above Memphis tonight, according to a prearranged schedule, by a mob, who were forced to travel in automobiles more than 100 miles through Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi to take Lowery away from two Arkansas deputies, who were bringing him from Texas to the penitentiary.

The whole affair was carried out in most methodical fashion. The party of twenty-five men were in six high-powered automobiles. According to the statement of a night watchman at Sardis, Miss., they appeared there half an hour or more before the arrival of the train from New Orleans. They made no secret of their intentions and calmly waited at the hotel.

When the train drew up at the station they entered the coach in which were the two Deputies, J. J. Gheer and D. H. Dickson, and the negro. They disarmed the Deputies and took the prisoner from them.

Then they sped away with him toward Arkansas. All sorts of rumors spread. One said that the negro would be paraded through the streets of Memphis. This caused police to be stationed along the route.

The car in which the negro was being conveyed went by Memphis, however, and arrived at Millington at noon. Word came from there that the lynching would take place at 6 o'clock. It took place thirty minutes after that time.

It was by torchlight near the scene of his crime that Lowrey paid the penalty with his life. He was taken to a point on the levee a mile east of Nodena, on the outskirts of the Craig plantation. Asked if he had anything to say, Lowrey said that he was hungry. He was then allowed to eat a hearty meal. His wife and children then were sent for.

The negro admitted the killing of the two persons and added that he was intoxicated when he did it. He was then chained to a log and covered with brush up to his shoulders. It was forty minutes before the last death agony died away and the negro's charred body lay still in death. Repeatedly he was turned over and more oil poured on the flames to hasten the burning.

The two Deputies whom the mob disarmed had been left at the Sardis station and told to take a later train. They did so and did not arrive on the scene until after the negro had been lynched.

In his room at the Peabody Hotel Sheriff Dwight H. Blackwood of Mississippi County said today that nearly every man, woman and child in the county wanted the negro lynched.

He added:

"When sentiment is that way, there isn't much chance left for officers. Of course, we may believe that the negro ought to be killed for what he did, but as officers it is our duty to carry out the law."

Lowery was arrested at El Paso, Texas. Letters sent to fellow members of the Odd Fellows' Lodge of which he was a member led to his arrest. It was learned that seven members of the order secreted Lowery and furnished funds with which to make his escape. Five of these are in jail at Marion, Ark., the others at Blytheville.

According to a rumor tonight several hundred men are on their way to Blytheville and more trouble is feared, although none of the mob will admit the object of their trip.

Governor Denounces Tragedy.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 26.—Governor McRae tonight characterized the lynching of Henry Lowery, at Nodena, as the most disreputable act ever committed in Arkansas and said he would recommend to the Legislature that any Sheriff or officer who permitted or did not prevent the lynching of persons within his jurisdiction should be removed from office.

Governor McRae said he asked that Lowery be brought to Little Rock from El Paso for safe keeping and that he could not understand why the negro was taken by the roundabout way through New Orleans, Mississippi and Tennessee. According to the Governor, Lowery agreed to return to Arkansas on assurances of protection. Instead, the Governor said, the officers apparently turned him over to a mob with lamblike docility.

ELECT DR. MANNING BISHOP OF NEW YORK ON THIRD BALLOT

Dr. Charles L. Slattery Defeated After Dr. Ernest M. Stires Retires from Contest.

ANTI-BRITISH ATTACK AN AID

Hearst Editorial Denounced in Convention as "Beneath Contempt" of Members.

DR. PARKS RAPS CATHOLICS

Opposes Plan for Church Unity and Pleads for an America Dedicated to Protestantism.

The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning was elected Bishop of New York to succeed the late Bishop Burch on the third ballot at the special convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York in Synod Hall yesterday.

An editorial article from the Hearst papers attacking Dr. Manning, embodied in telegrams to Episcopal clergymen throughout the diocese and distributed in front of Synod Hall by newsboys, contributed to interest in the election. A copy of the editorial in yesterday's American was read and denounced in the convention. According to some of the delegates, resentment provoked by the attack on Dr. Manning contributed to his election.

He led on the three ballots, both in the voting by the clergy and the laymen. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, withdrew after the second ballot. An attempt failed to throw his strength to Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, rector of Grace Church, and Dr. Manning on the third ballot carried the clerical vote by 126 against 109 for Dr. Slattery. The lay vote stood 75 for Dr. Manning and 64 for Dr. Slattery. On this ballot Dr. Manning received majorities both of the clergy and lay votes which were necessary to elect. The election was made unanimous on a motion by Dr. Stires.

Bishop Thomas Strong Fourth.

A fourth candidate who showed unexpected strength on the first ballot was Bishop Nathaniel S. Thomas of Wyoming. The following tables show the changes on the three ballots:

CLERICAL DELEGATES.

	First Ballot.	Second Ballot.	Third Ballot.
Manning	89	101	126
Slattery	75	74	109
Stires	73	63	0

LAY DELEGATES.

	First Ballot.	Second Ballot.	Third Ballot.
Manning	59	64	75
Slattery	37½	38	64
Stires	52	49⅞	½

It was necessary to take the ballots separately. Under diocesan rules the clergymen might be unanimous for one candidate, but this would not elect him without a majority of the lay votes. On the last ballot Dr. Manning received three votes more than a majority from the clergy and four more than needed from the laymen.

There was a dramatic moment after the second ballot, when Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's, who had nominated Dr. Stires, announced the withdrawal of his candidate and sought to throw his influence in favor of Dr. Slattery.

"I feel that I should announce that Dr. Stires gave consent to use his name most reluctantly," he said. "Dr. Stires earnestly desired that his name should not be presented and was only induced by the wishes of his friends. I am requested to withdraw his name and in doing so I assure the convention that whoever is elected Bishop will receive his loyal support."

Some of the members violated the rule of the convention by applauding. Several delegates sought to speak, but the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Nichols, who presided, announced that Dr. Parks had something more to say.

"I beg to second the nomination of Dr. Slattery," added Dr. Parks.

He left the platform amid some applause and considerable turmoil. Several delegates sought recognition.

Dr. Manning Gains Support.

The Chair gave the floor to the Rev. George R. Vanderwater, who nominated Dr. Stires a year ago, when he was a candidate against the late Bishop Burch. According to the original program he was to have nominated Dr. Stires yesterday, but waived the privilege in favor of Dr. Parks. When quiet had been restored he seconded the nomination of Dr. Manning.

Applause came from all parts of the hall, in defiance of the rules. Supporters of Dr. Manning, who had been dismayed by the act of Dr. Parks, rushed to Dr. Vandewater to shake hands. The final result showed that the vote for Dr. Stires had been evenly split between the two remaining candidates.

Edmund L. Baylies, one of the most prominent lay members of the Episcopal Church, who nominated Dr. Manning, attributed his large gain on the third ballot to the effect of the Hearst attack.

"These attacks were distinctly helpful to Dr. Manning," he said, after the election. "It was such an infamous attack that it reacted on the people who put it out and helped Dr. Manning. It was contemptible and beneath contempt. There was no man in the hall of so little intellect as to be influenced by it against Dr. Manning."

The editorial in The Evening Journal, copies of which were given away at the Synod House, was headed, "Is an Eng-

MILLER WON'T YIELD ON TRACTION PLANS

Tells Correspondents Political Pressure Will Not Swerve Him From Message Stand.

NOT SWAYED BY MAYORALTY

Will Refuse to Heed Importunities of New York City Republican Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—Governor Miller, to recall a phrase which occurred in his inaugural address, is determined to "hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may," in dealing with the New York City traction tangle.

He made it clear in a talk with newspaper correspondents at the Capitol this afternoon that no amount of political pressure, and there has already been a lot of it, will swerve him from his purpose of dealing courageously and along the lines laid down in his recent special message to the Legislature with the traction problem of New York City.

The Governor's attention was called this afternoon, when he received the newspaper men, to a statement made by President LaGuardia of the New York City Board of Aldermen, in an address to art educators made there last night after his return from the capital. In his speech Mr. LaGuardia said:

"If the Republican Party stands back of Governor Miller the result will be, you will find, that the Governor will hand the Mayoralty to Mayor Hylan on a silver plate in the coming election."

"I should not care to consider that subject," said the Governor, in commenting on the statement. "Who wins the Mayoralty in the coming election is none of my concern. We are not considering what the consequences are. I do not care to comment further on the ebullitions of those who are doing that which should not be done with this situation, playing politics with it."

Leaders Fear for Mayoralty.

It is no secret at the Capitol that Republican leaders from New York City, including Chairman Samuel S. Koenig of the New York County Committee; Jacob A. Livingston, the Republican overlord in Kings, and many others have made repeated trips to Albany in an effort to convince Governor Miller that any remedial measure that might involve an increase in carfares in New York City should be put off until after the Mayoralty election this Fall, as embodying a menace to the otherwise promising prospect of Republican success. The message and, more directly, the statement made in his interview this afternoon are the answer of Governor Miller to all such importunities.

Governor Miller was told that a paragraph in his traction message had been interpreted in some quarters as meaning that if his plan were adopted the traction companies themselves would have power to fix fares without consulting any authority.

"That, of course, is an entirely erroneous impression," said the Governor. "In the first place, the city must be a party to any changes that are made in pursuance of my recommendations."

"Will the city's consent be necessary to changes in fares?"

"No, that is part of the regulatory power that would be lodged in the Transit Commission. Some seem to be of the opinion that these [the subway] contracts were made with the city. Those, taking this view betray ignorance of the facts. The contracts were made by and with the Public Service Commission, and were only approved by the Board of Estimate, and I can find no statutory provision that made the consent of the board necessary."

"You said yesterday that with a unified system the fare ultimately would be less than 5 cents—will you elaborate on that statement?" the Governor was asked.

"Of course, I was not prophesying," the Governor replied, "but I would expect that with a unified system, under proper control and management, the fare might be less than 5 cents ultimately. The fare question, to my mind, however, is merely incidental."

Would Name Men of Courage.

The Governor was asked if he had found men to take the three places on his proposed commission and what type of men he wanted for these jobs.

"Do you want men with a judicial mind, engineers or business men?" was asked.

"I have not undertaken to find the men yet," the Governor replied. "Naturally, I will wait to see whether the Legislature will adopt my recommendations. I would not say that necessarily I would pick them from among lawyers, business men or engineers. I would not prescribe such qualifications. I care more about the men themselves than their calling."

"You want men of courage," was suggested.

"Yes, I do not think men without courage could be expected to deal with this problem in the proper fashion," was the answer.

"Will the politics of the man have any weight with you in determining the choice?"

"Most certainly not," the Governor replied.

The Governor announced tonight that he had asked Highway Commissioner Greene to hold up $3,000,000 worth of highway contracts which were to have been let today. Colonel Greene resigns on Feb. 1 to be succeeded by Herbert S. Sisson, who today resigned as Commissioner of Excise.

HYLAN OPENS FIGHT ON TRACTION PLAN AS HOME RULE ISSUE

Mayor Asserts Miller's Program Invades Constitutional Rights of the City.

SAYS PEOPLE WILL RESIST

Must Not Be Deprived of Voice in Determining Rates of Own Subways.

REPUBLICANS ARE DISMAYED

Fear Loss of Mayoralty if Governor Achieves His Proposals Here.

Governor Nathan L. Miller's statement to the Legislature on Tuesday of his plan to solve New York City's traction problem has almost completely changed the local political situation over night. Republican leaders here, after carefully checking up sentiment yesterday, were unanimous in the belief that their party's chances for success in the Mayoralty election this Fall would be nil if the Governor's program went through. It is not unlikely that the local leaders will try to prevail on the New York City Senators and Assemblymen to defeat the measure, although no such order has yet been issued.

While the Governor's program found favor among business men, and while the Republican politicians expressed the belief that it may ultimately be approved by the voters, they are satisfied that the traveling public will be in no mood to accept it this year, and that as a Mayoralty campaign issue it will be favorable to the Democrats. Up to Tuesday Republican leaders were well satisfied with the Fall outlook. They considered that the police situation had furnished them with an issue ready-made and that they had an excellent chance of electing a straight Republican ticket.

With the prospect of eight-cent fare on the subway and elevated lines becoming the real issue, and with the Republican organization ttaking the unpopular end, the leaders have begun to revise their plans, and within the next few weeks an entire change of program may result.

The indication that an increased subway fare injected into the campaign would work to harmonize all Democratic factions while serving to split the Republican organization is not being lost on the Republican leaders. As Mayor Hylan is considered to be the foremost champion of a five-cent fare, the Republicans believe that all opposition to him in his own party would disappear and that he would be put forward as the logical candidate of the united Democrats.

Republican Split Has Started.

Already the Republican split has started, despite the fact that at a meeting of the Republican County Chairmen at the Republican Club Tuesday night it was said that everything was harmonious. If the eight-cent-fare is made an issue it is considered certain that President F. H. LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen will bolt his party and run in the primaries as an independent candidate on a five-cent fare platform. Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, is vigorously opposing the Governor's policy on the home rule issue. The indications are that Jacob Livingston, Republican leader of Brooklyn, will boom Justice Cropsey for the Republican nomination on a five-cent fare issue. In the meantime Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, is inclined to make no move until he has further tested sentiment regarding the Miller plan.

No matter how unpopular it makes him in New York City or how much the success of the Republican organization is jeopardised below the Westchester line, Governor Miller, it is said, will fight the Legislature to the last ditch to get his traction program over. The Governor, it is reported, feels that he owes little to New York City Republicans for his election, but realizes that his strength is up-State.

"If the city election were held tomorrow there is no doubt what would happen," said a prominent up-State Republican yesterday, "but the Governor does not need to worry about that. He figures that in the long run his plan will work out to the satisfaction of all and is content to look to the future, not forgetting that up-State votes defeated his Democratic opponent."

Hylan Attacks Program.

That Mayor Hylan is alive to the political possibilities of the situation and that he intends to force the traction issue to the front from now on was indicated by his issuance of a statement last night criticising the Governor's program and declaring it to be an invasion of the constitutional rights of the city. The Mayor said:

"The proposal to create by legislation a State transit board, independent of municipal control, to which shall be transferred the power and authority now possessed under the law by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, with further power to revise, abrogate, annul and revoke solemn agreements, particularly as to a five-cent fare, can never be written into a statute which will be approved by our courts as valid and constitutional.

"The proposal made by the Governor would bring into effect a change in fares without the consent of the city authorities.

"It would attempt to legislate away the effect of the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Quimby or Rochester case.

"It would invade the constitutional rights of the city.

"The people of this city look to their duly elected officials for the protection

Sing Sing Convict Escapes from Guard When Brought Here to See His Sick Son

Thomas Burke, member of the "Red" Hope gange that executed a series of daring hotel robberies in this city in 1919, and who was serving a twelve-year sentence in Sing Sing, is at large in Manhattan. Burke escaped yesterday afternoon from Francis O'Neill, a Sing Sing guard in whose custody he had been allowed to visit his home at 311 West Twenty-sixth Street, where his five-year-old son was desperately ill of whooping cough and pneumonia.

O'Neill suppressed news of the escape, so far as his superiors at the Ossining prison were concerned, until 1 o'clock this morning. At that hour he telephoned Waredn Lawes from Forty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue, saying that at about 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon his prisoner broke from his grasp and ran. O'Neill said the pair were on Eighth Avenue at the time, fifteen minutes after the termination of the visit, made by official permission of James K. Long, Acting Superintendent of Prisons in Albany. The guard told the Warden he had handcuffs with him, but had not manacled his prisoner as is the custom.

O'Neill said he was in the company of two uncles of the prisoner and was "on the track" of the fugitive. The Warden allowed him to stay in New York to help in the search, but said there would be an investigation later. O'Neill is said to have escorted more than fifty prisoners on officially allowed visits outside the walls.

The "Red" Hope gang confessed to holdups in several hotels, among them the Grenoble, the Sherman Square and the St. Paul. They went about in taxicabs, armed with pistols and blackjacks.

A prisoner named Comesky also left Sing Sing yesterday on a visit to his wife, who is ill in the hospital on Blackwell's Island.

of their interests. The right and duty to protect these public interests now lodged in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment should not be wrenched from that board and transferred to an appointive body neither responsible nor responsive to the people.

"The creation and the power of the proposed new transit board is opposed to the best interests of the city and to sound public policy, in that it would mean the revising and rewriting of franchises without giving the city any voice in the matter. The granting of such absolute power of rate regulation to an appointive body would not only be a grave mistake but would be resented by the people.

"It would deprive the city of all the rights it has gained over its own property and make the rights and privileges of the six million residents of the City of New York subject to the dictation of a State commission with arbitrary power to dictate the rates of fare the people shall pay on the subways, which were built, paid for and are owned by the people themselves.

"There can be no settlement of the traction problems of this city by an outside agency without consulting the city's responsible officials. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will not abdicate its powers and duties to those not responsible to the people. The people who have invested more than a quarter of a billion dollars in the subways must not be deprived of a voice in the determination of the rates they shall pay on their own subways.

Charges Traction Extravagance.

"The public analyzing the Governor's message should read his proposals in the light of the disclosures made in the recent investigations conducted by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which clearly showed that the present financial difficulties of the several companies were due to lack of foresight in the past, financial mismanagement and downright extravagance.

"The Interborough has admittedly been making money on its contract with the city. It has been losing money on its contracts with the Manhattan Railway Company, whose lines it leased at a guaranteed dividend of 7 per cent. upon $60,000,000 capital stock, a great portion of which is water. The reason the Interborough is asking for relief from its obligations under the contract with the city is in order to be able to continue its arrangements with the Manhattan Railway Company. If any contract were to be modified it should be the Manhattan elevated lease and not the 5-cent fare fixed by the dual subway contracts.

"The collapse of the New York Railways Company was due to its over-capitalization, excessive rentals and high interest paid. The over-capitalization was placed upon the company in the early history of the street railways in Manhattan. The original horse car lines were over-capitalized. These then were consolidated and with every step in the consolidation additional watered securities were issued. The horse car lines became obstacles and were replaced by cable lines, which in turn were replaced by the present underground electric construction.

"In connection with the successive reconstruction, new securities were issued not only for the actual cost of construction, but large amounts of water were pumped into the financing. The company has paid out every cent that it could in dividends and at every step added the maximum possible amount of securities that the system could stand. It is this fact that has been the fundamental cause of the insolvency of the surface lines in Manhattan.

Calls Surface Lines Obsolete.

"The surface lines are obsolete and antiquated and must give way to more modern methods of transportation, such as the subways and commodious buses. The tracks of the surface lines will eventually be ripped up from the streets, and there can be no justification in adding a further burden to the taxpayers by unloading upon them the dilapidated equipment of the surface lines in which the city has no financial interest.

"It was stated in the Senate at Albany during the present session that since the Brooklyn traction companies went into the hands of the receiver, a little over a year ago, $125,000 was paid to the receiver on account of services, and that a concern which claims to be expert received $131,000 for showing how much the Brooklyn traction companies are losing. For these two services more than 5,000,000 fares were taken from the people of Brooklyn, who received in return the privilege of being jammed in the cars of the traction companies.

"The fact that Federal receiverships are expensive is evident. It is equally evident that the service rendered to the people has been steadily growing worse.

"And the same receiver of the Brooklyn traction companies is now threatening to close down other lines on the ground that it is impossible to make a profit on a 5-cent fare.

"The city borrowed the money to build its subway lines. The people patronized these lines in preference to the privately owned lines. The operation of these subway lines by the city at a 5-cent fare and a bus system at a 5-cent fare will forever free the city of the traction manipulators. We could then proceed with the further extension of the subways and the development of the bus service on a universal 5-cent fare.

"Legislation at Albany making more definite and certain the city's right to appropriate money for the purchase of buses and the municipal operation of same could be granted even before the decision of the courts be obtained. If the legislators of the Greater City would unite and demand legislation giving the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the right to purchase and operate up-to-date, commodious automobile passenger vehicles, we could have 5,000 buses in operation on a 5-cent fare in less than a year. With municipal operation of subways and buses we would soon be able to turn money into the coffers of the city, which could be used for public improvements, such as schools, hospitals, highways and parks, without further burdening the people by taxation.

"The Board of Estimate's investigation of the traction companies disclosed that the water has not already been squeezed out of the traction securities, notwithstanding the seeming optimism in some quarters.

"Those who believe that the water has been squeezed out of the traction securities must admit that these traction securities, like the sponge squeezed dry, will again absorb the full quota of water if the fare is increased.

"During the past three years each branch of the State Government has undertaken to deal with the so-called traction problem. Three attempts were made in the Legislature to give the Public Service Commission sweeping powers not only to regulate but to establish rates of fare in spite of and contrary to agreements solemnly entered into by local authorities in various cities of the State. These attempts were all unsuccessful.

Sees Legal Settlement Near.

"The Court of Appeals has held that legislation attempting to confer upon the Public Service Commission power to interfere with, abrogate and annul franchises which have been granted by the local authorities within the provisions of the constitution requiring the consent of the local authorities is of doubtful constitutionality.

"The right of the city to operate upon city streets buses designed to meet the demands of transportation not afforded by existing street railways is awaiting decision in the Appellate Division, First Department. Decisions will be handed down within a few weeks by the Court of Appeals upon certain other phases of the traction problem.

"Thus, within a short time decisions upon most of the vital legal questions involved in the traction problems of New York City may be reasonably expected and a final settlement of various constitutional questions will be had.

"The determination in our courts of these different questions will make action unnecessary upon the various proposals for legislation suggested in the Governor's message.

"The proposals of the Governor which are similar to the Carson-Martin and Jenks bills should not be enacted. Such enactment would be violative of the constitutional rights of the city. It would also be contrary to the letter and spirit of our State and Federal Constitutions."

Immediate action looking to a united protest against the proposed transfer of the city's administrative power to Albany will be taken by the City Parliament of Community Councils of the City of New York, it was announced by Jabez E. Dunningham, Executive Secretary, who mailed 350 letters to Community Councils in the city directing them to call a meeting at once. At these meetings the councils will decide upon a uniform plan of action against the Governor's proposals.

Borough President Curran voiced his disapproval of the plan yesterday on the ground that it was a violation of home rule to transfer the city's right to regulate its own traction affairs to an up-State commission.

Doyle Backs the Governor.

Among those who hailed the Governor's proposal as a sincere effort to solve the traction muddle was Edward A. Doyle, member of the Executive Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York City.

"Governor Miller has presented in his message the only practical solution of the problem," he said. "The objections raised on the ground of interference with the city's policies are ridiculous. The State has never relinquished control of public utilities and the only way New York could escape this control would be by seceding from the State.

"The Governor's idea that the transit problem be considered as a whole, and not from the standpoint of what certain politicians want for their particular sections and constituencies is an excellent one. This can only be accomplished by the establishment of a non-partisan commission invested with the power of supervision and control."

Senator William M. Calder also approved it, saying: "I think it is a splendid statement of transportation conditions in the city. I hope a most careful inquiry will be made into the transportation conditions here, to the end that the service will be improved."

One thing the Governor's message accomplished which the politicians did not think possible was the unifying of the Board of Estimate members. All lesser quarrels were forgotten as Controller Craig united with the Mayor, all the Borough Presidents and Aldermanic President LaGuardia in denouncing the proposal to take the board's power away.

CURRAN CRITICISES MILLER'S TRANSIT PLAN

Objects to "Gentlemen From Adirondacks and Catskills" Trying to Run This City.

Addressing a class of 161 girl graduates who received diplomas at the Wadleigh High School, 115th Street and Seventh Avenue, last night, Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, criticised Governor Miller's traction message to the Legislature and said that the people of New York City were not ready to surrender their home rule rights. Traction conditions, he said, were not so serious that such a step should be taken or that an increased fare on the subway lines was necessary.

"You hear a great deal about a five-cent fare, a seven and eight cent fare," said Mr. Curran, "but very little about a four-cent fare. We are confronted today with something that I believe is as serious a crisis in the history of our city as I have known in my ten years of public life. With the finest motives and the best of intentions, the Governor of the State has sought to solve our traction troubles by taking away a slice of the home rule we have enjoyed for 100 years.

"Before us today is the great question of home rule for our cities. The question is whether we shall govern our own city or whether the Governor of the State, splendid as he may be, coming from Schenectady or Skaneatles or some other up-State place, is going to send his appointees down here to say if we are to pay a five or an eight cent fare.

"You must remember that we have $300,000,000 invested in the subways. I think we would rather run our traction lines ourselves, and not have the gentlemen from the Adirondacks and the Catskills coming down here to try and run this city. There has been something said about an emergency. If there is an emergency it was not caused by a five-cent fare. I believe we can get along on a five-cent fare, and if we can that is the proper fare and we are prepared to prove it."

Stuart H. Rowe, Principal of the school, presided, and the diplomas were awarded by Professor James M. Kiernan of Hunter College.

PROVIDES CITY OPERATION.

Bill of Democratic City Legislators Covers All Public Utilities.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—Measures providing for municipal ownership and operation of all public utilities will be introduced in the Legislature tomorrow by the Democratic minority leaders, Senator James J. Walker and Assemblyman Charlese D. Donohue.

The bills will follow closely the linese of the measures introduced in 1919 by Senator Samuel Fowler, which passed the Senate, but were defeated in the lower House.

Senator Walker declared tonight that the enactment of these bills afforded a means as definite in settlement of the public utilities question as that proposed by Governor Miller.

The Walker-Donohue measure was endorsed by the New York State Conference of Mayors in 1918 and 1919 and will be reported on by the Legislative Committee of the conference probably at a meeting to be heldf next week.

Assemblyman Theodore Stitt of New York City introduced a bill in the Assembly today to provide for a convention of representatives of the Legislature, the Judiciary and the Bar to meet on the second Tuesday in May to consider and report on proposed amendments to the judiciary article of the State Constitution. The bill asks for an appropriation of $30,000.

Assemblyman Stitt also offered a bill proposing an amendment to the Constitution to provide for home rule for cities.

STATE LABOR TO FIGHT AGAINST 8-CENT FARE

Head of Workers' Council Threatens Politicians Who Support Governor's Program.

Organized labor in the city and State will fight any plan for an eight-cent fare, it was announced last night by President John Sullivan of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity. The New York State Federation of Labor, President Sullivan said, would make its fight against an increased fare in conjunction with the Central Trades and Labor Council. In all, 1,200,000 trade unionists, he said, would be lined up against the plan. A delegation of labor men will go to Albany today to make a protest against increased fare legislation. President Sullivan said:

"Organized labor believes that not only are the rapid transit systems making large profits now, but that these profits would be greatly enhanced through efficiency at the top. With efficient management the profits of the rapid transit systems, we believe, could be doubled and the howl on the part of the transit managements concerning the price of coal and materials could be shown up as the merest camouflage.

"The biggest political fight ever made in this State will be made by the forces or organized labor in case this outrageous fare-grab proposition succeeds. Every legislator who votes for this fare-grab will be a shining mark for the hosts of organized labor on the political field. We will see to it that every man who votes for the fare grab is retired politically. This is the ultimatum of organized labor to Governor Miller."

Hal Chase's Wife Gets Divorce.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Anna M. Chase of this city was granted today a decree of divorce from Hal Chase, former first baseman of the Cincinnati and New York National League baseball clubs, who was last heard from in San José, Cal.

VOTES TO RESTRICT LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

Assembly Refuses Power to Delve Fully Into Banks and Insurance Companies.

McWHINNEY CHANGES FRONT

Sponsor of the Original Resolution Opposes Measure in the Form He Offered It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—With lobbyists representing insurance companies and other financial institutions looking on, the Assembly today defeated, by a vote of 82 to 41, the original Lockwood resolution which would have permitted the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing to investigate fully the affairs of banks and insurance companies.

The resolution, in its original form, had been offered as a substitute for an amended version which did not contain this grant of power, and which was reported this morning by the Ways and Means Committee. The amended resolution was finally adopted by a viva voce vote.

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt of Nassau joined his colleague, Assemblyman Thomas A. McWhinney, Vice Chairman of the Housing Committee, and a majority of the up-State Republicans in voting against the original resolution. The following Republicans from New York City also voted against the original resolution: Aronson of Manhattan, Dipirro of Manhattan, Doherty of Brooklyn, Frerichs of Richmond, Halpern of Queens, Jesse of Manhattan, Mullen of Brooklyn, Rayher of Manhattan, Miss Smith of Manhattan and Wells of Brooklyn.

The amended resolution was reported in the Senate, but there was a very slim attendance in the upper house, and final action was put over until next Tuesday.

Every Democrat in the Assembly and the three Socialist members voted for the Lockwood resolution in its original form. A number of New York City Republicans voted with them.

McWhinney Defends His Vote.

While it had been expected that the opposing lobby would defeat the efforts of the Lockwood Committee and Samuel Untermyer, its counsel, to get power to investigate banks and insurance companies throughout the State to the fullest extent, the complete turn about of Vice Chairman McWhinney of the committee from that of a supporter of this effort to its foe was the surprise of the Assembly's vote.

From assuming the sponsorship for the original Lockwood resolution in the lower house, Mr. McWhinney entered the debate today to combat its adoption in the form he had offered it and to contend for the emasculated version which Senator Lockwood in a statement last night declared would cripple the Housing Committee in its future work.

The Capitol corridors in a jiffy were humming with speculation as to what could have prompted Assemblyman McWhinney to desert his colleagues on the committee and vote for the resolution in a form they did not approve. From the floor of the Assembly the Nassau County legislator made the following explanation:

"There is an organized effort to divert the Lockwood Committee from its housing inquiry to an investigation of banks and insurance companies. We are doing far more important work in our inquiry into housing conditions, and I do not believe we should be diverted from that subject. There is an organized effort to bring about that diversion, but the inquiry into housing should go on. The members of the Ways and Means Committee, including two who are members of the Lockwood Committee, voted unanimously to report the resolution in its amended form.

Donohue Rails at Committee.

"The members of the Lockwood Committee, I do not believe, want an inquiry into the affairs of banks at this time."

"You should blush with shame, Mr. McWhinney," exclaimed Assemblyman Charles D. Donohue, leader of the Democratic minority, "at the stand you are taking today in support of a resolution which virtually means an end to the powers of your committee to do effective work. Your action, Mr. McWhinney, shows the fine Italian hand of somebody who is fearful of what an investigation of banks and insurance companies would bring out. It is amazing that the majority should seem so afraid of giving the committee this power of investigating banks and insurance companies."

Mr. Donohue got the floor immediately after Assemblyman McWhinney had spoken. As he attacked McWhinney's change of front he kept an unswerving index finger pointed in the direction of his colleague from Nassau County.

"The change of position of Mr. McWhinney is most amazing and beyond understanding," said Senator Lockwood, Chairman of the Housing Committee, when information was brought to him regarding the statement of the Assemblyman from the floor.

"Mr. McWhinney attended the meetings of our committee, considered the preliminary report and the proposed continuing resolution, and approved the same, both verbally and in writing. He had copies in his possession for ten days before he was able, under the Assembly rules, to introduce them in that house, and never until this morning has there been the slightest intimation that he did not still favor them. His statement that part of the proposed continuing resolution was a plan to divert the committee from its proper work is wholly unfounded."

The Assembly spent two hours in debate on the resolution, working under a closed call, which required all the members to be in their seats and the doors of the chamber to be kept locked. Mr. Donohue, who moved to substitute the Lockwood resolution in its original form for the amended resolution, sprung this question in the course of his remarks in support of the unamended resolution:

"Silence prevails overnight. Did somebody during the silent watches see the members who only yesterday intimated that they were going to tell members of their own party what a fatal mistake they were going to make if they failed to accept the resolution in its original form?"

Adler Upholds Assembly Vote.

"It would appear," he added, "as though the invisible empire we heard so much about a year ago had been at work."

Assemblyman Simon L. Adler of Monroe, leader of the Republican majority, took the minority leader to task for his utterances, which he declared were made for the purpose of "furnishing headlines for certain New York newspapers."

In the course of a detailed explanation of the charges made in the resolution, Mr. Adler said that the only power sought by the Lockwood Committee and denied it was that of delving deep into the records in the files of the State Superintendents of banks and of insurance. In its amended form, Mr. Adler said, the resolution empowered the committee to inquire into the affairs of banks and insurance companies in so far as they related to the housing situation.

This statement was endorsed by Mr. McWhinney, who introduced the resolution.

"Do you believe the committee can accomplish its object without delving into the affairs of banks and insurance companies?" asked Assemblyman Thomas J. McDonald, Democrat, of the Bronx.

"I regard it absolutely essential for the committee to find out how the assets of such institutions are being invested," Mr. McWhinney replied. "This we have the power to do. In fact, questionnaires have already been sent out and 65 per cent. of the inquiries answered."

"Does the committee intend to find out why the banks forced people to reduce their mortgages during the war and that if, with the money that through compliance with this demand flowed into their coffers, they bought speculative securities and if so, if they can dispose of these securities without loss at present market quotations?"

This query was not answered by McWhinney, who repeated his charge that an organized effort was being set on foot to divert the investigation of the Lockwood Committee from housing to banks and insurance companies.

"From what source does this organized effort to divert emanate?" asked Assemblyman George N. Jesse.

"I do not know, except that it comes through underground channels," said McWhinney. "I do not accuse any member of the committee or its counsel in this connection."

Untermyer May Quit Committee.

Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel to the Lockwood Committee, declined yesterday to discuss the action of the Assembly in voting for the amended Lockwood committee resolution or the course he would pursue on the ground that the legislative end of the inquiry was in charge of Senator Lockwood.

He referred with enthusiasm to the loyal support he had at all times received from Chairman Lockwood and the members of the committee, and said he could not say or do anything that might hamper a free discussion among the legislators before reaching a decision.

Mr. Untermyer declined to discuss rumors from Albany that he would resign from the committee in view of the action of the Assembly and particularly that of Assemblyman Thomas McWhinney, Vice Chairman of the committee, who was entrusted with the resolution in the lower house. It is understood that Mr. McWhinney assured Mr. Untermyer, Senator Lockwood and Mr. Untermyer's legal associates in Albany last week that the resolution would be adopted as drawn and that he would not permit a compromise. Doubt was expressed last night in authoritative quarters as to whether Mr. Untermyer would continnue to serve the committee if Assemblyman McWhinney remained on it.

REALTY MEN OPPOSE INQUIRY.

Board Does Not Want Lockwood Committee "to Run Amuck."

The Real Estate Board, in a statement issued yesterday, defended its opposition of broadening the powers of the Lockwood committee and said that "the high-handed and sensational methods of the committee" were effective "in its investigation of labor grafters and building material profiteers, but there the inquisitors were dealing with elements, notoriously criminal, that were not even under cursory official supervision."

"On the other hand," the statement continued, "neither the banks nor the insurance companies of the State have been charged with indulgence in practices detrimental to a proper solution of the housing problem, and all such institutions have been under the jealous control of competent and conscientious officers. Notwithstanding these facts, the housing inquisitors insist that they be permitted to run amuck through all banks and all insurance companies." The board disclaimed the intention of entering "into any mud-slinging contract" with Samuel Untermyer, who has suggested that the efforts of the board were based on ulterior motives.

NO TRACE OF STOLL, PRODUCER OF FILMS

Missing Since Dec. 26, When He Reported Leaving Los Angeles to Come Here.

Associates of Captain Frederick F. Stoll, President and organizer of the United States Photoplay Corporation, 227 West Forty-fifth Street, who has not been heard from since Dec. 26 last, when he telegraphed from Los Angeles that he was leaving for New York, expressed the belief yesterday that he either had been assaulted, become a victim of amnesia or suddenly taken ill. Dr. George L. Carder, First Vice President of the corporation, said that the financial affairs of the corporation are in good shape and that there was no reason for Captain Stoll's disappearance.

When the Board of Directors of the corporation meet on Saturday it is likely that some action will be taken in regard to the continued absence of Captain Stoll, it was said.

Captain Stoll left here on Dec. 14 last to visit his mother in Chicago and to meet friends in the West who had promised aid for the corporation. Captain Stoll visited his mother, but failed to keep appointments with friends. The office here had no word from him until Dec. 26, when he telegraphed from Los Angeles that he was leaving for this city.

Dr. Carder admitted that stock had been sold to persons in many sections of the country. It was reported that "bootblacks and waitresses" in Virginia and other States had bought stock in amounts ranging from $200 to $1,000 under the impression that they were to be given a part in the production, and that at least sixty of them reported at the company's studio, almost all of them being rejected. Dr. Carder said that no doubt many of the purchasers of stock were told that if they could pass the screen test they would be given a place, but that in no case was there any obligation on the part of the corporation to employ them.

PROHIBITION CAMPAIGN BEGINS IN SWITZERLAND

Movement Started to Have Local Option on the Manufacture and Sale of Alcohol.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Jan. 25.—America's prohibition of alcohol is having its effect in Switzerland. A movement has just been set on foot for including a new article in the Swiss Constitution empowering cantons and communes to forbid within their territory the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks.

There are nearly 50,000 hotels, restaurants and inns in Switzerland licensed to sell spirituous liquors, and their owners are crying out that they will have no "Pussyfoot" in Switzerland. They declare that before the war about 4,000,000 tourists annually visited Switzerland—that is, about 200,000 more persons than make up its total population—and that their profits were not so much on letting rooms and serving meals as on alcoholic drinks. Supposing each tourist to have spent not more than $100 in Switzerland, this meant $400,000,000 annually, which is decidedly an underestimate.

Hotel keepers and restaurant keepers generally declare that most of the billion francs and more spent annually on alcoholic drinks in Switzerland does not come from Swiss pockets, but from those of foreigners.

The 30,000 voters' signatures necessary for an initiative are now being collected and will doubtless be obtained; but it is certain that when prohibition comes to a referendum it will be rejected.

REVIVES WARTIME DRY ACT.

Prosecutor Acts on Old Offenses of 3,000 Chicago Saloon Keepers.

Special to The New York Times

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Chicago saloon keepers tonight faced what was regarded as the most desperate situation that has confronted them since the passage of the Volstead act. District Attorney Clyne announced that he had resurrected the old Wartime Prohibition act and would proceed against at least 3,000 saloon keepers who had violated the laws in 1918 and 1919. Warrants for 119 of these were issued by Judge Carpenter.

Attorney General Brundage, who has a record of getting temporary restraining orders against 223 saloon and cabaret owners in the last two months, petitioned the Legislature for additional funds to finance a campaign to close every one of the 3,000 saloons still running in Chicago.

Frank D. Richardson announced that his men had been instructed to centre their efforts on obtaining sufficient evidence to close all Chicago saloons and breweries under the abatement clause of the Volstead act.

BRINDELL'S COUNSEL ACCUSES WITNESSES

Martin W. Littleton Declares Testimony That Labor Leader Extorted Money Was False.

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

Taking Evidence for Defense Will Begin Today—Safes Opened—Minute Books Missing.

Martin W. Littleton will begin today the examination of witnesses for the defense in the trial of Robert P. Brindell, Chairman of the Building Trades Council, charged with extorting $5,000 from Max Aronson for settling a strike. Samuel Untermyer, for the prosecution, rested late yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Littleton outlined the case for the defense to the jury in the Extraordinary Term of the Supreme Court.

In his statement, which occupied three-quarters of an hour in delivery, Mr. Littleton said he would refute the assertions that Brindell organized the Building Trades Council to levy tribute on the builders, by proving that the council was organized by the Boards of Business Agents of the various boroughs for the purpose of having a cohesive body to bargain collectively for about 115,000 workingmen.

The defense will show, Mr. Littleton said, that the statement of the complainant, Aronson, regarding his alleged payment of money to Brindell was "an absolute falsehood" and that the testimony of Jacob Fradus, who swore at the trial that Brindell demanded $75,000 was "typical of the mass of fabrications given by witnesses."

As proof of the purpose of the organization he said he would show that the council introduced on a large scale a system of collective bargaining taking in nearly all the 115,000 men in the building trades; that the wages arranged by agreement with the Building Trades Employers' Association were greatly increased and made uniform at $8 a day, although for three years previous the increase had not been over 50 cents a day. Also, that during 1919 the amount of time lost in strikes with contracts terminating on various dates rather than on the single day fixed in the agreement far exceeded in time, importance, damage and injury the strikes occurring in 1920, after the council began its system of collective bargaining.

"Instead of building being held up by the throat, we will show that $303,000,000 worth of building was done in 1920," Mr. Littleton asserted.

Louis Cohen, a house wrecking contractor, told acquaintances that Brindell had obtained contracts for him and that he paid Brindell for such services, maintained Mr. Littleton.

Prior to his address to the jury, Mr. Littleton's motions to dismiss the case and for the court to direct the jury to acquit the defendant were denied.

The evidence for the prosecution was closed with the testimony of Clarence L. Converse, chief investigator for the Attorney General, who said that a safe expert opened the two steel safe cabinets of the Building Trades Council in twenty minutes.

Converse said the minute books of the council were not in the safe, although there were some minutes of meetings held by the Board of Business Agents in 1919.

Mr. Littleton objected to the inference being given to the jury that the responsibility for the disappearance of the papers was on the accused. The Court directed the jury to disregard any such inference. Converse found a cashbook in one of the cabinets, but did not have it with him.

On cross-examination it appeared that no official of the council was present when the safe was opened by James Biancolo of 215 Grand Street. He handed Mr. Littleton a copy of the inventory of the contents.

Earlier in the day Albert Herskovitz of the Regent Construction Company testified that he had paid Brindell $25,000 to avoid trouble on a building going up at Seventh Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, because of the employment of non-union iron erectors.

RABBI WISE DENIES EDUCATOR'S CHARGES

Demands That Prof. Hobbs of Michigan University Prove Statements or Resign.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 26.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue, New York City, challenged Professor William H. Hobbs, head of the Department of Geology in the University of Michigan, tonight in a preface to an address given by the rabbi.

Last Sunday, in a signed communication, Professor Hobbs protested against the class of men brought here on the Oratorical Association's lecture course in the last five years. He said that, with few exceptions, these speakers had been pro-German or pacifist. He declared that Rabbi Wise had made use of his pulpit to spread pro-German propaganda.

Tonight, as a preface to his address, Rabbi Wise demanded that Professor Hobbs prove his statements or resign from the University of Michigan Faculty, going so far as to declare his intention of haling Professor Hobbs to court if he did not comply with the suggestion offered.

"I see by the papers that one Professor Hobbs of the University of Michigan has published a statement to the effect that Rabbi Wise was both pacifist and pro-German and has made use of his pulpit to aid German propaganda," said Rabbi Wise.

"I do not deem it necessary to reply to any charges made against me by Professor Hobbs to the effect that I have used my pulpit for German propaganda. I could safely leave the matter of Professor Hobbs's charge to the judgment of the American people, which, I venture to believe, knows where I stood and what was the character of my service to America during the war, and to the allied cause from the beginning, in August, 1914.

"None the less I shall not let the matter rest here. Professor Hobbs will be given an opportunity to prove his statement. If his statement be true, I am unfit to be a teacher of my people and I shall withdraw from the pulpit of my congregation. If Professor Hobbs's statement be untrue, as it will be shown to be untrue, then it will be the business of Professor Hobbs to withdraw from the Faculty of the University of Michigan."

COX FINDS PRESIDENT IMPROVED IN HEALTH

Visit Merely a Friendly Call, Ex-Governor Says—Not Taking Messages to Europe.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—There has been a "very marked change" for the better in President Wilson's condition since last Summer, former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio declared today after a forty minutes' visit to the President at the White House. The Executive, Mr. Cox said, was "heavier and more robust in every way" than he was on the occasion of the former Governor's call last Summer soon after he had been nominated as the Democratic Presidential candidate.

Describing his visit as merely a "friendly" call, Mr. Cox refused to go into details as to his conversation with the Executive. He did say, however, that his projected trip to Europe in June was talked about and added that he would not take any "messages" to Europe for the President.

Mr. Cox emphatically disclaimed any purpose in his call to talk politics and jokingly remarked that he had gone to the White House to tell the President that he had decided "not to move in."

ASSAIL MILLER PLAN FOR INDUSTRY BOARD

Labor Unions and Civil Service Reform Bodies Oppose Economy Program.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—Governor Miller's proposal that the State Industrial Commission be reorganized into a single-headed commission was attacked today as economically unsound and a political move in aid of Republican patronage at a hearing on amendments to recodify the labor laws and reorganize the commission.

Representatives of the State Federation of Labor and affiliated unions and civil service reform associations joined in opposing the proposal.

Labor, it appeared at the hearing, had contracted to support the Knight-Brady committee's recodification amendments, but changes announced prior to the hearing this afternoon "broke the contract," John M. O'Hanlon, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the State Federation of Labor, told the committee.

"Labor was prepared to go all the way through with this Committee on Recodification," said Mr. O'Hanlon. "Under our agreement there were to be no substantial changes in the existing labor laws, but if these changes we were just notified about by the committee are made, then our contract is broken. The bills for recodification and the reorganization of the Industrial Commission were to be presented to the Legislature as separate measures. If this plan goes through it violates our stand.

"The new form of administration, the single-headed commission proposed by the Governor, is not as good as the form now existing. We have had three changes of administration within the last decade and they have not worked to the advantage of the administration of the labor laws. From election day until now the present commission has suffered from rumors of decapitation and the only expectation they can now have is that their worst fears will be realized.

"It is not fair to the public to say that administration of the labor laws has increased in cost $1,000,000 in the last five years. It is not fair to stampede public opinion in that way. It is not true.

Frank Priall, Vice President of the Civil Service Association of New York City, opposed the reorganization scheme for his board.

"I am here to point out the 'con' in this proposed economy," he said. "This entire proposal is plainly a sordid and cheap attempt to get control of jobs. It really means that the Labor Department is abolished. It creates sinecures and will enable the people who want to to break the labor laws."

The proposal in the Reorganization bill to exempt from competitive appointment heads of bureaus and agencies met with opposition from the New York State association and the Civil Service Reform Association, representatives of both associations declaring the proposition unconstitutional and one that leaves the way open for political appointments.

Henry D. Sayer, Industrial Commissioner, of Richmond Hill, L. I., concurred with the Governor's recommendations.

James M. Lynch of Syracuse (Democrat), an Industrial Commissioner, attacked the reorganization proposal on the ground that abolition of the legal department would mean the breaking down of the proper enforcement of the labor law and the compensation law.

FORMER PROHIBITION CLERK IS CAPTURED

Mrs. Costillio, Wanted Here in Conspiracy and Bribery Cases, Arrested in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Volberg Costillio, formerly a clerk in the office of Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director for this State, wanted here in connection with charges of conspiracy and bribery against several former employes of the Prohibition Department and others, was arrested yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal., according to a telegram received last night by Hugh McQuillan, head of the Special Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, investigating liquor frauds.

Mrs. Costillio disappeared soon after the arrest at the McAlpin Hotel of Mrs. Mary E. Parkins, formerly a clerk in Mr. O'Connor's office; Miss Regina Sassons, formerly verification clerk in the same office; Edward Donegan, a Brooklyn contractor, and Sigmund ("Beansy") Rosenfeld, on charges of conspiracy and attempted bribery in connection with the issuance of forged permits for the withdrawal of whisky from bonded warehouses.

She was subsequently named as one of the defendants in a complaint with William C. McCoy, formerly auditor in the office of Prohibition Commissioner Kramer in Washington and later information clerk in Mr. O'Connor's office, and Miss Kathryn Foody, daughter of the late Police Captain Foody, also a clerk in Mr. O'Connor's office.

Mrs. Costillio's home in this city was at 1,973 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx. Her husband is said to be in South America.

Fifteen defendants entered pleas of guilty to violating the Volstead act before Judge Learned Hand in the Federal Court yesterday. Twelve were sentenced to serve fourteen days each in prison, two to serve a day each and the fifteenth to pay a fine of $15. A large number of defendants entered pleas of not guilty and will be tried before juries.

CHICAGO FEARS WAVE OF JOBLESS WORKERS

Director of Salvation Army Relief Says Unemployment Is Advancing Westward.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—As a result of industrial depression a wave of unemployment is being propelled westward, and toward Chicago, Colonel E. J. Parker of New York, National Director of Relief and Social Service for the Salvation Army, declared here today. Despite optimistic forecasts by various agencies which have been making surveys of the situation, Colonel Parker, whose organization deals with poverty and misery at first hand rather than through the non-conductor of the cold printed report, can see "no immediate relief in sight."

"We have more than 150 institutions east of Detroit, and every one of them is full to overflowing," the Director said. "We are prepared to meet what promises to be the hardest test we have had in years. This will be a more severe test than was undergone in the terrible Winter of 1916, when conditions down East were very black. We are busy now establishing relief posts, wood yards, cheap hotels and other means of relieving the distress occasioned by unemployment."

Since Christmas, Commissioner William Peart of Chicago asserted, the requests for relief to the Salvation Army in Chicago have more than doubled.

FARM WAGES AT HIGH POINT.

Average Rate Greater in 1920 Than Ever Before.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Wage rates for farm labor reached their highest point in the history of this country in 1920 as national averages, according to figures gathered by the Department of Agriculture and made public today. The average wage rate for labor hired by the month, it was shown, was $46.89, with board, and $64.95, without board; for day labor at harvest $3.60 with board and $4.36 without board. For day labor other than at harvest the scale averaged $2.86 with board, and $3.50 without board.

War conditions, it was found, greatly accelerated an upward movement of farm wage rates that began after 1895. The rate of that year for hirings by the month without board was $17.69, as an average for the United States and no other year in the record of the bureau extending back to 1866 had a lower rate, except 1879, with $16.42.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN FAIL TO PICK LEADER

Regularity of Meeting Questioned, Adjournment Taken, Informal Conference Held.

SIX NAMES ARE SUGGESTED

Up-State Delegates, Led by Mrs. Mary A. Morse, Clash With Marbury Supporters.

The meeting of Democratic women in the Hotel McAlpin yesterday to recommend a woman State leader to be named by the men's State Committee was only partly successful. Six women were suggested, but the attempt to give the meeting an appearance of party regularity failed.

Several New York City women, mostly Tammany adherents, were at first excluded, but decision to keep them out was reconsidered, and the twenty Tammanyites were invited in. Then the "official" meeting was adjourned and a "conference" was held.

The meeting developed, as had been expected, a contest between up-State women, grouped behind Mrs. Mary A. Morse of Buffalo, and those who favor Miss Elisabeth Marbury. It was evident that a majority did not want Miss Marbury as State Chairman as well as national committeeman.

After the meeting Mrs. Morse denied that there was any division between Tammany and anti-Tammany Democrats, but many of the Tammany women were just as emphatic that Mrs. Morse's point of view was not theirs. They did not join issue on any one thing, but just disagreed on general principles. "We won," was the way they put it.

Opposed to Mrs. Crosby.

The appearance of Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, who was expelled from the Democratic women's organizations following her support of Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. in the last campaign, caused excitement, and a woman present protested Mrs. Crosby's presence.

"If you are going to expel Mrs. Crosby because she supported Wadsworth," said Mrs. Morse, who presided, "you have got to wipe out the name of many men and women in your own city who didn't vote for Harriet May Mills or Walker. If she cares to come back, her twenty years of work for the Democratic party entitle her to welcome."

None of the speakers who were scheduled appeared. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Thomas Conway were busy helping to elect the new Episcopal Bishop, and Charles D. Donohue made business an excuse. Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse had a sprained ankle. Mrs. Elizabeth Colbert of Albany sent no regrets.

As soon as Mrs. Morse announced that the meeting was called to make certain recommendations to the men's committee, cries of "Who called it?" and "We demand the names of the women who called this meeting" arose.

When quiet had been restored, Miss Rose Rothenberg, Assistant District Attorney, moved to adjourn and the motion was seconded by Miss Anna Matthews of the Nineteenth Assembly District, who is also a supporter of Miss Marbury. It was adopted by a rising vote, and the meeting then reconvened as an unofficial conference.

Mrs. Morse warned the women that the Democratic party in the State was at a "low ebb," and that in many counties there was no women's organization, while in others the men looked with disfavor on a woman's organization. She also referred to the charge that she was opposed to Tammany; and said she thought such a charge was shocking.

Women Suspect Male Opposition.

"I am afraid the men want us to organize as women, and not as persons," said Mrs. Morse. "They are afraid of having women organized too strongly. But women are tired of being just the tail of the kite.

"As for Miss Marbury, I nominated her, although she was not a suffragist and we believed in different methods of organization."

Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany said the women in the party must get together if they were to be treated as persons whose advice was worth something.

"I am sick at heart to hear this morning's bickering," she said. "Let's pull together. The party needs us very badly. Let us not have up-State and city groups, Tammany or independent groups. We are disinterested; we are not out for jobs."

Miss Matthews objected to any one ridiculing Tammany and was greeted with applause which seemed to come from about half those present. Mrs. Morse again repeated that she wasn't opposed to Tammany. "We are all on friendly terms, are we not?" she asked. "Let us all stand up," she appealed, and about fifty of the seventy-five women arose.

Mrs. J. R. Reese, Secretary of the organization, who called the meeting, said that if the up-State women had wanted to do so they could have run the meeting to suit themselves, as they had enough proxies to vote down any local opposition.

"We could have done anything," she exclaimed. "We could have steam rollered it through. You New York women wouldn't have had a chance. We could have disregarded you, but we did not wish to do so."

Mrs. Morse and Mrs. Colbert got most of the votes when recommendations were made for a woman State leader. Others named were Harriet May Mills, Mrs. George R. Hewitt of Carthage, Mrs. Maurice Connolly of Queens, and Mrs. Daniel O'Day of Rye. Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany was recommended as Chairman of the Advisory Board.

DRY LAW CUT SALES OF EMPTY BOTTLES

City Contract Inquiry Witness Says Even Dark Ones Fail to Sell.

Many of the handicaps faced by the city in purchasing its coal supply were described to the Board of Estimate yesterday when it resumed its investigation into city contracts at the City Hall. A statement on the subject, made by the late Thomas V. Patterson, President of the Scranton and Lehigh Coal Company, who died several weeks ago, was read into the record by Assistant Corporation Counsel William B. Carswell.

It was Mr. Patterson's opinion that coal dealers in general did not bid on city contracts because this business was of a competitive nature. His statement pointed out that each year the contract was awarded to the lowest bidder; that it carried with it no good-will; that the contractor one year, due to unforeseen conditions, might lose a great deal of money, and the following year find himself without any city business regardless of how faithfully he had performed his obligations. These and other considerations made it impossible for the coal dealers to take any great interest in doing business with the city.

The purchasing method of the city placed the municipality at a great disadvantage with the large steam producing companies, according to a statement from Patrick Jones, Superintendent of Supplies of the Board of Education, which also was read into the record by Mr. Carswell. Mr. Jones advocated the establishment of large coal pockets where supplies for the city could be maintained, analyzed and graded.

The hearing will be resumed on Monday morning at ten o'clock.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK NEAR PHILADELPHIA

Trenton, Camden and Near-by Points Report Tremors and Damage in Several Places.

RUMOR OF BIG EXPLOSION

But Inquiry Fails to Reveal Any Such Mishap — Houses Unsafe, Chimneys Thrown Down.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—A severe earth shock was felt tonight in Southern New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania. Belief that it had been caused by an explosion caused inquiries to be made at every known explosive plant within a radius of fifty miles, but no evidence was forthcoming to substantiate the explosion theory.

Despite this fact, Professor John A. Miller, in charge of the seismograph at Swarthmore College, insisted that the disturbance could not have been an earthquake, as the instruments in the Swarthmore observatory had failed to register it. He maintained that it must have been due to an explosion.

Virtually every town near Philadelphia felt the shock, which was reported to have been of several seconds' duration, accompanied by a loud rumbling such as trucks make in passing over cobblestone pavements.

Pictures and earthenware tumbled from the walls of the Merion Community House. Other reports came from Trenton, Vincentown, Pemberton, Gloucester and Camden, N. J., all of which felt the shock, although it was not felt in Hammonton and other towns further inland. Wilmington, Del., also was unaware of it until inquiries began to pour in from other cities asking if there had been an explosion.

Shortly after the occurrence, which took place at 6:45 P. M., a deluge of telephone calls came into the Philadelphia newspaper offices and the police stations. The Weather Bureau alone handled more than 100 calls within an hour, but was unable to furnish any information.

From Trenton, N. J., came the report that the shock was particularly violent in the vicinity of Riverside and Riverton, lasting several seconds and causing the townspeople to become badly frightened.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 26.—A violent earth shock was felt early tonight in the vicinity of Riverside and Riverton, where many buildings were badly shaken. The shock lasted several seconds and caused residents to flee in terror. The power plant of the Public Service Corporation in Riverside was shaken and employes badly frightened. Officials of the corporation immediately got in touch with all the power plants from Tullytown, Pa., to Carney's Point to learn if there had been an explosion, but none was reported.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 26.—The whole South Jersey section was shaken at 6:45 o'clock tonight by what is believed to have been an explosion. Chimneys were knocked from houses in Camden, Merchantville and Moorestown. No one was injured.

The explosion, or what was said to have been one, was plainly felt in Camden and Burlington County. The police say that the City Hall in Camden was shaken and that they felt the tremor.

A number of windows were broken in houses in Camden and similar damage is reported from Mount Holly, Riverside, Burlington, Edgewater Park, Moorestown, Merchantville, Gloucester, Riverton and Delanco.

All attempts to find where the explosion took place, if this was the cause of the disturbance, have proved unavailing. The explosion was reported in half a dozen different places, but investigation proved that these were groundless. Others circulated here said that it was not an explosion, but an earthquake tremor.

MILLIONAIRE RED SEIZES 'COMRADE' AS BURGLAR

William Bross Lloyd Traps Intruder in His Home and Ignores Indignant Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—William Bross Lloyd, millionaire Communist, aided by his chauffeur, trapped a burglar in his Winnetka home today and turned him over to the police.

The burglar said he was Hans Christianson of Chicago. Papers in his possession showed him to be a paroled convict. He became indignant after his arrest.

"I'm an I. W. W.," he complained. "I'm a comrade; what does he want to have me pinched for, anyway?"

"I'm not going to permit people to rob me," was Lloyd's reply.

Lloyd was convicted some time ago of conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the Government. He is at liberty under bonds pending an appeal.

ETHEL BARRYMORE TO CONSULT SPECIALISTS

Special to the New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 26.—John Drew, the actor, arrived here today to look after the welfare of his niece, Miss Ethel Barrymore, widely known actress, who has for some weeks been confined to her bed at Christ's Hospital in this city as a result of a serious attack of rheumatism, having been stricken while playing the title role in "Declassee" at the Grand Opera House here.

For a time it was thought possible that her tour might be resumed, but the removal to the hospital from the Sinton Hotel was finally absolutely necessary, together with her little children, who had come on from her New York home when the serious illness was ascertained.

Mr. Drew said tonight that he would first take Miss Barrymore to New York City for a consultation by specialists and then take her to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for a long stay.

HARDING PLAYS GOLF.

Lands From Houseboat at Fort Pierce on His Way South.

FORT PIERCE, Fla., Jan. 26.—President-elect Harding, cruising down the Florida Coast in the houseboat Victoria, came ashore here to play golf and took lunch at a hotel before resuming his voyage southward.

It was his longest visit to land since he left St. Augustine, and so delayed the Victoria that she probably will not complete her run to Miami before Saturday.

The President-elect made two rounds of the nine-hole golf course here, and his houseboat did not get away from her dock until 3 o'clock this afternoon. She anchored tonight about twenty miles to the south of Fort Pierce, and will reach West Palm Beach about noon tomorrow.

Mr. Harding plans to lunch privately there and then, after a game of golf, to depart immediately for Miami.

ATLANTA GREETS COOLIDGE.

Big Crowd Turns Out in Rain to See Vice President-Elect.

ATLANTA, Jan. 26.—Vice President-elect and Mrs. Coolidge were greeted by a crowd of several thousand on their arrival here tonight despite a storm of snow and rain. Mr. Coolidge came to Atlanta to address the Southern Tariff Congress, which convenes tomorrow. Later, with Mrs. Coolidge, he will go to Asheville, N. C., for a vacation of several weeks.

The Vice President-elect was greeted by a reception committee of Atlanta business men, which included Clark Howell, Democratic National Committeeman of Georgia. Tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by U. H. Kirby, President of the Tariff Congress.

ELECT DR. MANNING BISHOP OF NEW YORK

lish Bishop Necessary. Why? Is there No Fit American?"

Under the heading was a picture from "Uncivilised Races," showing a number of naked blacks throwing themselves on the ground before "that Britisher Livingstone.

"The question is," said one paragraph in the editorial, "will distinguished American clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York imitate these dark-skinned heathen when the Reverend Britisher, Dr. Manning of Trinity Church, appears before them today and says 'Fall down, roll over and slap your thighs, for you surely know a superior Englishman when you see him. I want to be elected your Bishop. You need me to ride you with bit and spur.' Will the American clergymen also humbly cry out: 'Kina-bomba!' We think not."

Three news handlers appeared outside the Synod House during the recess for luncheon and began to give away sections of the paper containing this sheet. They were driven off the grounds, but took their place on the sidewalk handing out the papers there.

Delegates Get Papers.

In a few minutes delegates came from the Synod House to obtain copies. Many of them laughed and appeared amused. Others expressed indigation. In a few minutes copies had been distributed in Synod Hall and read by most of the delegates. When the doors were opened to the press in the afternoon most of them had copies.

Next to the reaction caused by the editorials, the outstanding incident of the day came when Dr. Parks attacked the Roman Catholic Church as being likely to make this country "a Romah Catholic Irish Republic."

Dr Parks in nominating Dr. Stires, made a strong plea for Protestantism, as against efforts at unity between the Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches. This was taken to be a thrust at Dr. Manning, who had been praised as a strong advocate of church unity.

"Catholicity like charity should begin at home," said Dr. Parks, "and all those who talk of the desirability of entering into closer relations with the Roman Catholic Church overlook a great question. Either this is the country in which the free religious spirit of the reformation breeds, or it will be a Roman Catholic Irish Republic."

Turning to the gallery in which the newspaper men were seated, he exclaimed: "And the newspapers can make the most of it.

"That is our problem," he continued, "and in facing that problem we have no desire to say one word against that great ancient church of Rome in which there are 'innumerable self-denying priests, saintly sisters and godly men and women. We are talking about a hostile political and religious organization."

The only way in which we can save the Republic of Adams and Hamilton and Jefferson is by a union of spirit among Protestant Americans."

Praise for Dr. Stires.

After paying a glowing tribute to Dr. Stires, the speaker said that a defect attributed to him was his dramatic manner.

"Whatever it is, I am glad he has it," added Dr. Parks. "It is the theatrical instinct that will lead a man to take the centre of the stage when he is playing the leading part. We have known men who, because the centre of the stage was not filled, felt that they were called upon to fill it, although they did not belong there."

Dr. Parks then proceeded in one sentence to combine an allusion to Dr. Manning, who had been represented several days ago as the proper man to apply "curb bits" to certain ministers of the Church, and an allusion to clergymen who gained unwonted prominence by sensational statements in the pre-election controversy.

"We don't want ecclesiastical trials," he said. "We don't want curbing bits, but we do need a man able to take the centre of the stage and allow some of our brethren to retire to the obscurities of parochialism."

Dr. Parks told of his concern over the present state of the diocese.

"We are not here to elect a titular Bishop," he said. "We are here to elect a Bishop of New York in the twentieth century. First of all he must reorganize this diocese from top to bottom, because it is in a state of chaos."

There was some applause, and no rule restrained laughter, which was frequent during the address of Dr. Parks.

Vote for Dr. Grant.

The greatest merriment of the convention followed the announcement that in the final ballot a single vote had been cast for Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, one of the strongest opponents of Dr. Manning. It was Dr. Grant who started the movement in favor of "an American-Born Bishop." The vote for Dr. Grant was taken to be a sly jest at his expense.

The serious defense of Dr. Manning against the charge of being "a Britisher" was undertaken by the Rev. Dr. John P. Peters, a professor in the University of the South, and formerly of this city.

Dr. Peters began by reading one of the telegrams sent out with the editorial in The New York American. He was interrupted by laughter and the muttering of "tut-tut."

"I read that," he continued, "because it has a little half truth that makes it so contemptibly mean. It is not American. It is anti-American. Dr. Manning was born in England. Dr. Manning came to this country as a child. He is a graduate of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., in the most American part, perhaps, of the whole country. He was brought up in that strong American atmosphere."

Dr. Peters then traced step by step the career of Dr. Manning and took up his manner of dealing with the problem of the Trinity tenements, which had been used as a basis for attacks.

"It was this," he said, "which brought me into contact with Dr. Manning. I found him a sincere, earnest man, and he is chiefly responsible for making additions what they are today in Trinity. He has taken a step forward the like of which you won't find when you look back over seventy-five years. He has shown a progressive spirit in relation to the needs of the common people in recognition of the Church's economic-religious obligations."

Plea for Church Unity.

Dr. Peters made a plea for Dr. Manning because of the latter's strong position in favor of Church unity, which later was turned against him by Dr. Parks, who objected to the plan of unity as being an alliance with Roman Catholics.

"I want to see the Church of which I am a member," said Dr. Peters, "back up that great step toward unity, which has been taken in the Lambeth Conference. Dr. Manning has been the principal leader in our own Church in bringing about that approach of Christians of all sorts and kinds which found expression for our own Church in the Lambeth Conference, which five years ago would have been regarded as impossible."

Mr. Baylies said, in presenting the name of Dr. Manning, that, speaking as a layman, he was disappointed with the manner in which the Church had met the oppurtunities offered by the war. He said that Dr. Manning best measured up to the great demands of the Church.

"This is not the election of a Bishop for a minor diocese," he continued. "The country as a whole is looking on, not merely the people of New York City and New York State."

Saying that the diocese was torn by faction and in need of a great leader to direct it, he compared the situation to that of the Allies in France before the selection of Marshal Foch, and presented Dr. Manning to the delegates as an ecclesiastical Foch.

Dr. H. Percy Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, presented the name of Dr. Slattery, extolling his merits as a pastor, with the confidence and affection of his flock and wisdom sufficient to be a "pastor of pastors." This nomination was seconded by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Newton of Hyde Park and the Rev. Dr. Ralph J. Walker.

Bishop Thomas was nominated by the Rev. John MacV. Haight of Christ Church, Pelham Manor. He advocated the election of the Wyoming Bishop because of the impression he had made here and because he was one of the foremost churchmen in dealing with the problem of recruiting the clergy.

Slow in Counting Ballots.

The laymen and clergymen voted separately on each of the three ballots. Because of the complicated scheme of distributing the ballots, it took an average of one hour to deposit and count them. The first ballot was held at 3 o'clock and the count of the last completed shortly after 6 o'clock.

There were 267 clergymen in the convention, each entitled to one vote, and 167 organized parishes, each entitled to one lay vote, with the exception of Trinity Parish, which had four. There also were thirty-seven missions each entitled to one-half of a lay vote. A further complication arose because each parish was entitled to three delegates who and only one vote between them. At least two of the delegates from each parish had to agree on one candidate before they could cast their ballot.

Dr. Manning was the only candidate present throughout the convention. Dr. Stires and Dr. Slattery attended the services in the Cathedral which preceded the election, then went to their homes. After Dr. Stires had announced his retirement by telephone, he returned to the convention hall, arriving just before the final vote.

As scores of delegates surged toward the pew of Dr. Manning when the final vote was read, Dr. Stires called for and obtained recognition. An enthusiastic reception greeted him. It died down, but redoubled when he said:

"I move that the election of Dr. Manning be made unanimous."

Dr. Stires and Dr. Vanderwater then led the newly-elected Bishop to the platform.

"Brethren of the clergy and laity," he said, "it would be impossible for me to say what I feel in the face of the responsibility which you have laid upon me. I can only say that with the help of God, I will do my best. I shall need your prayers and your friendship. And now let us ask the blessing of God on the work of this diocese. Let us pray."

After the prayer, a reception followed and Dr. Manning received congratulations. He was the last to leave the hall, accompanied by his two daughters, Miss Elizabeth van Antwerp Manning and Miss Florence van Antwerp Manning. Mrs. Manning did not attend and learned by telephone of the honor which had been extended her husband.

Debate About Press.

The convention was thrown open to the press only after a long debate on the subject, in which many ministers and laymen took part. There is a rule that such elections should be held behind closed doors. This was suspended by a two-thirds vote in the last convention when Bishop Burch was elected. But the motion to suspend the rule met with opposition yesterday, due in part to the controversy which had been waged by critics and defenders of Dr. Manning.

Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Church, complained that he had been misrepresented in an account quoting him as describing the office of Bishop as "an ornament," and casting ridicule on ordination. He told the convention that what he had said jocularly had been printed as in earnest.

Other clergymen and laymen criticised newspapers on the ground that they had a practice of picking out "high spots" of a proceeding and setting them forth without context or footnotes, in such manner as to change their legitimate meaning.

One or two apologists for the press contended that Episcopal laymen and others interested in such an important occasion should be permitted to obtain all the information they could get through the press. The Rev. Dr. Edward C. Chorley, rector of St. Philip's Church, in Garrison, N. Y., was one of those active in favor of open sessions.

The convention at the morning session voted down the motion to admit the press. But in the afternoon the members reconsidered. After a further debate, closed by the Rev. Dr. Melford L. Brown of the Church of the Ascension in Mount Vernon, who favored publicity, the motion was passed by a vote almost unanimous and the doors were thrown open.

Dr. Manning Silent.

When Dr. Manning was asked last night to comment on the attacks made against him in the Hearst papers, he said:

"I don't want to say anything about that. I don't think it is necessary."

Dr. Manning was a prominent figure at an anti-Hearst mass meeting in Madison Square Garden during the war, when he denounced the publisher for his course then. He also resigned from one of the Mayor's committees during the war when he thought that he perceived Mr. Hearst's influence exercised there.

In a letter to Grover A. Whalen, resigning from the Mayor's Committee of Welcome, Dr. Manning on Dec. 21, 1918, protested against the membership of Mr. Hearst on the committee, saying:

"Mr. Hearst's attitude during this war toward our Allies on the one hand and toward our enemies on the other is a matter of open and public knowledge. In The New York American of June 6, 1915, he defended the sinking of the Lusitania on which American men, women and children were brutally murdered. In my judgment, the appointment of Mr. Hearst on the committee to welcome our returning soldiers is so manifestly improper that all loyal men and women of our city should join in earnest protest against it."

DR. WILLIAM THOMAS MANNING,

DR. MANNING TENTH BISHOP OF NEW YORK

Born in England, He Was Educated Here, and Is an Exponent of Church Unity.

The Rev. Dr. William Thomas Manning becomes the tenth Bishop of New York. He is the first so-called "High Church" Bishop the diocese has had for more than half a century.

Dr. Manning was born May 12, 1866, in Northampton, England. His parents, John and Mrs. Matilda Manning, are living in California.

Dr. Manning attended the Northampton Grammar School and later a private boarding school in Buckinghamshire, England. When he was 16 years old his parents brought him to America and settled in central Nebraska.

The higher education of Dr. Manning was received in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., and the theological seminary connected with the institution. He was graduated in 1893. He was ordained a deacon in 1889 and advanced to the priesthood in 1891.

The first rectorship of Dr. Manning was in Redlands, Cal. He was called back to the University of the South to become Professor of Dogmatic Theology and his next rectorship was in Lansdowne, Pa., where he remained from 1896 to 1898. From Lansdowne he was invited to Christ Church, Nashville, Tenn., remaining there five years, and from Nashville he was called to become vicar of St. Agnes's Chapel, Trinity Parish, in West Ninety-second Street, near Columbus Avenue.

While at St. Agnes's Dr. Manning gained the esteem of the late Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity Parish for more than forty years, and was elected associate rector of Trinity Parish. It was on May 4, 1908, shortly after the death of Dr. Dix, that Dr. Manning was elected his successor.

Dr. Manning stands forth as an apostle of the reunion of Christendom. He has just issued a book on Church unity. He was one of the pioneers in public life who urged that America enter the war and criticised President Wilson from the pulpit of Trinity Church. When we went into the war Dr. Manning wanted to go to France. This was impossible because he was past the age limit. Instead he went to Camp Upton and served for almost a year as a voluntary chaplain.

Since the war Dr. Manning has devoted some of his time to the propaganda of what is known as the Congressional Concordat. This would permit clergymen of other Protestant churches to receive additional ordination at the hands of an Anglican Bishop and still continue their denomination, but with the privilege of administering the sacraments of the Episcopal Church under prescribed conditions.

Dr. Manning has never been ill since he came to New York, and works eighteen hours a day.

COAST MOUNTAINS MOVING.

Great Strain on the Earth Reported by California Scientist.

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 26.—The mountains of the coast range in the vicinity of San Francisco are moving slowly northward, causing enormous earth strain and producing rebounds, in one of which Mount Tamalpais jumped back 6.6 feet, according to Professor A. C. Lawson of the University of California in a geological bulletin, made public today.

Tamalpais moved northward 10 feet between the years 1854 and 1906, and then hopped back 6.6 feet in 1906, at the time of the San Andreas slip, which caused the great earthquake of that year, Professor Lawson asserted.

Mount Hamilton, near San José, he said, moved northward at the rate of 4 feet a year from 1863 to 1903, but after a sudden shift in that year continued at the rate of 2.2 feet.

Women to Demand Cheaper Pies.

Mrs. Louis Reed Welsmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, announced yesterday that a conference would be held in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall on Feb. 3 between representatives of bakers of pies, pastries and cake and women's organizations for the purpose of urging the bakers to made reductions in prices. Mrs. Welsmiller said that the women will begin a campaign of "Bake Your Own" unless prices are reduced. She said that the Women's Municipal League and other women's organizations, with a membership of upward of 150,000, were pledged to support the movement.

GANGSTER IN AUTO KILLS FOE IN STREET

Tenement Block in East 107th Street Scene of a Mysterious Tragedy.

VICTIM WAS A CHAUFFEUR

One Assassin Concealed Himself in Car and Shot Victim as He Walked Away.

Between the teeming tenements of a Harlem street, thronged with children and home-going workers, gangsters last night staged an old-time gun duel, killed a man and got away.

Crouched down on the driver's seat of an inclosed automobile used as an ambuscade, one of the gunmen fired eight of the twenty shots discharged in the battle.

At 8 o'clock in East 107th Street, between Second and Third Avenues, where Italian, Hungarian, Bohemian and Greek make one of the city's most crowded foreign quarters, the passersby paid no heed when a 1920 model Cadillac sedan, glossily out of place there, pulled up to the curb diagonally across from the café of A. Gagliano, at 227 East 107th Street. Hence no one could be found later to say whether the chauffeur left the machine to enter a tenement or whether, as the police believed, he slumped down in the car to await, unseen, an opportunity.

Then came the sharp report of a revolver. Another, another; two in quick succession and finally uneven volleys. The street cleared like magic; a pane dropped into the street from the queerly-lettered front of a shop. From doorways heads cautiously poked out saw three, four—some said six—men manoeuvring in the street for shots. The smoke, if the witnesses, frightened to talk to the police, told the truth, obscured the scene in the street.

In maybe five minutes the firing stopped and the smoke drifted away. Detectives Quaine and Behan of the East 104th Street Station arrived. The street was empty, save for the machine shining under the street lamp and a form lying in the small areaway in front of Gagliano's saloon.

Surgeons from Reception Hospital, who pronounced the man dead upon their arrival, found six bullet wounds in his body. The police found a chauffeur's card and letters in the man's vest pocket. They bore the name of George Terranova of 1,138 First Avenue.

Reserves from the East 104th Street Station were called to form lines to shut off entrance or exit in East 107th Street. Then policemen and detectives went from house to house endeavoring to get witnesses. They found few and these few could tell little.

Mr. Gagliano was questioned by Detective Behan. He denied that he knew the dead chauffeur and said that he had not come from his café. He also told the police that the shooting occurred six or seven doors down the street from the café. Other detectives noticed the car, apparently abandoned, and examined it. They found eight bullet punctures in the windshield. The machine bore the license plate of 263-306 N. Y., the police said, and records at Police Headquarters disclosed that number was issued to Giovanni Recorora of 1,122 First Avenue.

Investigating the ownership of the car, the police later established that Terranova had been employed as a chauffeur for Pecorora and had driven the machine into 107th Street. They said they believed that Terranova left the car and had started across the street when his seat was taken by one of the gangsters.

Another witness questioned by the detectives was Benjamin Haberman, phonograph salesman, of 1,738 Madison Avenue. He said that he had been visiting a friend in 107th Street and was just leaving the vestibule when the firing began. Haberman, the police said, was afraid of getting hit and stepped back into the hallway, but not before he had observed several broad flashes from a weapon in the hands of a man standing in front of 233 East 107th Street.

After hearing this story the detectives searched the house and said they found a double-barreled shotgun in the backyard. No other trace of the man who had escaped that way was found, however.

ALL TO BE SEARCHED FOR ARMS AT TRIAL

Judge at Williamson, W. Va., Warns 23 Defendants in Nine Murder Cases.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 26.—The presence of an armed man in Circuit Court here today at the opening of the trials of twenty-three defendants charged with murder in connection with the killing of ten persons at Matewan last May caused Judge R. D. Bailey to issue an order directing that all persons who enter the court room hereafter be searched for arms.

A few minutes before adjournment was taken, and while witnesses and spectators were making for the door, an attorney for the State startled the persons present by telling Judge Bailey that one of the defendants was armed. An instant hush fell upon the confusion, and a moment later the Judge issued his order directing Sheriff A. C. Pinson to search all persons entering the court room tomorrow and thereafter. The defendants were warned that any one of them found with a weapon in his possession would be placed in jail until the trials come to an end.

One of the twenty-four original defendants, B. R. Page, a negro, failed to appear in court today, and his bond was declared forfeited. The other twenty-three defendants were on hand. More than eighty witnesses responded when their names were called, but the rollcall revealed that about 100 witnesses were absent.

The defendants are Sid Hatfield, chief of police of Matewan; Reece Chambers, William Bowman, Clair Overstreet, "Doug" Mounts, Jesse Boyd, Isaac Brewer, Charles Kiser, Ben Mounts, William B. Coleman, Ed Chambers, Lee Taylor, James Overstreet, Fred Burgraft, "Al" Williams, B. R. Page, Fred Webb, Van Cline, Albert Burgraft, Calvin McCoy, Hallie Chambers, N. H. Atwood, William Stare, and Ezra Fry, the latter a union organizer.

The indictments charge that they killed Albert C. Felts, Lee Felts, J. W. Ferguson, A. J. Booher, E. O. Powell, C. T. Cunningham, and C. T. Higgins, all employes of the Baldwin-Felts Detective Agency. In addition to the indictment for murder, Hatfield was indicted for stealing $700 from the body of Albert Felts, and others of the defendants for stealing weapons belonging to the dead detectives.

PRINT PAPER INQUIRY ASKED IN SENATE

Senator Harris Wants to Know Reason for High Prices—No Shortage, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A resolution requesting the Federal Trade Commission to inquire into the price of print paper during 1920 and to ascertain whether or not "the newspapers of the United States are being subjected to unfair practices in the sale of print paper" was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Harris.

The Senator explained that he was anxious to ascertain why present high prices continue to be charged for print paper "when all other prices of manufactured articles have suffered big declines." He charged that newspapers in contracting for their 1921 supplies were forced to make contracts in which paper manufacturers reserved the right to fix their own prices subject to quarterly readjustments.

There was no real shortage of print paper, Senator Harris said. He added that information furnished him by publishers was to the effect that white paper was now offered on the open market at a lower price than that covered by contracts with the big companies who usually control the situation.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Exports of Canadian paper jumped from $74,424,912 for the nine months ending December, 1919, to $132,915,989 for the same period last year. The figures were given out today by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, which stated that the increase for December, 1920, over the same months in 1919 totaled $4,813,711.

DENIKIN AID A SUICIDE IN RIVIERA HOTEL

Russian Colonel, Forced to Become Porter, Lost Honor at Gaming Table.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Colonel Sergius Chaminsky, a Russian, who fought under Denikin and came to France on a mission from his chief last year, committed suicide in a Riviera hotel on Monday. For the last few months he had been a porter in the hotel, where previously he had stayed as a guest.

The story is one of a peculiar tragedy. Chaminsky, who was a man of great wealth in his own country, had, when he arrived here, only moderate resources. Like many of his countrymen in this time of enforced idleness he drifted to the Riviera and there began to gamble. For a time his luck held, but when the turn came with amazing suddenness he lost his entire fortune at baccarat.

Unable even to pay his hotel bill, he accepted a post as a porter, but the passion for gambling had seized him and he tried to raise money on a worthless check. When he was arrested the Magistrate, in view of his past career, gave him time to meet the debt, but he was unable to do so and the disgraced Colonel took his own life.

Reports from the Riviera show that gambling figures are likely to make a record this season. One well known Englishman the other day won over $75,000 at baccarat in three sittings. On the other side of the picture, the amount paid out by pawnbrokers at Nice last Saturday reached the record figure of 1,250,000 francs. During the last year 1,207,000,000 francs were placed at pari mutuel booths on horse racing in France.

CANNOT STOP BUILDING, DECLARES DANIELS

He Says It Would Be a "Fatal Mistake" to Adopt Borah's Suggestion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—It would be be "a fatal mistake" to stop work for six months on the six great battle cruisers under construction for the American Navy, Secretary Daniels said today in discussing Senator Borah's resolution, adopted yesterday by the Senate, asking the Senate Naval Committee whether it would be feasible and advisable to stop naval building for that length of time.

Work on these ships was held up last year by Secretary Daniels until he and technical experts of the navy could meet Europe to confer with Admiralty officials there as to what type of capital ships would best serve naval needs in the future. Mr. Daniels yesterday instructed the Navy General Board to give further consideration to this question, as also to other types of war craft, and he said today that the board had been asked to submit its report early next month.

FORD TRACTOR PRICE CUT.

Reduction is $165—Prices May Rise if Big Sales Fail.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—A reduction of $165 in the price of Fordson tractors, effective immediately, was announced today by Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company. The tractor formerly sold for $790 and has been listed under the order at $625.

"This price change has been made possible through lower costs of materials and the fact that we are now located in our new tractor plant with greatly increased economic manufacturing facilities in immediate connection with our foundry and machine shops and large blast furnaces," Mr. Ford said.

"There is no change in present Ford car and truck prices, which are already at the lowest possible figure, and now, with rock bottom reached in the tractor price, a further reduction in price of either the car, truck or tractor is out of the question. In fact, the big price cuts have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum production and increases may be necessary before long if a large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible increases."

ANOTHER QUITS FORD FIRM.

Director of Its Five Corporations in Europe Resigns.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—Warren C. Anderson, Director of the five Ford Motor Company corporations in Europe and chief representative of the American company, with offices in London and Paris, resigned today.

Mr. Anderson placed his written resignation from each of the companies on the desk of Edsel Ford, President, soon after noon. Both Edsel Ford and Henry Ford were in conference with a group of Eastern bankers, and Mr. Anderson was unable to see them personally.

No reason was given for the resignation.

FORD'S GAIN NOW 2,642.

Detroit Still to Be Recounted in Contest for Newberry's Seat.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The election plurality of about 7,500 of Senator Newberry, of Michigan, had been cut into by Henry Ford, his Democratic opponent, to the extent of 2,642 votes, with 1,641 of the 2,222 State precincts recanvassed, when the day's work of the Senate Privileges and Election Committee was concluded tonight.

The recount thus far has covered all Michigan counties except Wayne, in which Detroit is situated. In that county Senator Newberry received 33,402 votes and Mr. Ford 62,091 in the election two years ago, and it is expected that several days will be required for recounting these votes.

SCHWAB 'GRATEFUL' WHEN EXONERATED

Praises Committee's "Thoroughness and Fairness" in Sifting "Unfounded Charge."

MORSE ISSUES STATEMENT

Believes Schwab Innocent, but Insists "Improper Charges Were Made"—Would Reopen Case.

The action of the Congressional Committee on Shipping Board Operations, informally announcing in Washington yesterday that it exonerated Charles M. Schwab of the charge that he was reimbursed by the Government for his expenses while Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was followed by a statement from Mr. Schwab in which he "appreciated beyond words" the steps the committee had taken to clear his name of the "unfounded charge that had been so widely circulated."

At the same time, Perley Morse, head of the firm of certified accountants that discovered the voucher for $269,543, representing the "special expenses" of Mr. Schwab, of which $100,000 was alleged to have been charged to the cost of ship construction, also asserted that "down in his heart" he did not believe Mr. Schwab was in the least acquainted with the manner in which the voucher had been handled. He felt certain that Mr. Schwab did not know that any part of it was charged to ship construction at the time the audit was begun by Perley Morse & Co. in February, 1920.

Nevertheless, Mr. Morse asserted that he would try to reopen the question of "improper charges against ship construction," with reference to "thousands of misapplied items" which he said his accountants had found in investigating Shipping Board contracts.

Statement Issued by Schwab.

When Mr. Schwab was informed that the Congressional Committee had found the insinuations untrue and unfounded, he issued the following statement:

"I appreciate beyond words the action of the Walsh Committee in so promptly exonerating me from the unfounded charge that has been so widely circulated. I am deeply grateful to the committee for the thoroughness and fairness with which they took up the investigation of the charge the moment it was made.

"I cannot forbear adding an expression of my appreciation of the spontaneous expressions of confidence and sympathy of Congressman Foster at the close of my testimony of yesterday.

"I take this opportunity of thanking the hundreds of people in all parts of the country who have sent me messages expressing their sympathy and confidence, to all of whom I shall write as promptly as possible."

Mr. Morse also expressed sympathy for Mr. Schwab, whom he believed to be innocent of anything improper. But, he said, he could not change the facts revealed by his accountants.

"The fact is, as I have testified, said Mr. Morse, "that the voucher was found in the 'General and administrative accounts, general,' and that this was the account in which those things were put so that they later could be prorated to the different shipyards, appearing as charges against the cost of ship construction. Why didn't they charge the $100,000 item to profit and loss in the first case? This matter won't down.

"The Schwab expense voucher is just the merest incident; thousands of misapplied items we found in our investigation of the cost of ship construction. These items are shown on hundreds of large typewritten sheets in my possession. I was prepared to show them to the Shipping Board Committee if they had asked me about them.

Bears No Ill Will Toward Schwab.

"I bear no ill will toward Mr. Schwab. I don't believe I ever met him before last Friday night. The ones who are to blame for the distress that has been caused him are his subordinates, who should have known how to handle the charges for his expenses.

"The facts are as I have stated in my testimony, although I don't know what has happened to the books since these items were found."

Reverting to the interview between himself and Mr. Schwab, Mr. Morse said the facts as related by Mr. Schwab were substantially correct, unless they conveyed the impression that Mr. Morse sought the interview through their mutual friend, Edwin Wildman, managing editor of the Forum. He denied that he had taken the initiative in trying to arrange the meeting.

An opposite view was taken by some of Mr. Schwab's friends, including Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. He said that when Mr. Schwab, himself and H. A. Moore, of counsel for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, were approached by Mr. Wildman, they had no reason to suspect Mr. Wildman had been prompted by anything except his desire to see justice done to all concerned.

"But we have since learned," said Mr. Grace, "that Mr. Wildman had dinner with Mr. Morse the night before he came to our table at the Pennsylvania, and I don't care how strong you put it."

CHARGE UNTRUE, SAYS STEELE

Issues a Statement Exonerating Schwab—Other Members Concur.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A statement given out today by Representative Steele of the Committee Investigating Shipping Board Operations exonerated Charles M. Schwab of the charge of receiving payment from the Government for personal expenses while Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. The statement follows:

"When asked if he cared to make any statement relative to this hearing held by the Select Committee on Shipping Board Expenditures on the charge that Charles M. Schwab had received payment for expenses which were charged against the Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation to ship construction cost, Mr. Steele replied that the members of the committee, who heard all the testimony and saw the documents, were satisfied that the charge was not proven, and further that it was not true.

"He further said that this statement was made with the knowledge and consent of the members of the committee."

The Select Committee is not ready to send its report to Congress yet. Some committee members said Mr. Steele's statement should not be taken as an official vindication of Mr. Schwab, but it seemed to be generally agreed that it amounted to a private exoneration of the charges.

It is said no further witnesses will be called in connection with the Schwab matter unless a special hearing is demanded.

HEAD OF I. M. M. TAKES ISSUE WITH DENMAN

P. A. S. Franklin Says He Sent Copy of British Agreement to Former Shipping Official.

P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, departed for Washington yesterday to appear before the U. S. Shipping Board today in the investigation concerning the agreement made by his company with the British Government in April, 1906. Before he left he said he had received the following telegram from William Denman, former Chairman of the United States Shipping Board:

Chicago, Jan. 25, 1921.

P. A. S. Franklin, 9 Broadway, New York, N. Y.:

I cannot now comply with your telegram requesting me to deny certain recent press statements to which it refers, as I have not read them. However, they are correct if they state that you won my confidence as Chairman of the Shipping Board during the war and also my personal friendship when we were planning for the future of our commercial marine development. They are also correct if they state this was while you were concealing from the Council of National Defense which appointed you my adviser and from me the secret agreement binding you and the International Mercantile Marine to the British. How far you had won this confidence and friendship is apparent from my testimony before the Walsh committee.

This was given before Senator Jones exposed the agreement to the public. If the publication states that I believe you concealed this secret agreement from General Goethals and Mr. Hurley, it is correct in this also. If the statements in this wire prevent any American in public life from giving such confidence as I gave, they have accomplished their purpose. Unless America has a full list of her Anglo-un-American administrators who are seeking to secure our tonnage, our struggle for our fair share in the dominion of the seas is hopeless. The list would be discouraging, but American resolution is sufficient for the encounter once our decks are cleared for action. WILLIAM DENMAN.

To this Mr. Franklin replied as follows:

New York, Jan. 26, 1921.

William Denman, en route to San Francisco:

Your telegram from Chicago received, and I am quite sure it was sent under a misapprehension, for on March 21, 1917, you wrote me acknowledging receipt from me of copy of the agreement with the British Government referred to by Senator Jones. This agreement has never been secret, as it was published officially by the Department of Commerce and Labor in 1903 and by the public press at the same time.

P. A. S. FRANKLIN,
President International Mercantile Marine Company.

Mr. Franklin said his message referred to a letter sent by him on March 19, 1917. He gave out a copy. In it he had said:

"This agreement does not affect our American flag steamers. As we only have two copies of it in this office, I am having a copy of it made for you and will forward it to you in a few days."

FRENCH HESITATE ABOUT INDEMNITY

Undecided Whether They Want Germany Ruined but Powerless or Able to Pay but Strong.

LLOYD GEORGE IMPATIENT

View in Paris That Game of Cross Purposes Is Being Played in Allied Council.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The real trouble with the present Allied Conference, as with similar meetings last year, is that the French cannot make up their minds whether they want Germany ruined but powerless or Germany able to pay but strong—whether they prefer to get no money but feel secure or get their money and have always to take German revenge into account.

Naturally enough, the French would like both to have their cake and eat it. They feel very strongly in their hearts that they have the right to get paid and the right to feel secure for the future. That might have been possible had the first Peace Conference gone differently. Now it is too late; they have got to choose between one and the other.

Their primitive state of mind—the state of mind at the time the Chamber of Deputies was elected in November, 1919—was in favor of having security at any cost. Provided Germany was powerless the French did not so much worry about her paying, or perhaps, rather, they had not yet realized that they could not have Germany powerless and get their money as well. It was in that spirit that M. Millerand went to San Remo last Spring, where Lloyd George was not slow to open his eyes to the problem as the rest of the world saw and sees it.

Did the French want to tear away the last shreds of authority from the Central Government of Germany by insisting on total disarmament? Did they propose to hang a millstone of crushing debt about the neck of the German people? Surely they must see that it was impossible. A whole people of 60,000,000 souls could not be forced into servitude today.

Brought to See a Light.

All last year was spent in gradually bringing French statesmen around to the realization that this was the case. In addition to the pressure of growing sentiment in the rest of the world, that for economic reasons vital to all Germany must not be forced into ruin and chaos, the French rulers came to see for themselves that if France was ever to be stable financially she must obtain payment from Germany, and that she could not obtain payment from Germany unless the latter was allowed to regain a measure of prosperity.

This process of evolution on the part of the French was completed by their awakening last Autumn to the true gravity of their financial position. Horrified at the sight of the gulf of billions open before France's feet, Millerand and Leygues swung nearly over to England's view that Germany must be allowed to make up her leeway in order that by paying for part at least of French reparations she should save France and herself from ruin.

At the beginning of the year the situation in France was as follows: The Government and nation appeared to be willing at last to make up their minds about the German problem. They were looking forward to an interallied conference at which France should decide for a Germany able to pay but strong. The country had failed to grow excited over the revelations of ex-War Minister Lefèvre regarding German plans for revenge and the concealed strength of German arms. There was a general feeling that what France most needed, and needed quickly, was to get paid, and that if even that should involve the return of Germany to prosperity, France could protect herself against aggression.

On Jan. 9 the Senatorial elections appeared to confirm this view. Instead of a great Nationalist victory as in the Chamber elections of the year before a majority of the Senators returned were Liberals. It seemed that the practical business sense of the French people had definitely replaced the war fever. But that very election gave alarm to the Nationalist majority in the Chamber. Immediately they overthrew Leygues and demanded that the Government should "stand firm for France against Germany," which they meant should utilize the letter of the treaty to try and achieve the impossible by crushing Germany to earth and getting their money as well.

In face of their demands it was all M. Millerand could do to avoid having as Premier M. Poincaré, who represented the Nationalist view in its extremest form. The choice of M. Briand was the sole compromise possible. Left to himself, Briand would doubtless be willing to take much the same stand as Leygues, namely, that provided France got paid Germany may be allowed to recover. But the Nationalists showed him pretty clearly in the Chamber last week that he was holding his position on sufferance and that if he did not "stand firm" he would have to give way to some one who would.

Poincare Waiting His Chance.

That some one—former President Poincaré—is waiting with the patient eagerness of a cat at a mousehole. So that Briand is virtually a prisoner of his own majority. Whatever be his private opinions on the subject he is forced to advocate their view. The result is that France today is back where she was a year ago and the conference is being vitiated almost before it has begun by her inability to decide what she really wants.

With this fundamental point unsettled, it is useless to split hairs about reparations. Until it is settled there can be no progress not only on reparations but on any other question concerning Germany. It may seem incredible to Americans that such can be the truth about a clear-minded people like the French. It is the truth, however, though it must be remembered that in this case their minds are obscured by age-old prejudice and that the situation is complicated by internal politics.

At Monday's session it was evident that Lloyd George could not get the French angle at all. He was positively testy with Marshal Foch, who represents the out-and-out haters of Germany that want her crushed to dust and are determined to get money as well. Lloyd George did not understand the Marshal's apparent failure to realise that France could not get both, and when the Marshal referred to the occupation of the Ruhr as a kind of panacea that would accomplish the double object the British Premier nearly lost patience.

All this means that the French and British today are playing a game of cross purposes as far as any hope of getting results is concerned. Which is not an auspicious conclusion with regard to the much-heralded conference that was finally to heal the wounds of suffering Europe.

LLOYD GEORGE ANNOYED.

Resents French Press Criticism and Threatens to Shun Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 26. — Premier Lloyd George is understood to have taken umbrage at an article in a Paris newspaper criticising his attitude on various questions now being discussed by the Supreme Allied Council, and has complained bitterly to Premier Briand regarding the tone of the French press, says the Oeuvre.

"Since I am treated this way," the newspaper quotes Mr. Lloyd George as saying, "I tell you I will never come to Paris again."

M. Briand, in consequence of this protest, appealed to newspaper reporters last night to use more moderation in writing of the work of the Supreme Council.

"I am not supported by all of you," he declared. "Indiscretions, even pure inventions, were printed this morning, which do not please my interlocutors. If that goes on you will make it impossible for any more meetings to be held in Paris."

GERMANY REVIVING, BRITISH ARE TOLD

Report to Board of Trade Says Industry Is Sound if National Bankruptcy Can Be Avoided.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press). —In an official report to the Board of Trade from the British Embassy in Berlin on the industrial and economic situation in Germany, Secretary Thelwall declares that, reviewing the last two years, it is impossible not to be struck by the evidences of improvement in all departments of public and private life, with the important exception of State finance.

Germany's chief weakness, he says, is her inability to arrest the outflow of paper money, and if ultimate financial collapse is to be avoided the question arises as to how she can be saved. The time has passed when an international loan or credit would suffice.

Secretary Thelwall thinks that though it still shows signs of weakness, the Government's authority has steadily increased and that the Socialists are the great element of strength outside than inside the Cabinet. The State machine is described as too cumbersome, owing to a plethora of officials; but the country is slowly getting accustomed to the new rule and is more inclined to obey it.

In conclusion, he considers that German trade and industry are sound in themselves if national bankruptcy can be avoided and neither Germany herself nor any one else has any interest in bringing this about.

GERMAN-AMERICANS STIRRED BY ATTACK

Visitor from Berlin Said to Have Criticised Their Attitude Toward War.

DENOUNCED ON PLATFORM

Quoted as Urging Hearers to "Get After Congress" to Get African Troops Out of Germany.

Introduced by Dr. Edmund von Mach as a correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, Erich von Salzmann aroused the displeasure of many delegates of the United German Societies in New York, meeting in Maennerchor Hall, 203 East Fifty-sixth Street, Monday night by a speech in which it is alleged he criticised German-Americans. Charles A. Oberwager, Vice President of the societies, because so incensed that he denounced the visiting journalist from the platform as the type responsible for much of the criticism against American citizens of German extraction.

Mr. Oberwager yesterday related his version of the incident to a reporter for THE TIMES. It was corroborated by another delegate who withheld his name.

"I went to the meeting because I had read that I was to speak on blue laws," Mr. Oberwager said. "When I got there Dr. von Mach was speaking about a mass meeting to be held next month to protest against the presence of African soldiers in the area of occupation. He asked permission to introduce a Mr. von Salzmann.

"Mr. von Salzmann had not spoken many minutes before I took mental exception to his remarks. It seemed to me outside the province of a visiting journalist to tell American citizens what they should do. It incensed me when he said, 'you must organize meetings against the presence of these African troops in Germany. Get after the present Congress and if it won't do anything get after the next Congress.' And again when he said, 'the Germans look to the Germans in this country for support.'

"I went to the platform and when he finished I denounced him. I said, 'what right has this man to come here and tell us what to do? It is people of his kind who are responsible for all the worry and misery of German-Americans. The war is over and there are just two propositions confronting us as American citizens. The first is: let us feed the starving women and children in Europe, and the second, more sociological than political, is in regard to the colored soldiers in German areas.'"

According to another version, von Salzmann blamed the German-Americans for supporting the war, but this was denied by Mr. Oberwager. The Rev. William Popoke, President of the societies, at his home, 338 East Eighty-fourth Street, said he did not recall the substance of von Salzmann's talk.

Dr. von Mach could not be reached.

URGES BIG INDEMNITY TO BE PAID IN GOLD

suits as to reparations will come out of this week's meeting.

M. Doumer presented to the allied Ministers this morning the situation in which France found herself, a situation which means, he contended, that she must realize on the German reparations account or shut down reconstruction work. He gave evidence that Germany was able to pay ever so much more than she pretended. Then he emphasized the necessity of France protecting her own industries against flooding with German products as reparation payments.

What the Germans Have Paid.

In reply to the contention of the Germans that they had paid a great deal he said that of the amount claimed to have been paid France's share was theoretically 9,500,000,000 marks gold. But after deducting what France had advanced to feed Germany after the armistice, the cost of the Army of Occupation and advances for coal there remained only about 200,000,000 marks gold. There had been included in the total 2,500,000,000 for German Government property left in Alsace-Lorraine. In as much as this brought no money to the French Government France stood half a billion marks worse off than before the German payments.

He pointed out that the proposed payments of 15,000,000,000 marks for the next five years would not pay the deficit of 35,000,000 000 francs the French now carry on account of money expended for reparations and said that France must find some way of realizing quickly.

The reading of his report brought a decision by the Ministers to consider first how Germany could pay or be made to pay. This, it cannot be overemphasized, is a most complicated matter. There are three ways in which one Government can pay its obligations to another—gold, goods and service. To take away Germany's gold would help pay the indemnity, but would debase the already low value of the mark in a radical manner. It is then in service or goods or both that allies must be chiefly paid.

The possible rendering of service is not a big factor, and the problem reduces itself to Germany's payment in goods. It can readily be seen that it is not feasible for Germany to send what goods she pleases, in what amounts she pleases, into France, Belgium and England. That would mean the ruin of many industries in the allied countries. Therefore, it is held, it is through credits Germany acquires and by exports to other countries, as well as the allied countries, that the indemnity must be paid.

For instance, if Germany sold locomotives to Russia for Russian bills good for wheat, those bills could be handed over to the allied countries who need to import wheat. In the same way German bills in all countries could be paid over to the Allies. This, of course, presents difficulties with almost endless ramifications.

The Question of Taxation.

The Allies under the treaty have the right to insist that German taxation be as high as in any allied country, and to see that the German Government does not misappropriate its funds. This, many allied statesmen think, means that action is needed. England is paying £23 per head in taxes, France is paying about £14, while Germany is paying about £8. It is one of the English contentions that the Germans should be taxed an amount equal to what Englishmen pay. One difficulty in this connection is that the Germans are paying in depreciated marks, and unquestionably to make them pay in marks equivalent to £23 would be a heavy undertaking.

It is also the contention of the French that Germany is not trying to restore herself fiscally, charging that the endless emission of paper money works to the benefit of the big German industrials who sell for high foreign money, guard most of their credits abroad and pay their labor in cheap marks.

Another French contention shared to a great extent by the British is that the German Government is purposely wasting money. They hold that there is no excuse for the German railroads, which made a profit before the war, running now at a deficit of 22,000,000,000 marks annually, and the same is said of the German postal service. They point to a recent subvention of 1,000,000 marks for the State Theatre at Wiesbaden and half a million for that in Treaven and a billion for the Leipzig Fair as expenditures which might better be devoted to indemnity payments.

The French have a secret report showing that the German Government appropriated half a billion marks for propaganda work in Upper Silesia, where a plebiscite is soon to be held. It is alleged that German industrials are lending vast sums in marks to the countries of Central Europe whose exchange is lower. It is also charged that the German system of giving long credits right and left is intended to place wealth where the Allies cannot get it.

It is argued that Germany is the only big country in the world where there is no unemployment and that Germany is industrially in a good position, regardless of the fact that its Government is in bad shape financially.

This complicated situation lends great weight to Mr. Lloyd George's contention that it is better to consult the Germans than to lay down a sum and call on them to pay it or that military action will be taken. He points out that the real reparations questions is how to make Germany pay. Nevertheless, he holds to the theme that the total sum must be fixed in order to "write the balance sheet, not only of Europe, but of the world."

It is quite true that perhaps statesmen never faced a more complicated question, politically or economically, than that of reparation by Germany of the war damage. The more statesmen in Paris today delve into the matter the more often one hears the expression that it is no wonder the writers of the Versailles Treaty left this problem to their successors.

Today's session illustrates the great difficulties of the situation. The English will probably object formally to the size of the French estimate. The French will reply that the English estimate is too low, and Briand will then come back to his proposal that the Allies shall wait until they see what Germany can eventually pay. The reparations debate will be continued tomorrow.

Day's Work of the Council.

PARIS, Jan 26 (Associated Press).—The members of the Allied Supreme Council spent most of the day in private conversations discussing reparations. The two meetings of the Council were devoted to hearing the statement of the French Minister of Finance, M. Doumer, on reparations, and in considering the status of former Russian States.

It was decided this afternoon that Letvia and Esthonia shall be recognized as sovereign States. Action regarding Lithuania and Georgia was deferred pending further information. It is expected that Georgia's representative will be heard during the present conference of the Council, but the decision with regard to Lithuania may be delayed until the result of the League of Nations plebiscite in the Vilna region is known.

Premier Lloyd George and President Millerand had occasion at lunch to discuss at some length the report on reparations made by Mr. Doumer. Immediately after adjournment of the afternoon session Mr. Lloyd George and M. Jaspar and Colonel Theunys, respectively Foreign Minister and Finance Minister of Belgium, went into conference in Mr. Lloyd George's apartment, presumably regarding the same subject.

Reparations will again come before the Council tomorrow, along with the military experts' report on disarmament. This report gives satisfaction to the French viewpoint on the question, providing for full compliance with all disarmament clauses of the Versailles Treaty.

It concedes to Great Britain a further delay, which was asked for on Monday before the Supreme Council by Premier Lloyd George. Two-thirds of the operation of disarmament must be completed by March 1, and the work must be finished by July 1. This decision means that Einwohnerwehr, or civil guards, and the security police must be disbanded, as must all other similar organizations not allowed by the Treaty of Versailles.

carried handcuffs, and are alleged also to have had with them a bottle containing some unknown fluid.

The men are said to have been promised a reward of 50,000 marks each in case they were successful in seizing Bergdoll and Stecher and taking them into the occupied sector. After the arrest of the members of the search party some one of them admitted having been in Eberbach for some time shadowing the fugitive Americans. They spent money freely while here, gathering information concerning the movements of Bergdoll and Stecher.

Baker Surprised at Attempt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The War Department was without information today regarding the alleged attempt of American military intelligence officials to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft evader, near Berlin. Secretary Baker expressed surprise at cabled reports of the incident founded on a German newspaper account. He said he did not believe any army official would join in any such enterprise.

Mr. Baker refused to confirm the report that Bergdoll was in Germany, but did say that his case had been referred to the State Department. This was taken as indicating that the War Department had such information.

Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wanted by the United States authorities on the charge of being a draft evader, was arrested in the home of his mother, widow of a wealthy Philadelphia brewer, in January, 1920. He was tried, convicted of being a deserter from the army and sentenced to five years at hard labor. He began serving the sentence on March 30 last.

He was permitted to go home to Philadelphia in the custody of two guards on May 20 on the plea that he wished to get $150,000 in gold which he had hidden in Maryland while a fugitive. The following day he left his home by a way unknown, jumped into his automobile and fled with Isaac Stecher, his chauffeur.

Later he was reported to have been seen in the area of Germany occupied by the American forces, and a man named J. W. Hartman, who said he was from Philadelphia, on arriving in the United States from Europe in November last, claimed he had caused the arrest of Bergdoll in Coblenz. This report was promptly denied by officers at Governors Island. A cable dispatch on Nov. 2 said that Bergdoll had been seen in the vicinity of Karlsruhe and other places in Baden. It was believed by authorities working on the case that from Philadelphia Bergdoll traveled by automobile to Minnesota and thence to Winnipeg, Canada. Here it was believed he obtained a false passport from a returned soldier, which enabled him to get to Holland.

How About Prices?

—a question which must confront every thinking man. Chaotic conditions have produced uncertainties—but one thing is certain. Clothing prices because labor costs have been in no way reduced and because present abnormally low prices are the result of drastic sacrifices on the part of manufacturer and retailer. Neither can continue to do business on this basis for more than a short time. Therefore, to make it possible for business to go on, prices

Must Go Higher

It is the inevitable swing of the pendulum. This sale of overcoats comes right at the lowest drop before the upward swing starts. It is a sale which offers the finest type of coats at savings that only abnormal times could bring.

PREDICTS A RECORD IMMIGRATION RUSH

Caminetti Tells Senators It Is Due Before July 1, Unless Barred by Law.

SENATE HEARINGS CLOSED

Chairman Colt Thinks House Bill Will Be Radically Amended by His Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Senate Immigration Committee today concluded its hearings on the Johnson bill calling for the practical suspension of immigration for one year, after having heard the views of Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration.

"What the public is most apprehensive about," Senator Colt said after the conclusion of the hearings, "is the number of aliens who are coming to America. We could allay fear in this respect by fixing a maximum for the number to be admitted annually."

Chairman Colt expressed the opinion that the committee would look with favor on provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Dillingham, Republican, of Vermont, which would restrict immigration on a percentage system based on the number of aliens from various countries already admitted to the United States.

Members of the committee were also said to favor certain features of the Sterling bill restricting immigration and at the same time providing for the appointment of a board to study immigration problems with a view to adjusting regulations as emergencies arise.

Unless steps were taken to restrict the admission of aliens, Mr. Caminetti asserted, the influx would break previous records before July 1. He urged Congress to "strengthen the barriers" which would prevent the admission of undesirables.

After Commissioner Caminetti had declared that Lenin's power in Russia was stronger than a year ago, and that Bolshevism was a greater menace than ever before, Senator Colt said that immigration should not be suspended because of a fear of Bolshevist propaganda.

Throngs Coming by Way of Canada.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—The "strangers at our gates" from Continental Europe were rarely so numerous and never so clamorous to get into Canada as at the present time. But in no period have the immigration rules been so restricted as now, and only those who meet their requirements are able to enter.

There are two classes, those coming to join the heads of families already settled here, and those who, in bulk, are refugees from the war desolation and poverty of Central and Eastern Europe. From these centres, in the eight months ended with November, 17,669 came, more than three times the number in the corresponding period of 1919. In the same eight months 65,000 came from Great Britain, an increase of 18,000, and 37,970 from the United States, a decline of less than a thousand. From all sources the eight months' influx was 120,000 as against 91,000 the year before.

HOLD KISSING NO CRIME IN PARIS RESTAURANTS

French Jurist and Prominent Restaurant Owner Denounce an Attempt to Make It So.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Kissing in public is not a crime in Paris. There is no law whatever against it, and if objection is taken it must be to the manner and not the facts of its being done. Such is the conclusion to which jurists have come as the result of a recent incident in a well-known restaurant.

The sight of a couple exchanging furtive kisses had evidently enraged the proprietor, who, constituting himself the guardian of public morals, turned them into the street when their dinner was only half eaten. Other diners took up the quarrel, and the whole restaurant spent the evening in heated debate as to whether kissing in public was an offense. (Incidentally one might remark that if it is it is one which is very frequently committed).

The debate got into the newspapers, and the latest to give his verdict is Maitre Henri Robert, one of the most eminent jurists and eloquent advocates at the Paris bar.

"Absolutely no law exists against kissing in public," he declares. "But, of course, whether it is an offense or not depends entirely upon the manner in which it is done. As I never dine in restaurants, I regret that I cannot give any opinion as to what the custom is."

In defense of the furtive kiss Alexandre Duval, the most Parisian of all Parisians and incidentally the owner of a great number of restaurants, said with emphasis that if a headwaiter had interrupted him while indulging in a little kiss he would have walked out of the restaurant and never entered it again.

"Of course," he added, "one must select one's company when kissing, for there are always evil-minded people who might misinterpret so innocent an action."

SEEK MONEY LENDERS NOW.

Former Wearers of Silk Shirts Are Turned Down in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The silk shirt boys who cut such a dash during the war when they were riding to the factory in motor cars are going to the money lenders now, according to Arthur L. Weinschenk of the Illinois Industrial Licensed Lenders' Association.

"But they are not getting any loans," said Mr. Weinschenk today. "The members of our association, the 'poor man's bankers,' are trying to discourage extravagant living conditions. We are lending money now for family needs only and the needs must be legitimate and pressing. A year or two ago we were about ready to shut up shop, so few were the applications for small loans. Today we have more applications than we can take care of, and we are turning down at least one-third of them."

ENRIGHT CREATES NEW POST

Inspector General Must Tell Force When to Get New Uniforms.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright yesterday created the office of Inspector General in the Police Department and designated Acting Inspector William T. Davis as the first to hold the rank. The duties of the Inspector General will be to make regular inspections of department equipment and see to its repair and to inspect the uniforms of policemen and advise them as to when they should have new clothing.

Inspector Davis will be assigned to the Chief Inspector's office at headquarters and for the time being will retain the title of acting inspector, with the pay of a captain. The new Inspector General formerly was in command of the Fourteenth Inspection District, in Brooklyn. On Jan. 19 he was relieved there and assigned to the office of the Chief Inspector. He is known as a close friend of Commissioner Enright.
